CHRIS WEISMANDEL IS FINED $15 FOR DRIVING ON SIDEWALK

Chris Weismandel, a painter and automobile enthusiast of this city, found the street too narrow for him to drive his machine on early Sunday morning, so he used the sidewalks for a distance of two blocks. Judge John W. Loder Monday afternoon decided that this was contrary to the safety of the citizens and he was fined $25 and sentenced to 30 days in jail. Upon his promises of good behavior, the fine was reduced to $15 and the jail sentence held in abeyance, during the promised good behavior.

When Weismandel appeared before Judge Loder Monday afternoon, his attitude almost won him a heavier sentence than that imposed. He pleaded guilty to the charge of driving his automobile on the sidewalk but denied that he drove it on more than once, or in more than one place.

"Then you couldn't have known where you were going," said Loder. "For I have been told that you were on the sidewalk three times."

"Well go head and give me the most you can. I hear that is what you are going to do anyhow," said Weismandel. It required only the threat of Loder to comply with the accused man's invitation to make it strong and charge him the full amount of the fine that quieted him.

The maximum which Loder could have assessed the man was a fine of $100 and imprisonment for 50 days in the city jail, or both. According to Loder, the 50 days in jail hangs over Weismandel's head and will be imposed at the first provocation.

SEARCH OF 13 YEARS COVERED ENTIRE COAST

The visit of Miss Grace Smith, of Chicago, who spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Terrill, of this city, recalls an incident of the early days in Colorado and Oregon City.

Miss Smith was one of five children whose mother died about 23 years ago in Golden, Colorado. The infant brother of Grace Smith was taken care of by Mr. and Mrs. Terrill, and the four children were sent to the home of Mr. Smith's parents at Colorado Springs, and then to Chicago where they have since lived.

Mr. and Mrs. Terrill had intended only to take care of the infant until the father returned from California, but the father failed to return and the child was adopted and brought to this city to live.

For 13 years Mr. and Mrs. Terrill kept up a search for the child's father, meeting with continual failure until through the help of former Chief of Police Shaw he was located in Santa Rosa, Cal.

A reunion of the family followed and the visit of Miss Smith last week served to recall to many local people the long search of 13 years which covered the entire Pacific coast.

WOMEN FEAR SUPPLY OF FOOD WILL NOT LAST THROUGH WINTER

Among the women of this city who are looking out for the future by filling their "war cupboards," Mrs. J. C. Napier, of 512 1/2 Main street, deserves mention. Mrs. Napier has over 500 fruit jars already filled with fruit, including berries, rhubarb, besides many filled with salmon of the Royal Chinook variety caught at this place, besides peas and string beans. Mrs. Napier started in with the salmon and the rhubarb, and will continue with her canning when the pears, peaches and other fruits come on. Besides this she has a large supply of jellies.

Mrs. Napier in preparing her canned fruit has used several different methods, in one of which she has placed the fruit in the jar, with hot water, without the sugar, and the juice of the fruit mingles with the hot water, making a most beautiful color to the canned fruit. This method requires a steamer to be used, and she has purchased one for this special purpose. The steam cooks the fruit thoroughly, but does not break any of the same. Another way she makes the syrup and adds the fruit, but this is not as satisfactory as the former method.

Mrs. Napier in her canning keeps a record of the amount obtained in the canned fruit from the fresh fruit. From 140 pounds of Bing cherries, a variety that is most delicious for pies, and from Royal Anne cherries she obtained 96 quart jars. Several of these have been placed in the store of the Brady Mercantile company to show what the steam process can accomplish. The cherries are in perfect condition, and even retain the rich color. This works in the same manner with the rhubarb, that is also exhibited.

Mr. and Mrs. Napier came to this city from Arkansas about one year ago, and this is the first time that Mrs. Napier has devoted so much of her time to preparing canned fruit. She stated that the reason she has done so this year, is that owing to the war conditions she fears that there will be still shorter rations during the winter months, and that she desires to have her family well supplied.

Many are planning to dry fruit and vegetables and have applied for the pamphlets at the publicity department of the Oregon City Commercial club that have been sent here by the Oregon Agricultural college. These pamphlets have been distributed throughout the county by G. F. Johnson, of the publicity department, hundreds of these being taken to the Chautauqua grounds, where there was a demand for them.

Many of the housewives of this city are scouring the woods for wild blackberries and these, too, are being put away for the winter's use.

LYND BROTHERS MAY BE HEIRS TO VAST UNCLAIMED FORTUNE

Where is Ray Lynd or Elmer Lynd? That is the question which County Treasurer M. E. Dunn was asking Saturday following the unearthing of a half-dozen sealed envelopes containing wills, which have been reposing in the vault at the Clackamas county court house for 15 or 20 years. The wills were apparently left with some county treasurer with the understanding that he was to act simply as custodian and that some of the heirs were to call. There is no legal procedure which justifies their having been left there except for that purpose.

In large, scrawling handwriting on one of the envelopes is the superscription: "The last will and testament of Wm. A. Lynd. Deliver to Ray or Elmer Lynd." They are unknown here. Other wills left undisturbed in the vault for what the present treasurer and his deputy, Miss Alberta Dunn, claim must be between 15 and 20 years, are those of Mrs. Eva P. Steel, David Jones, John M. Cummings, W. H. Woodruff, Thomas J. Whittier and Berny Buckner.

A receipt and a bank deposit credit for $25 to the account of Joseph L. Peasley, indicating the deposit of a U. S. pension fund warrant for that amount in 1906, were also found among the papers.
