Mackburg

MACKSBURG, Ore., Feb. 20.—A meeting to promote the sale of War Certificates was held on the evening of Saturday, February 16. Some string speeches were made, which resulted in the sale of a creditable number of the certificates. The youngest purchaser was George Hepler, who thus set an example of patriotic thrift to other boys of his age. No one of us can forecast the influence that these investments may have upon a boy's career. Surely self-respect—that most important factor in shaping the destiny of the young—can be in no way lessened by the reflection that he is a stockholder in the great bank of the United States. His patriotism must receive added favor from the thought that he is helping his country to win in the greatest war that history records. Habits of thrift will take shape from the desire to make regular additions to his account. Harmful amusements will be shunned for the depletion they make in his savings and the consciousness that he is serving his country as effectively as if he were in military service must tend to broaden his views and elevate his purpose in life.

When the war is ended and the great army of the nation's workers is called into action what more likely than that the selection of youthful employees will be from the ranks of young patriots, who did their part in upholding their country's finance while the struggle was on.

Far larger are the sums of money that must come into the hands of the rising generation, now than ever before. With so many of our men at the front and so many new spheres for women—much work must be left for boys and girls.

In 1923, when these certificates mature, each of these young investors becomes a capitalist on a scale larger or smaller, as he chooses for himself and immeasurably better will this capital be than if he had inherited it without effort of his own.

The great problem of world-feeding too, has taken hold of the children who are large enough to do garden work. Not a rod of ground that can be planted will go to waste.

In pursuance of this the boys are waging fierce warfare upon those subterranean malefactors, gophers, gray diggers and moles. The fur-dealers are offering generous prices for the skins of the four fur-bearers, thus giving additional inducement for their capture.

A second meeting in the interest of the war certificates was held in the Menonite chapel on Sunday afternoon, at which August Rotheuber was the principal speaker. Considerable interest was awakened which will be doubtless result in a further sale of the certificates.

Little John Dwarschack is still in the hospital at Oregon City, where his physician continues to indulge hopes of his recovery, though he is still very ill.

A very pleasant gathering of friends took place on Saturday at the home of Jno. Hepler, it being Mrs. Hepler's birthday.

Stafford

STAFFORD, Ore., Feb. 20.—Friday evening, February 15, about 60 Stafford citizens met at their school house to form a Red Cross auxiliary. Dr. H. S. Mount and George C. Brownell, of Oregon City, gave two excellent talks. The temporary organization was made permanent with officers as follows: Chairman, Mr. Thomas; vice-chairman, Mr. DeNeul; secretary, Mrs. Z. Ellingsen; treasurer, B. F. Wedde; directors, Mrs. Nussbaum, Mrs. Oldham, and Mrs. Meeka. The military relief committee will be selected later.

Stafford Community club held forth Saturday night with a good program and games as usual. The program was furnished by the big people. Among the more striking features of the program was "Jumbo Jim" in which Clarence Wedde and Dora Oldenstadt were particularly "stunning" as the "negro" and "old woman." Another well-dacted dialogue was one by Miss Ellingsen and Miss Davis.

Friday morning, February 15, a baby daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. H. Frenzel. Miss Frenzel weighed seven pounds.

Miss Libbie Rabcic, who is attending the trade school in Portland, spent the week-end with her mother.

Mrs. Oldham's home was the scene every two weeks. We have a short program after which we usually have a lecture. We have had O. D. Eby, Walter Dimick and George C. Brownell, of Oregon City, and S. B. Houston and Roscoe Hearst, of Portland. Their lectures have been a real inspiration to all of us. In this way we are able to keep the issues of the day before the people, such as the Y. M. C. A. war fund for which we sent in $125, the Red Cross membership drive, etc.

At present we are featuring thrift stamp sales. We have sold numbers on both a pig, and a silk quilt, both donated, bringing about $100, which has financed our auxiliary; made our school a 100 per cent Junior Red Cross and left us a substantial sum in our treasury for future use.

Mrs. Rosa Say is quite sick with the measles.
