

THIS SWAGGER SUIT FOR OCTOBER MAIDENS

"Who's Got the Button?"

Sand colored gaberdine cut smartly and adorned with many black jet buttons gives this effect. The deep collar is in sections that really button. A circle of points is simulated by cut and stitching, but the gown is a one piece.

SILVER TEA GIVEN.

The silver tea given by the Ladies Aid society of the Congregational church at the home of Mrs. J. H. Walker Tuesday afternoon was largely attended. The rooms of Mrs. Walker's home were brilliantly decorated with autumn leaves. The musical numbers given by Miss Addie Bowie, of Portland, and Miss Louise Walker, of this city, and both accomplished musicians were greatly appreciated. Several encores were responded to. The hostess was assisted in receiving her guests by Mrs. C. D. Latourrette, Mrs. D. M. Shanks, Mrs. H. E. Hendry, Mrs. C. H. Canfield.

CURIOUS THEFTS.

Treasures That Were Purloined by Dishonest London Servants.
In an article on the dishonesty of servants who have long served in old houses the London News cites the case of an aged woman who died in a suburb of London twenty years ago. She had been continuously in service in a great family for half a century and had appropriated all kinds of property, among which was a picture which was recovered by the heir of the house and sold to America for $150,000.
The News asks: "How is it to be accounted for that a fine Italian should be found decorating the trim parlor of a farmhouse in Lincolnshire, curtains embroidered by Mary, queen of Scots, a tiny cottage in Norfolk and a marqueterie bureau from the collection at Windsor castle an obscure village in Shropshire?"
"That a bundle of linen, each piece of which is marked with the monogram of Charles I., was disposed of some few years ago at a local sale in the west of England is less difficult to explain—Cromwell, together with members of his family, frequently visited the house from which the sheets came, and possibly brought them from one of the royal palaces. But that dishonest servants should be able to purloin such treasures without detection is truly marvellous."

BLUE FLAG AN ARISTOCRAT.

This Wild Flower is the Ancestor of the Garden Iris.
As the ancestor of the stately Iris of the garden, this wild flower belongs among the "first families" of the country. It occupies the same position among the flowers that the Mayflower descendants occupy in Boston society. It leads the grand march at the Colonial Dames' ball and waves at the head of the parade of the Ancient and Honorable. It's called the blue flag.
To return to floral lore, this aristocrat displays something besides ancestry. Witness its ingenuity in perpetuating itself.
In the laws of the flower kingdom it is absolutely necessary that the blue flag be cross fertilized—that is, for the pollen of one flower to be carried to another. To guard against self fertilization the flower hides its stamens in pockets, where its own pollen cannot reach them.
But the blue flag's cleverness does not stop here. It depends solely on the pollen from other blossoms, it calls on its friends, the bees, to bring the pollen. To make the work of the bees as easy as possible the flower provides a little "porch" at the door to its honey chamber as a landing place for the insects in their flight—Philadelphia North American.

Waking the Sleepers.

In a diary kept in 1640 it is asserted that "Allen Brydges has been chose to wake the sleepers in meeting and, being much proud of his place, must needs have a fox tail fixed to the end of a long staff, wherewith he may brush the faces of them that will have naps in time of discourse." This energetic individual was likewise armed with "a sharpe thorne" for the benefit of those who "be most sounde." There is a record of the use of this implement upon Mr. Tompkins, who was sleeping comfortably in the corner of his pew when Allen thrust his staff behind Dame Ballard to give him a grievous prick upon the hand, wherupon Mr. Tompkins did spring much above the floor and with terrible force did strike

Transparent Salt.

In the island of Santo Domingo there is a remarkable salt mountain—a mass of crystalline salt, nearly four miles long, estimated to contain nearly 90,000,000 tons, and the crystallized salt is said to be so clear that medium sized print can be read through a block a foot thick.

Its Advantages.

Scene—Train stopping at small station. Irritable Old Gentleman—What on earth do they stop at a station like this for? Objectionable Passenger—Sighing—To allow me to get out. Irritable Old Gentleman—Ah! I see it has its advantages then.

Diplomatic.

"Have you ever kissed another girl?" asked the girl.
"If I have," replied the experienced young man "I've forgotten all about it."
Whereupon she asked no more questions.

It May Be So.

Willie—Why is a wife called her husband's better half, dad? Crabshaw—I suppose it's because she isn't satisfied with splitting his salary fifty-fifty—New York Times.

Luke McLuke Says:

The trouble about this world is that as soon as you get through telling your troubles the fellow you have been telling them to starts right in and tells you his.

There ain't no such animals as a barber who won't talk baseball and a woman who won't look into a mirror.

The woman who tries to manage a husband never holds the job long. The woman who grows old gracefully is the one who feeds her husband and treats him right and overlooks his little weaknesses and trusts to his sense of decency.
If the truth were only known many a man's will power is at home washing the dishes and getting his supper ready for him.
What has become of the old fashioned man who used to wear a diamond studded collar button and no necktie?
A man can get into enough trouble in one hour to make him behave himself during the rest of his life.

DIZZY SPELLS.
"My nerves became all worn out. I had had headaches and severe dizzy spells. I could not sleep and my appetite was poor. I began using Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and they always gave me instant relief no matter what the pain. Then I used Dr. Miles' Nervine regularly and was soon in perfect health again."

