SUITS FOR DIVORCES OUTNUMBER MARRIAGE LICENSES DURING 1916

Divorce suits outnumbered marriage licenses in Clackamas county, during the year just ended, counts made Tuesday show. During the year 1916, 237 divorce suits were brought in the circuit court, and 210 marriage licenses granted. The records show a slight increase in the number of divorces, as 251 actions were instituted during 1915.

A majority of the divorce suits brought in the Clackamas county circuit court are brought by couples from outside of the county. Many come here from other states, an examination of the cases shows, live here long enough to establish residence and file an action.

For years, the number of divorce suits has been greater than the marriage licenses. In May last year not one license was granted, yet over a score of divorce suits were filed.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

DEUTSCHE VEREIN HAS BIG XMAS CELEBRATION

SPEECH-MAKING, BANQUET AND PROGRAM WELL RECEIVED BY GOOD CROWD.

The annual Christmas tree of the Deutsche Verein of this city was held Sunday afternoon in Knapp's hall, and was largely attended by the members and their families. The hall was beautifully decorated with festoons of evergreens and Christmas bells and the president's seat was draped with American and German flags. The following program was well rendered:

Instrumental overture, Gustave Felschner and George Melike, violin; Carl Frederetti, piano; M. Edgar, violinello, Song, "O, Du Frohliche"; Verein; recitation, Miss Clara Nobel; vocal solo, "Bulle Nacht," Miss Marie Freidrichs; recitation, "The Christmas Time," Miss Louise Kottler; vocal solo, Miss Agnes Petzold; recitation, Carl Zeldel; vocal quartet, "Verlassen," Mrs. Peter Winkie, Miss Clara Winkie, Mrs. Gustav Schroerr, Mr. F. Rottler, Sr.; instrumental selections, orchestra; recitation, Miss Helen Hartman; vocal duet, "Glorious German Fatherland," F. Rottler, Sr. and Carl Frederetti; recitation, Miss Gertrude Streib; cantata, "The Stable of Bethlehem," Misses Clara Nobel and Agnes Petzold and Master Gus Schroerr, Jr.; vocal solo, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," F. Rottler, Sr.; Address, Vice President D. M. Kieman; closing address, President Schroerr.

In the cantata, the scene was beautifully portrayed, showing the Divine Infant in the manger for a crib, a pair of angels guarding, and the room being darkened, illuminated transparencies about the manger, made a beautiful effect. The production was well rendered.

In his address Mr. Schroerr tendered his heartfelt Christmas and New Year greetings to all present. Referring to the war, he said: "The war has been maintained now for two years and a half, an unequal contest numerically—Germany, Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria, with a combined population of 150 millions, against the combined forces of England, France, Russia, Italy, Japan, Serbia, Belgium, Rumania and Montenegro, having a population five times as large. Although fighting at the odds of one to five, Germany and her allies are not only holding their own, but also some of the enemies' territory. For a time, at least the kingdoms of Belgium, Serbia, and Rumania have passed into history by falling into the hands of the Teutons and their allies. The German arms have wrested the Polish provinces from Russia as well as a valuable strip of French territory, and so far no change has been made in the map of Germany. Germany and Austria are marching side by side, shoulder to shoulder, onward in the great strife for humanity, to victory, with their men behind the guns, on the land, in the air, on the seas and under the sea, and all the world cannot crush Germany and her allies." Mr. Schroerr then read a letter from his brother's widow in Germany telling him of the tragic fate of her son and his nephew. The young man was a lieutenant in the German army. In a recent charge from the trench, all the officers of his battalion, were killed except himself, and taking command, he led his men in the charge, drove the enemy from their position, and held it against them. For this heroic act, he was decorated on the field with the highest military order of the Grand Duchy of Baden. The next day, the brave youth was killed.

"When the Kaiser made a proposal for peace to the enemy, it was not done with the intention of suing for peace, but in the interest of humanity, to stop the terrible carnage. With four kingdoms conquered, with rich portions of French and Russian territory as the spoils of war in the hands of the victors and with Italy, bottled up the Teutons don't have to sue for peace. If they don't win, they don't lose, for Germany cannot be crushed. Such a calamity would retard if not stop for a time, the onward march of the world's civilization." "Her message to the world is 'liberty and light' and when this cruel war is over, the kingdom of Poland and the Republic of Ireland will be restored to their places among the nations of the earth.

"We all know the price to be paid, as every one of us here has lost a brother or at least one brother's son in the conflict." Mr. Schroerr bitterly arraigned the American in Sir Roger Casement's expedition to Ireland, who betrayed their plan to the British authorities and sent Casement to the gallows, a martyr to Irish freedom. "We people of German birth in America," he continued, "as American citizens, have been tried and found true. Our men went forth from '61 to '65, to save the Old Flag. Germany's best blood flowed in rivelets on southern battlefields, from Bull Run to Appomattox, to preserve the Union, and I regret to say that under the guidance of our president—a good schoolmaster, but poor statesman, and secretary Lansing, an obscure country lawyer from New York state, who could not be elected prosecuting attorney of his county, American sympathy is apparently against us, and American bullets are being sent over to kill our brothers in the trenches. American capital is hungry for blood-soaked dollars, and the exportation of munitions of war to England, France and Russia goes on, thereby prolonging the carnage."

At the close of the exercises, Santa Claus appeared and distributed the fruits of two Christmas trees, after which all sat down to a bountiful German dinner. After dinner, a social hour was passed in music, songs and games.

MISS MASS ELECTED.

Miss Adah Mass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Mass, has been elected a teacher in the Eastham grade school by the board of school directors, taking the place of Miss Ethel Risley, who resigned. Miss Mass formerly taught at Barlow and is a graduate of the state normal school.

DOMESTIC DYES ARE OF LITTLE VALUE IN THE MAKING OF PAPER HERE

HAWLEY COMPANY FINDS THAT 6 POUNDS U. S. PRODUCT EQUAL TO 1 OUNCE IMPORTED.

Six pounds of American dye paste have the strength of one ounce of imported concentrated dye, and the domestic product, although it can be bought in quantities now is of little value in paper making, according to exhaustive tests made by the Hawley Pulp & Paper company.

"Before the war we put one ounce of imported news blue into a ton of paper stock," said W. P. Hawley, Jr., in discussing the dye situation. "Recently we bought some American-made dye paste and we used six pounds of the paste in one ton of stock."

"We have looked into the dye market as far as the paper industry is concerned carefully, and we find that the market is improving. Domestic dyes are improving in quality and foreign dyes can be bought in small quantities, but even then the price is many times the ante-bellum price. Some mills are overstocked on some particular shade of chemical, and are willing to sell small quantities to mills which are not so well protected."

None of paper turned out here now is pure white. The news stock, manufactured here at the rate of about 240 tons a day, has only a fraction of the usual amount of bleach and wrappings and tissues are turned out with prettily no coloring.
