He Was Wrong.

A bishop was being entertained by a New Haven clergyman, and the host's little daughter was permitted to eat with the family. When dinner was over the little miss observed that the guest did not fold his napkin, whereupon she felt it her duty to call his attention to the omission.

"We always fold our napkins."

"Yes, my dear," returned the bishop, with a beaming smile. "But that is because you use them again. In the case of a visitor you don't do that."

"Oh, yes, we do," corrected little Eva.

Maehine Made Shoes.

Up to forty years ago bootmaking was almost entirely a handicraft. But with the gradual improvement and development in machines for sewing soles and uppers and the vast expansion of the factory system the manufacture of footwear has taken tremendous strides. The "custom" shoemaker of the kind favored by the millionaire or the men and women of fashion no longer uses handwork on his shoes, whatever may be his plausible announcement to his ultra exclusive clientele, for every boot worn in these days by the millionaire or the day laborer, by the woman of society or the factory girl, is cut, joined and sewed by machinery.—New York World.

"GOLDEN CALF" HAS COST $10,000 IN LITIGATION.

Rival Claimants to Animal Engage in Bitter Legal Warfare.

Denver.—A "golden calf" will be on exhibition at the western national live stock show in this city. It is a perfect specimen of the Hereford breed.

The calf has a reasonable market value of about $25 at present, but it already has cost more than $10,000 in litigation, and the end is not yet in sight. The calf has come to be known as the "golden calf" throughout Pitkin and Garfield counties, where the rival claimants to the animal live.

Born in the spring of 1914, the question of the calf's motherhood arose. Nobody attempted to guess the identity of the immediate paternal ancestor. The docketed case known as Brunton versus Stapleton has puzzled four juries without a solution of the mystery.

Brunton claims the calf is the daughter of one of his prize Herefords, while Stapleton claims the calf is just a scrub, the daughter of a bottled red cow that he raised on his ranch.

In November, 1914, Brunton went to Stapleton's ranch and took away three calves that were with one of his cows. One of the calves was the "golden calf." The next day Stapleton went to Brunton's ranch and took the "golden calf" back again. Demand for his return was refused, and then Brunton started the replevin suit. Both claimants say they will take the case to the supreme court.

CANBY STORE IS BURGLARIZED

Wang & Vinyard's store was burglarized Tuesday night. The small change in the till was taken and some small articles. Entrance was gained by forcing the door open. There was no attempt to open the safe.

On the Waiting List.

The magazine editor was looking over a pile of manuscripts. Finally he became interested in one.

"This story," he said to his assistant, "is the best I have read in years. By some renowned author, isn't it?"

"No, sir," replied the assistant. "It's by Tom Hix of Grassville. Shall I return it?"

"Not on your life," said the man behind the blue pencil. "That story is too good to lose. Pigeonhole it until he becomes famous."—Indianapolis Star.

Expensive Shooting.

One of the Maxim guns, said Sir Hiram, was designed to fire a shell weighing about a pound. These shells were, of course, expensive, costing about $1.00 each. On a demonstration of the gun before Li Hung Chang it fired 400 of the shells, costing about $500, in one minute. The old Chinese statesman on being told the cost of the shells said, "This gun fires altogether too fast for China." The king of Denmark's comment was, "That gun would bankrupt my little kingdom in about two hours."

The Habit of Acquisition.

"It beats me," said the philosopher, "that people will keep piling up money long after they have several times as much as they'll ever be able to use."

Then he went out for a walk. Passing a bookstore, he saw half a dozen very cheap books, which, however, he knew he hadn't time to read and doubted very much if he ever would have time to read. But they were cheap, and he bought them and sent them home to be added to his library, which already contained several times as many books as he would ever have time to read.

Nevertheless he continued to wonder at the senseless accumulation of money.—New York Times.

No Misers in Burma.

When a Burman has earned a little money he immediately proceeds to spend it all, for the Burmese have no ambition to be rich and never hoard. Consequently there are no large landowners, and, there being no aristocracy, the people are as near being on an equality as possible. Poor people are quite as rare as rich people, and the only beggars to be met with are the lepers, who sit on the steps of the pagodas. Should a Burman find himself in possession of a large sum of money he builds a pagoda and possibly a zayat, or rest house. If any money still remains he gives a theatrical performance.

Good Hearted Cabbage.

A well known expert in cooking encountered trouble in a certain community the other afternoon when she prepared to lecture at the Mothers' club. Her subject was "How to Cook." She began by telling how much a man appreciates good cooking, and then she proposed to give various recipes.

