SCHOOLTEACHERS ARE SHOWN CITY'S MILLS AND HISTORIC HOME Over 525 schoolteachers visited this city Wednesday afternoon, arriving here about 1 o'clock. The first establishment visited in this city was the Oregon City Manufacturing Company's woolen mill. All of the departments were in operation and the teachers watched with interest the making of cloth. The guides were the foremen of the various departments. Before departing each excursionist was presented with a handsome souvenir card. The next place of interest to be visited was the Hawley Pulp & Paper company's plant, and guides were also furnished here. Many of the visitors took with them, as a remembrance of the occasion, samples of the paper manufactured by this establishment. About 200 teachers made the trip to the Crown Willamette Paper company's establishment at West Linn, and were given an idea of how paper is made at this manufacturing plant. Small groups were taken through the mill with about 20 persons in each group, and expert paper makers were guides, who explained the making of paper from the time it starts from the large logs to the finished paper. Many amusing questions were asked. As the pulp passed through the machines, one young "schoolmarm" inquired if it was gush they were making. As the excursionists arrived at this mill they were presented with souvenir passes. These were printed on pulp and were highly prized.
