

DOUGLASS ANDERSON, BACK FROM CANTONMENT, GIVES SIDELIGHTS OF INTEREST

Douglas O. Anderson, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Anderson, of Maple Lane, about two miles from this city, arrived home from Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C., Tuesday, having been discharged from service owing to nose and ear trouble contracted while at Camp Greene.

Mr. Anderson enlisted in the army at Vancouver Barracks, Wash., early in August, having been assigned to the medical department. He left, with six other men from the medical department, from Camp Withycombe, Clackamas, soon after his enlistment, for Camp Greene. Six weeks ago Mr. Anderson was taken ill at that camp, and has been confined in the base hospital until two weeks ago when he was discharged from service owing to disability due to illness.

While stationed at Camp Greene, Mr. Anderson was connected with the hospital, and for some time was in charge of the dispensary of the field hospital, and was also connected with the surgical ward and later made ward master.

Mr. Anderson left the hospital two weeks ago, and left for New York City, where he had intended visiting his cousin, Sanford Norby, of Portland, who was stationed at Camp Hempstead, Long Island, but upon his arrival at camp, found that Norby had departed with his regiment for France. After remaining in New York for a day visiting camps of the soldiers, he visited Washington, D. C. He returned to Charlotte and then started home by way of the Southern states. One of the places he noted was the intern camp where many Germans are held.

The intern camp is located in the Blue Ridge mountains near the hot springs of Virginia. It was while taking in this surrounding country that Anderson came across one of the old mountaineers, who had resided in that section for years. The old man stated to Anderson "I've got a nephew in de United States army, and he is on his way to France. If he gets shot by a German while dere, I'll dest kill everyone of does damned Germans in dat camp below dere." The old man had a flowing white beard and his back was bent with age, but he appeared to mean every word he said to Anderson. He had "fire" in his eye, and had a determined look on his face.

A number of the southern states were visited, and while enroute home he stopped for a brief visit at Cincinnati, Ohio, and it was while in this city that one of the residents inquired "where is Oregon?" after hearing Anderson stating that he was from that state. He also visited Indianapolis, Chicago and St. Paul, Minn.

While in New York Mr. Anderson states that the western boys have become famous as being the largest delegation of soldiers who have volunteered, while in the eastern states the larger portion of the men are those who have been drafted. The

New York papers are speaking highly of the western boys as soldiers. Their camp is damp and cold, and much different than those left at Charlotte. While there the weather was stormy, and sleet and snow was coming down.

Mr. Anderson believes that the secretary of every commercial club of the western cities should write and thank the members of the Charlotte Commercial club for the hospitality extended the western soldiers while stationed at Camp Greene. The members of the Charlotte Commercial club opened their homes to these soldiers, and extended many other courtesies that gladdened the hearts of Uncle Sam's men. These men, even since leaving Camp Greene, many times wish they were back in that camp. The members of the churches of which there are 30, gave socials each Saturday evening for the benefit of the soldiers, and where they could become acquainted with the people of that city. On Sunday morning automobiles were sent to Camp Greene and escorted Uncle Sam's men to church, and there were no slackers, when it came to church going. All these soldier boys did their part when Sunday service arrived, and many looked forward to church.

Society people and others thought there was nothing too good for the soldiers, especially for the western boys.

"There are many residents of the southern states who know very little of Oregon," stated Mr. Anderson. "It was while I was talking to one of the big hearted women of that city, that she inquired 'What did you think of the street cars when you saw them down here? didn't they rather puzzle you?' 'Well, yes, they did somewhat, but have heard a lot about them,'" answered Anderson. "Do you chase many Indians in Oregon, and do they bother your crops by stealing?" again inquired this little woman. This was too much for Anderson, and he told this woman that they had a sample of some of the Indians in camp, and that he would show her just what they looked like. After seeing some of the fine built Indians who had enlisted, and who were about the color of some of Uncle Sam's real white men, there was nothing more said by this little woman of Charlotte regarding the wild Indians of Oregon. She also imagined the plains covered with wild horses, and thought that Anderson's job before enlisting was to chase wild horses over the prairies of Oregon.

Anderson is planning to send some of the New Year's editions of the Portland and Oregon City papers to Charlotte and show the people of that city just what we do possess in the western states.

After remaining at the home of his parents near this city and visiting his brothers, E. R. Anderson, of Oregon City, and Oscar Anderson, of Carson Hot Springs, he will resume the study of medicine in Portland.

This photograph was taken on the Pittsburgh division of the Pennsylvania railroad east of Sumnerhill. Women, it proves, have actually taken up the hard work heretofore performed by men. They clean the tracks of the road, and it has been said by officials that they keep the tracks cleaner than did the men they supplanted.

She Believes in Farming

Miss Eleanor Hill Weed of Washington, granddaughter of the late Representative Ebenezer Hill of Connecticut, believes in intensive farming. This summer, with eleven other girls, she helped cultivate the large Vassar college farm of 800 acres. She did everything from handling a plow to harvesting the crops.

