BOOT LEGS GET STIFF SENTENCES

Bootleggers held the center of the stage in Judge Sievers court Thursday, and the two men arrested at different times Wednesday by the sheriff and local officials, were given stiff jolts.

Mike Marchep was assessed $100 on account of his mysterious connection with two suit cases left in a local restaurant. A Portland friend of Mike's was present when the suit case was handed down, and the friend paid the $100 together with costs, and both insisted that Mike knew nothing of the booze.

Marchep was spotted by Deputy Sheriff Henry Hughes Wednesday afternoon as he was leaving a local restaurant, the suitcases having been left there shortly after the arrival of the Frisco train Wednesday morning.

William Werner who was arrested by Sheriff Wilson and Night Officer Surtus Wednesday evening, with two suitcases of booze, was given a $50 fine and allowed ten days to get the money.

Judge Sievers was more lenient with Werner, as he is a married man with a tubercular son. The family has been in the south for the son's health and Werner, who was formerly a farmer in the Colton country, admitted to the officials that he was taking a long chance in bringing in booze, which he intended to sell.

District Attorney Hedges filed a charge of possessing intoxicating liquors against Werner Thursday morning and he was immediately arrested and pleaded guilty. Unless Werner's fine is paid by the 10th of March, he will be compelled to serve a jail sentence.