BRITISH OFFICIALS CAREFULLY STUDY EVERY DETAIL OF FALLEN RAIDERS

LORD FRENCH INSPECTS GONDOLA OF WRECKED ZEPPELIN

Every detail of the Zeppelins brought down near London has been studied by high British officials. The two latest "Zeps" which fell on Sept. 24, when ten made a raid, left much intact for the British government to learn about the intricate construction of the raiders. The photograph above which has just reached this country shows Lord French, commander of the home forces, inspecting the gondola which fell in a country field in Essex. This "Zep" came down in a blaze of flame, and her crew was killed while the other landed safely, but the crew set fire to the envelope. The farmer upon whose land the Zeppelin wreck pictured here fell said: "I saw only one bomb drop before the Zeppelin came down, but others were found among the debris. I am told these fell in the middle of the field. I saw some dead bodies lying about. Some of the men had wrapped themselves up in blankets, evidently trying to avoid the flames. I had a herd of valuable dairy cows in the field, and these, very much alarmed around the field in terror. One of them seemed determined to rush into the burning mass, and I had some difficulty in keeping her away."

Fact.

Our language surely is abused. And pretense always stings. That's why the biggest words are used To say the smallest things.

Paw Knows Everything.

Willie—Paw, do you know everything?
Paw—Yes, my son. Why do you ask?
Willie—Well, if a woman has her teeth filled with gold, can she call them her chivels?
Paw—You get to bed, young man. You are getting too fresh.

Huh!

There was a young man in Duquesne Who married an old girl named Jeanne. And later he said: "One day that I loved Was the day that I was inane."

Mean Brute.

"The Bible says that we should love our enemies," said Mrs. Gabba.
"Yes," replied Mr. Gabba. "But it doesn't say a word about loving our relatives by marriage."

Paradoxical.

At pretty girls men like to stare. Although it's not good form. And when a girl is very fair She takes a man by storm.

Brittle Bones.

There is more lime in the bones of the need than in those of the young; hence old bones are the more brittle.

LEGEND OF THE CLOCK DIAL

It Tells Why the Figures IV Were Altered to Read III.
It is a tradition among watchmakers that the first clock that in any way resembled those now in use was made by Henry VIII in 1526. He made it for Charles V, of France, who has been called "The Wise."
Charles was wise in a good many ways. He was wise enough to recover from England most of the land which Edward III had conquered, and he did a good many other things which benefited France. But his early education had been somewhat neglectful. Still he had a reputation for wisdom, and thought that it was necessary, in order to keep it up, that he should also be supposed to possess book learning. The latter was a subject he was extremely touchy about.
So the story runs in this fashion: "Yes, the clock works well," said Charles, "but" being anxious to find some fault with a thing he did not understand, "you have the figures on the dial wrong."
"Wherein, your majesty?" asked Wick.
"That four should be four ones," said the king.
"You are wrong, your majesty," said Wick.
"I am never wrong!" thundered the king. "Take it away and correct the mistake!" And corrected it was, and from that day to this 4 o'clock on a watch or clock dial has been IIII, in stead of IV. The tradition has been faithfully followed.

STYLES IN CHINA.

Six Times a Year Clothing Changes as if by Signal.
The Chinese are nothing if not conservative in the matter of dress. It is the custom in China, as if by direct order, to change regularly the style of dress. It appears that there are no less than six distinct changes of attire that every self-respecting Chinese of any importance must make, according to the season—heavy furs in the depth of winter, then light furs, then wadded garments, then lined clothes, unlined, and finally what the Chinese themselves call "summer clothes," made of China grass. These are in white and blue.
The Chinese wear caps made of plaited bamboo, lightly covered with silk. In the height of summer men and women wear caps. There are ordinary black covered lined caps, and there are fur-trimmed hats and fur caps.
Foreigners have been particularly struck by the fact that on the same day and throughout the vast country stretching over nearly as many degrees of latitude as America men change from one cap to another, as though by signal.
Occidental tailors have a good word for Chinese clothes. They aver that the Celestial cut for jackets is "perfect" so far as convenience goes, and in the opinion of many they are peculiarly elegant.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Origin of Foxe's "Book of Martyrs."

Foxe's "Book of Martyrs" was published in March, 1622, as the "Acts and Monuments" of the martyrs, a title borrowed from an earlier book, says the London Chronicle. The famous volume might never have appeared at all but for the association of Foxe with the printer Day of Aldersgate street, in whose business Foxe took an active part. On the tombstone of Day in the church of Little Bradley, Suffolk, the partnership is thus immortalized:
He that a Fox to write how martyrs runne By death to life. Fox ventured paynes and health To give them light. Daye spent in print his wealth.
Even in those days the alien problem troubled industry, for we find Foxe appealing to Cecil to relax the law and permit his friend Day to engage more than four foreign printers.

Speed of Salmon.

It has been estimated that a salmon can swim at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour.

Could Not Do Her Cooking.

Mrs. F. E. Hartmeister, Tea, Mo., writes: "I was affected with kidney trouble for two years. I was so bad this summer I could hardly do my cooking. I got Foley Kidney Pills and they helped me. I feel like a new person." Too many women neglect symptoms of kidney derangement. When the kidneys are not properly doing their work poisons left in the system cause weak back, dizziness, puffiness under eyes, swollen ankles, joints, and rheumatism. Jones Drug Co.—Adv.

THINK OF OTHERS.

Think not always merely of your own purposes. No man can live happily who regards himself alone, who turns everything to his own advantage. Go forth into the busy world and love it, interest yourself in its life, mingle kindly with its joys and sorrows, try what you can do for men rather than what you can make them do for you, and you will know what it is to have men yours, better than if you were their king and master.

WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE.

Because her husband complained that she was not a good cook and for several months has been compelled to earn her own living, Myrtle J. Ristan has filed a suit for divorce against C. H. Ristan. They were married in Portland, December 22, 1910, and have an adopted child over whom she asks the custody. She also applies for a decree giving her $15 monthly for the support of herself and child.
