CITY WINS VICTORY IN SEWER DISTRICT CASE OF C. H. DYE

In the dismissal of C. H. Dye, Trustee, vs. City of Oregon City, entered Monday in the circuit court records, Oregon City has won a clear-cut victory in the much discussed "Sewer District No. 10" case tried some time ago.

The plaintiff, C. H. Dye, acting for himself and others, sought to invalidate the sewer assessments made by the city against adjoining property owners in the establishment of Sewer District No. 10, embracing sewers on Fifteenth, Sixteenth, and Jackson streets, constructed several years ago. Technical objections to the procedure on the part of the city were made by the plaintiff, alleging irregularities by the council and recorder.

Judge Campbell ruled that the city's lien against the plaintiff is good, in the aggregate sum of $792.04, together with accrued interest. The court also found that the procedure from the resolution as originally passed by the council was regular and that legal notice was given as provided by law.

The action of the council is particularly sustained in the following from the decree:

"The Court finds that the City Council and all of its officers therein charged by the charter of Oregon City to perform certain duties in the laying out of sewer districts and constructing sewers therein, have substantially complied with all the requirements of the charter, and that all of the acts and things done in laying out and establishing Sewer District No. 10 in said city, and the filing of liens on the real property benefited thereby, are legally done."
