CANBY WANTS HIGHWAY ON EAST SIDE OF RIVER

PETITIONS ARE SIGNED PROTESTING PROPOSED CHANGE OF ROUTE.

CANBY, Ore., Jan. 25.—(Special)—Several petitions were circulated here asking the legislature to establish the Pacific highway on this side of Willamette river.

The entire voting strength of the community is in favor of this measure and securing names on these petitions is only a matter of presenting the petition. This route is the feasible one for the road and will save many thousands of dollars in construction, as it is almost an entirely water level route from Portland to Salem, besides being shorter and more scenic. Clackamas county will lose many dollars that will be spent by tourists and transient travelers.

HARMONY REIGNS AS 2 CLACKAMAS CHAIRMEN UNITE

"WALTER" AND "GEORGE" AND THEIR COMMITTEES WORK ON MERGER PLANS.

SENATOR DIMICK HAS 3 BILLS AIMING AT PAVING MONOPOLY

Clackamas Senator Also Has One-Day Rest-in-Seven Bill Which He Will Introduce at Request of Federation of Labor.

SALEM, Ore., Jan. 24.—(Special to the Enterprise)—"George" and "Walter" were the felicitations passed back and forth at the first joint meeting of the consolidation committee of the house and senate today and the goose hangs high. The white flag was waved before Representative Brownell and Senator Dimick, the respective chairmen, tonight.

The first bills considered were those relating to the consolidation of the tax commission and while no decision was reached it was declared by all sides that harmony will reign and consolidation prevail.

Dimick tomorrow will introduce three road measures: one to provide for open specification to let non-patent pavements bid on equal terms with patent; one providing a defense against monopoly and another amending the conspiracy statute to prevent collusion in bidding on pavements. Dimick says he is loaded to show bribery and corruption existed in many places.

At the request of the Federation of sections of the state in the past on pavement bidding and that these bills will prevent it in the future. Labor in the session here Dimick today introduced a bill providing one day rest in seven.

Representative Stephens chairman of the counties committee stated tonight that no consideration had been given to the Cascade county bill pending the hearing tomorrow night when it is expected 100 or more from each side of the question will invade the capitol from Clackamas county. It is thought probable that the committee will attempt to act on bill soon after the big hearing.

Other members on that committee are Lewis, Forbes, Peck and Griggs.

Young Fur Seals. From the ages of one to four years fur seals are extremely playful. They are marvelous swimmers and frolic about in pursuit of one another, now diving deep and then, one after the other, suddenly leaping high above the surface in graceful curves, like porpoises. Squids and fish of various species are their main food. Their chief natural enemy is the killer whale, which follows their migrations and hunts the sea about their breeding ground, taking heavy toll among them. —National Geographic Magazine.

Fixing the Carpet Sweeper. The revolving brush of the ordinary carpet sweeper is driven by the friction of the wheels on which the sweeper runs against driving wheels on either end of the brush axle. To insure good friction the peripheries of all of these wheels are covered with tightly fitting rubber rings. In time these rings wear out, or the rubber becomes hardened and loses its grip. An efficient method of repairing a sweeper having imperfect or worn rubber rings is to cover the wheels with common electricians' tape, such as is employed for covering joints in wire. The tape should first be wound around the periphery of the wheel until a covering nearly equal to the thickness of the original ring is attained. This should then be secured in place by passing the tape around the ring and between the spokes of the wheels. The gripping power of the tape is fully equal to that of the original rubber rings, and the sweeper will be good for service until other parts wear out.

