Dunmire and Zardinak Convicted For Applying Offensive Epithet Better Known Locally as "Scab"

As succeeding milestones in the progress of the strike in this city, the conviction in the municipal court Monday of two strike sympathizers charged with speaking insulting and offensive language in the form of the word "scab," assume prominent places. The convicted men are Ray Dunmire, who was fined $25 and sentenced to 25 days in the city jail, and John Zardinak, seventeen years of age, who was sentenced to ten days in jail. Both sentences, however, were suspended by Judge Loder upon the good behavior and the maintenance of peace by the convicted men.

The fine imposed on Dunmire is automatically suspended upon the filing of a bond pending the appeal of the case to the circuit court. Attorney Schuebel acted as counsel for the defense, and the city of Oregon City, the plaintiff, was represented by City Attorney George L. Story and Attorney O. D. Eby.

Young Zardinak was arrested in the early morning of January 9 by Chief of Police Henry Cooke. According to evidence revealed in the testimony of witnesses, Zardinak is alleged to have called Chris Weismandel, an employee of the Crown Willamette Paper company a "scab," and when Weismandel presented this greeting, Zardinak challenged him to come off the bridge and settle the difference in a fistic battle. Weismandel went from the bridge, and seeing Chief Cooke, asked the officer to arrest the lad for calling him a "scab." When questioned by Chief of Police Cooke, Zardinak admitted having called Weismandel a "scab," and was promptly lodged in the city jail by the officer. When testifying Monday Zardinak denied having called the mill worker a "scab."

Dunmire, the other convicted strike sympathizer, was arrested January 10 upon the complaint of Fred Looy who declared he had been insulted when called "scab" by the striker. State Agent R. T. Stewart arrested Dunmire and transferred him to Chief Cooke at the door of the jail.

During the trial Attorney Schuebel stated that Stewart acted contrary to law when he arrested the striker, and as proof of this statement explained that, according to the text of the city charter, any man to become a peace officer is required to be a resident of the city for six months prior to his appointment. He also declared that the appointment of special agents for strike duty in this city was illegal. He said that such action could not be supported by the law without first declaring a state of martial law to exist in the city. He also contested the validity of private corporations in paying the salary of peace officers with jurisdiction in a municipality.

Schuebel further attempted to prove that the term "scab" was not "offensive" as defined in the complaints, and that, though the strikers did use the term, they were not justly being prosecuted. He said Dunmire was not legally brought into court because no warrant for his arrest had been issued, and that an illegal peace officer had made the arrest. Here, Attorney Eby for the city said:

"It is defined by law that any person, whether an officer or not, can, within the law, arrest any violator of the law so long as he turns the prisoner into the hands of an officer following the arrest by the citizen—as in this instance, was the case, for Dunmire was given into the custody of Chief of Police Cooke at the door of the jail."

Mr. Schuebel intimated that the Enterprise was subject to libelous proceedings for publishing the term "scab." This remark was rebuffed by Judge Loder in rendering his decision when he said:

"The term 'scab' in my mind, is no worse than any other word. But it becomes liable when spoken in an insulting manner, or is intended to disturb the peace of mind of another. Therefore the publication of this word is not subject to libelous procedure only when used as defined."

"I hope the people of Oregon City will understand the court's stand on this matter. It tends to treat both strikers and company with equality, and shows no favoritism within the law. In a previous statement made by me from this bench that I would no longer tolerate users of the word 'scab,' I did not mean that the word was to be entirely abolished. But I did try to convey that users of the term, who directed it in such a manner as to insult or offend, were due to get the limit of this court."