Among the first was one for cole slaw. "To have this best," began the lecturer, "take a good hearted cabbage and—"

At this point a young matron interrupted. She was eager to get all the information possible. "Tell me, please," she spoke up, "how is one to know the disposition of a cabbage?"

The Stepmother in the Classics.

The ancients were as bitter on the subject of the stepmother as any modern could be. Their metaphorical uses of these words for a stepmother are cruelly significant. Thus the Romans had an expression "to complain to a stepmother" (noverca), meaning to complain in vain, and "novercae" being no doubt as slang, came to be a recognized term for rough people of land or for ditches which drained off the water imperfectly and slowly. The Greeks were as bad with their word "metrix." Hesiod spoke of lucky and unlucky days as "mother and step mother days," and Aeschylus brands a dangerous seacoast as "a stepmother to ships"—London Chronicle.

The Formation of Gold.

The Indians have a theory concerning the formation of gold. It was formed after the deluge. The deluge was about the time when the leaves of the trees were turning yellow. The winds came before this flood and blew the leaves in all directions where the leaves lodged at the time of the deluge is where the gold is now found. The gold is found in two forms—in nuggets and in leaf form. The nuggets were formed by the leaves blowing and whirling into small nuggets, as they are now found. Where the gold is found in leaf form are the places where the leaves were buried by the washing of sand and rock by the waters of the flood.

The marriage of Miss Lena Melike, daughter of Mrs. Minnie Melike, of Gladstone, and Mr. John Pace, formerly of this city but now of Portland, was solemnized at Seattle, Washington, Friday evening, February 2, at the home of the bride's brother, Charles Melike. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Pace left for Portland, where they will make their home. Mr. Pace is in business in that city.

The bride, who has been spending the last six months with her sister, Mrs. M. C. Enger, of Hendrum, Minnesota, arrived in Seattle Thursday. For some time she made her home in Oregon City. She is the sister of Mrs. Henry Strogg and George Melike, of Gladstone. While a resident of this city she was active in lodge work.

Mr. Pace is also well known here, where he was in business for some time before taking up his residence in Portland.

The Commercial club of Mount Pleasant has issued invitations to the second of a series of dances. This affair will be held at the Commercial club parlors Friday evening. The hall is being elaborately decorated for the occasion. Flechter's orchestra is to furnish the music. The committee making arrangements for the dancing party is composed of Ralph Niles, Mrs. L. A. Smith, William Hooker.

Turn About.

"Papa says if I give up my singing lessons he will present me with a pair of diamond earrings."

"You have never worn earrings, have you?"

"No; I should have to have my ears pierced."

"Ah, yes! I see his idea. He wants to pay you back in your own coin!"

Tattoos His Day Old Babe.

San Francisco.—His coat of arms sketched in indelible ink on the wrist of his baby daughter gives assurance to Lieutenant G. W. von Brincken, military attaché of the German consulate here, that his young wife will carry away no other couple's child when she leaves the hospital where their first-born came into the world.

In a panic at the sight of numerous other infants in the hospital nursery von Brincken, lately convicted of complicity in the munitions plots involving the German consulate, catechized the nurses on their methods of identification. Not satisfied with their system, he called for ink and pen.

Woman of 82 Elopes.

Bellevue, O.—Securing restoration of her right to manage her own property by securing the dismissal of her mother, Mrs. Harriet Fulwider, as her guardian, Cora Woodbury on the following day filed an application in the Champaign county court to be appointed guardian for her mother, who owns property valued at several thousand dollars.

It was the announcement that the mother, who is eighty-two years old, had eloped to Newport, Ky., and there married Joel Bates, sixty-two years old, that caused the daughter to petition the court to appoint her a guardian for her mother.

A Biting Retort.

Lady Wortley Montagu, one of England's most brilliant women, incurred Pope's undying hatred in the following manner: The poet, who was deformed and very dark and addicted to questioning everybody, once asked her to define an interrogation mark. She defined it as "a little crook backed thing that asks questions."

Long Boiling For Cereals.

In the diet of young children Drs. Erich Klose and Heinrich Bratten prefer thick gruels made from cereals boiled at least three-quarters of an hour. In the Medizinische Klinik they write that they have the advantage over thin gruels made with brief cooking, and their starches are so altered in form as to be much more readily digested and assimilated.

Ancient Lighthouse.