AOSTA, CHOSEN BY ALLIES TO RULE GREECE, COUSIN OF VICTOR EMMANUEL OF ITALY

It was reported in Rome that King Constantine of Greece would be deposed by the allies because of his so-called pro-German sympathies, and the Duke of Aosta, a cousin of King Victor Emmanuel, would be placed on the Greek throne. This decision is said to have been reached at the recent conference of the entente leaders in Rome. This action, according to report, has the full approval of the Venizelos faction and will be carried out under the leadership of the former premier. The Duke of Aosta comes of a family of kings. Victor Emmanuel II of Italy was his grandfather, Humbert I of Italy was his uncle, Victor Emmanuel III the present Italian ruler, is his first cousin. His father, Amedeo, duke of Aosta, became by election, for a short and stormy season, the king of Spain. For a number of years the dazzling vision of the Italian throne itself was held before the duke's eyes. While his cousin, the present Italian monarch, was still the prince of Naples his health became so impaired that the duke was looked upon by Italy as the heir presumptive to the throne. That this alluring hope came to naught was a bitter disappointment to the Duchess of Aosta, it has always been said in Europe. The duchess was Helene of Orleans, daughter of the late Count of Paris, and was one of the most beautiful women of the European nobility. Her wedding to the duke took place in England twenty-two years ago, at a time when his prospects for a crown appeared the most happy. The duke and duchess have two sons, Prince Amedeo, born in 1898, and Prince Aymon, born two years later. Pictures show the duke (No. 2) the duke and duchess (No. 1) and the duke with Prince Amedeo (No. 3).

Platinum was so named by the Spaniards on account of its silvery color, "plata," signifying silver. It was discovered in the sand of the river Pinto, in South America, and was unknown in Europe until 1741, when it was announced in Ulma's narrative of his voyage to Peru. In 1827 Dr. William Hyde Wollaston rendered it malleable and ductile.

Frederick the Great. Frederick the Great looked with serene indifference on all that his enemies might say of him. One day as he rode through Berlin he saw a crowd of people staring up at something on the wall and on sending his groom to inquire what it was found it to be a caricature of himself. The placard was so high that it was difficult to read it, so Frederick ordered it to be placed lower in order that the people might not have to stretch their necks. The words were hardly spoken when, with a joyous shout, the placard was pulled down and torn into a thousand pieces, while a hearty cheer followed the king as he rode away.

Boatswain's Whistles. Boatswains in our navy have as part of their uniform a lanyard on which is a silver whistle of a peculiar shape, only used in the navy. A boy's of the old school who could trill one of these whistles in a heavy gale of wind was a jewel and was always looked upon with envy, for he was the only man on board who had the prerogative of whistling.—New York Sun.

NAVY WILL LOSE THE MILWAUKEE, STRANDED ON THE PACIFIC COAST

The stranded cruiser Milwaukee, whose crew was taken off, was washed further toward shore near Eureka, Cal. As the hull continued to fill with water, hope of salvaging the vessel faded. Navy salvagers have abandoned efforts to save the submarine H-3, which the Milwaukee was trying to pull off the beach when the cruiser was swept ashore. The factors responsible for the beaching of the Milwaukee were a dense fog, strong current and the drag of the heavy line attached to the H-3. The Milwaukee was built at the Union Iron Works, San Francisco, and went into commission in 1906. She is a partially armored cruiser, having a four inch belt amidships, besides her protective deck. She carries fourteen six-inch rapid fire guns and made twenty-two knots speed on trials. Ever since her commission she has been attached to the Pacific fleet and has recently been used as a tender for submarines. In that capacity she had a crew of only 500, instead of her normal complement of 727 men. Six other vessels have gone ashore near Eureka, Cal. in the last few years, and not one of them has been saved.

COUNCIL TABLES PETITION FOR A JITNEY ELECTION

"IT'S BURIED" IS CRY AFTER CITY FATHERS ACT ON PORTLAND BUS LINE ISSUE.

GEORGE STORY PUTS SIGNATURE ON PAPER BESIDE C. SCHUEBEL'S

Councilman Templeton Starts Move to Table Petitions—Attorneys Do Not Agree On Matter—Oswego Jitney Ordinance Passed.

On motion of Henry M. Templeton, the council Wednesday night laid on the table the W. M. Foster initiative jitney franchise ordinance petitions for a special election, containing about 150 names.

Two meetings of the council were held Wednesday night. At the first session, the council passed on second reading the Oregon City-Oswego Jitney ordinance, giving the Oregon City Motor Bus company, a concern organized by the Portland Railway Light & Power company, a permit to run cars between Oswego and the county seat. The meeting was then adjourned, and Mayor Hackett called a second meeting just as members of the council were leaving the room, and the jitney petitions were taken up.