PRESIDENT GOMPERS FIGHTS BURLESON'S ATTITUDE ON LABOR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Organized labor Sunday night threw down the gauntlet to Postmaster General Burleson. In a statement issued from the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor in this city, Samuel Gompers, president of the federation, served notice that any attempt on the part of Mr. Burleson to force through congress his proposal to deny postal employees the right to organize will be bitterly fought. Mr. Gompers said: "The American Federation of Labor will resist any effort made by Postmaster General Burleson to put into effect his recommendation to congress that the postal employees be denied the right to appeal to congress and the right to organize and affiliate with labor.

"I can see no danger of a strike of postal employees if they have free access to congress and public opinion to secure the correction of their grievances. But I can conceive of serious trouble arising if the Burleson idea of repressing men and not giving them the opportunity to organize and to come in contact with their fellow workers, in a sincere desire to make better the lot of all groups of workers, is put into operation.

"To deny the right of workers in our largest governmental agency to organize is to make a mockery of our faith in democracy. If autocracy is harmful to the morals of our alien enemies abroad, then let us not introduce a species of it into our largest federal institution by attempting to disfranchise industrially the army of postal workers.

"The American Federation of Labor stands prepared to back up its position of 1906, when it fought for the rights of the government employe. We differ from Mr. Burleson in his view that the anti-gas law has operated to build up organizations of employes that are a menace. We fear that the menace lies, not in the employers' organizations, but in the denial to citizens of fundamental rights."

Will Teach American Athletics to Italians

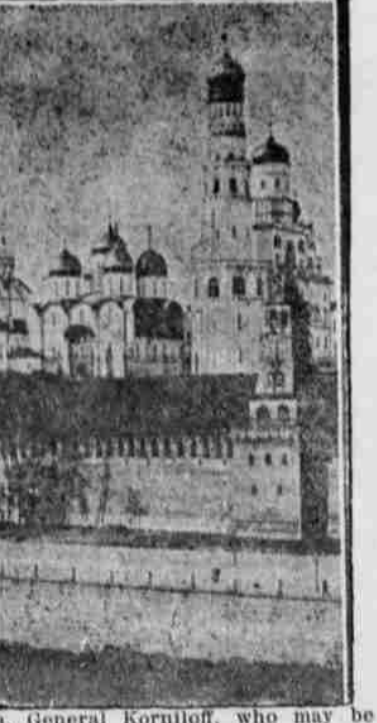

George W. Braden, athletic director at Camp Meade, Admiral, Md., has been chosen by the Italian government as physical director of the Italian army. He will make his headquarters at Rome with a corps of American instructors, who will teach the Italian soldiers American athletics in order to build them up to condition to withstand the German and Austrian attacks in the north.

The Kremlin, the Stronghold of Moscow, and the General Who Has Captured It

GEN. KORNILOFF

In Moscow, the old capital of Russia, General Korniloff, who may be working in harmony with Kerensky, the premier, who fled Petrograd, has taken the Kremlin, the ancient stronghold of the city. That indicates he is in command, and from that point he may be able to re-establish government throughout the nation.

ATLANTA, Dec. 10.—The boys in the trenches "over there" may soon hear Billy Sunday. The evangelist announced today that he is seriously considering a trip to France to preach against "the Kaiser, who has usurped the place of the devil."

Mr. Sunday has recently received hundreds of letters asking him to go to France to preach to the soldiers.

LITTLE ONES AND OLD ONES. James Edwards, 208 Harriet St., Montgomery, Ala., writes: "I sleep all night and cough but little. I feel like a new man from using Foley's Honey and Tar. My whole family is using it now—the little ones and the old ones. It has cured our coughs and broken our colds." Foley's Honey and Tar clears stopped air passages, removes phlegm, heals raw inflamed membranes, soothes sore chest, makes breathing easy, and relieves those deep-seated, racking coughs.—Jones Drug Co.—Adv.

SHIP SUNK EIGHTY MEN LOSE LIVES IN ATLANTIC

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The American destroyer Jacob Jones was torpedoed and sunk in the war zone on Thursday with the loss of two-thirds of her crew.

Thirty-seven survivors were taken off one life raft. The names of 19 survivors have been received here.

The names of the survivors reported follow:

The sinking occurred December 6 at 8 p. m., while the ship was on patrol duty. She was commanded by Lieutenant Commander David Worth Bagley, brother of Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the secretary of the navy.

Lieutenant Commander Bagley was a brother of Ensign Bagley, the first American killed in the Spanish-American war.

The disaster brings to the American people the first naval loss of great consequence since the country entered the war.

The complement of the Jones in peace times was five officers, five petty officers and 87 enlisted men. Undoubtedly this has been probably increased to 100 or more. From the first report it would appear that the loss of life would be upward of 60.

The attack, which was at 8 o'clock at night, was delivered by torpedo. In rolling icy seas of the North Atlantic winter weather, the submarine probably had plenty of opportunity to pick her time for the shot. The submersible probably came upon the destroyer patrolling her course in the dark.

MAN TROUBLED FOR TWO YEARS.

Men and women should not suffer from backache, rheumatic pains, stiff joints and swollen, sore muscles, when relief can be easily had. James McCrery, Berrien Center, Mich., says he was troubled with kidney and bladder trouble for two years; would have to get up several times during the night and had pains across his kidneys. He used several kinds of medicine without relief, but Foley Kidney Pills cured him. Many such letters, come every day from all parts of the country. Jones Drug Co.—Adv.