One of the most beautiful of the early lighthouses and the first tower in a sea swept position was Cordouan light on the coast of France at the entrance to the river Gironde. It was built in 1011, and, although it has been remodeled, some of the original structure is still there, more than 200 feet high.

Japan's Language.

There was no written language in Japan till Chinese characters were introduced into Japan from Korea in the reign of the Emperor Ojin. In 285 A. D. The inconvenience caused by Chinese characters led afterward to the invention of katakana and hiragana, the Japanese syllabary, which contributed much toward improving the national language.

Got $1,000 For Eye.

Monessen, Pa.—Michael Kamar, aged twenty-nine, who received $1,000 compensation because of the loss of an eye while at work in a Pittsburgh steel mill, is now denouncing his desire to celebrate because of his newly acquired wealth.

When Michael got his money he immediately arranged for a trip to New York, with a stop at Ashtabula as a side issue. He started one day at noon, an hour after he had the compensation check cashed, and in less than a half hour was minting his thousand. He continued his journey to Ashtabula, but returned home and said he would get a job.

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO LEAD SPORTS IN?

SPECIAL ELECTION ON FIRE TRUCK QUESTION WILL BE HELD ON MONDAY, MARCH 5

An election to decide whether or not the council, shall spend $4000 out of the general fund for the purchase and maintenance of a motor fire truck will be held Monday March 5.

A resolution providing for the election was passed by the council Wednesday night, after it had discussed the matter for some time and finally let it drop.

Considerable reluctance on the part of the councilmen advocating the purchase of a truck was shown on the matter of calling a special election. Chairman Templeton, of the committee, was especially strong in urging that the matter be put over until next January, when the purchase could be authorized by the council without referring it to the people.

Templeton declared that the need of a motor truck was great, but said he was afraid the people would not realize it. Mayor Hackett supported his contention.

A part of the money necessary for the purchase of the new apparatus has been contributed by citizens. All judges of election have agreed to serve without charge, so the election will cost the city nothing.

READS A SPECIAL MESSAGE TO BODY

With Councilman J. P. Albright under arrest on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated, Mayor Hackett at the council meeting Wednesday night in a section of his special message to that body called the members' attention to "a certain member" of this council who has been acting in a way to reflect discredit upon himself, this city and upon this body, and then referred the council to a section of the charter which provides for the expulsion of councilmen.

Albright Not There.

Among those present this was taken to mean that Mayor Hackett believes Albright's recent actions should be investigated by the council with an idea of ousting him from his seat.

Albright was not present at the meeting. This was the third successive meeting he has missed. He was the only councilman not present at the session.

The mayor said:

"I need not say that a certain member of the council has been acting in a way to reflect discredit upon himself, this city and upon this body.

Refers to Charter.

"I've wondered how long you would tolerate this kind of thing. This matter is entirely in your hands, gentlemen, and I refer you to page ten section 32 of the old charter."

This section reads:

"The council may punish any member for disorderly or improper conduct at any meeting, or for refusing or neglecting to attend any regular meeting without sufficient reason therefor, and may by a three-fourths vote expel a member."

Mayor Hackett Casts Vote.

The deciding vote was cast by Mayor Hackett after the council split as follows: For Schuebel's removal, Templeton, VanAken, Bridges, Moore; against, Cox, Buckles, Fredrichs, Metzner.

Considerable oratory enlivened the meeting. Both Storey and Schuebel expressed their sides of the question. Councilman Templeton made a spirited speech against Schuebel's retention. He considered that the contract under which Schuebel had been retained had been illegal, he said.

J. E. Hedges, who had been asked by the council to render an opinion of the law on the matter said that either Storey was elected to the office or else there was no city prosecutor because if the amendment providing for the election of a prosecutor was actually passed, then Storey was elected to fill the office; if it wasn't passed, then there was no office to fill, and as the council cannot create an office, it could not appoint Schuebel.

Compliments for Schuebel.

"Mr. Schuebel has been one of the best city attorneys this city has ever had," he said in opening his statement.

The office of city attorney under the rescinded resolution carried a salary of $750 a year. Prior to Mr. Schuebel's original appointment several years ago, fees of office brought the pay up to approximately $2000 a year.

Mr. Schuebel received many compliments on the way he had conducted the city's legal affairs, but lost the office.

Storey's bill for services as prosecutor during the month of January was laid on the table along with Schuebel's bill, so the indication is that neither one of them will get any pay for a while.