Recorder Loder read a ballot title prepared by City Attorney Schuebel, and signed by Mr. Schuebel as city attorney. Templeton, objected to the signature, and George Story, who was at the meeting, also objected. He, too, then signed the ballot title, but Mr. Schuebel's name was not crossed out. Both Mr. Story and Mr. Schuebel are claimants to the office of city attorney.

A brief discussion followed concerning legal points involved in the calling of a special election, and Templeton moved that the petitions be tabled. One or two councilmen suggested that the petitions be tabled until the next regular meeting of the council, but Templeton did not change his motion, which passed.

Several in the council chamber shouted "It's buried," meaning that the movement for a jitney election had been killed.

Attorneys do not agree on legal aspects of the points involved. The petitions set February 12 as the date for the election.

NO COMPROMISE ACCEPTED, SAY O. C. FISHERMEN

MEN SELECTED TO APPEAR BEFORE LEGISLATURE TO PRESENT THEIR CASE.

DELEGATION FROM OSWEGO JOINS WITH LOCAL FISHERMEN IN FIGHT

J. E. Hedges and B. T. McBain, of the Commercial Club, and T. R. Haines, Charles Gates and Anton Naterlin to Go to Salem.

A compromise with the hook and line fishermen, who want to close the Willamette to net fishing, will not be considered by the Clackamas County Fishermen's union, and the organized fishermen of this county will appeal to the legislature to open the river to the old deadline near the fish ladder, as provided in a bill introduced by Representative George C. Brownell.

To represent the fishermen at Salem, the following men were selected Monday night at a meeting of the fishermen's union: Joseph E. Hedges and B. T. McBain, of the Commercial club, and T. R. Haines, Charles Gates and Anton Naterlin, of the fishermen.

Over 50 persons attended the mass meeting in the club parlors last night. A delegation of fishermen from Oswego was present, and took an active part in the discussion. Charles Gates was elected chairman of the meeting and Andrew Naterlin secretary. H. Leighton Kelly explained the habits of the salmon, and suggested changes in the seasons, which, he thought, would benefit both angler and net fisherman.

M. A. Magone, owner of river front property, said that the sale of river frontage was often prevented by the stench of salmon that died trying to get over the falls and whose bodies had floated down the river. Others owning property along the Willamette bore out his assertion.

Several declared that when net fishing was at its height, and as much as 200 tons of salmon was taken from the river in one season, the hatcheries could get all the eggs they wanted, and the anglers' sport was not reduced. Others pleaded for the preservation of an industry that brought to Oregon City about $30,000 annually.

Mr. Kelly suggested that Portland sportmen pay less heed to the Willamette just below the falls and try to cut the politics out of the administration of the state fish and game laws and be held of incidents to bear out his statements. He said that he was much opposed to moving the deadline further down the river, and that to close the Willamette here to net fishing would be to cause hundreds of tons of salmon to go to waste each year.

J. E. Hedges, former state senator, made a speech which was received with applause. He accused the fish and game administration with playing politics and demanded less red tape and restrictive legislation.

Thomas Myers, an angler for many years on the river here, said that in his opinion net fishing stirred up the salmon and made the sport better for the hook and line men.

Practically no opposition developed at the meeting to the demand of the net fishermen that the river be opened to the old deadline.

APPROPRIATION OF $70,000 TO BUILD POSTOFFICE HERE IS PASSED BY THE HOUSE

The Enterprise received a telegram Friday afternoon from Representative W. C. Hawley announcing that the house of representatives had passed the public buildings bill, which contains an appropriation of $70,000 for a new federal building for Oregon City.

The passage of the bill comes after a campaign by the Live Wires of the Commercial club and the circulation of petitions showing the need for a better postoffice building here. It is thought here that the bill will probably have little trouble in the senate. The postoffice at present is housed in a structure leased from the Weinhart estate.
