Selected From Many As Best Drilled Boy

Ben Staats, a former Oregon City boy and brother of Bert Staats, of this city, has been highly honored at the Oregon Agricultural College. This young man entered the college last October, and writes to his brother in this city Saturday, saying that he had been selected from 400 students as one of the best drilled privates at the institution. There were 400 pitted against one another in the great tournament held at the college, and nine of the best were selected, and young Staats drilled the other eight down. He is now declared the best drilled private at O. A. C.

Staats is working his way at college, and is one of the most popular young men there. He is also taking training in the officers' reserve. He is 20 years of age.

Staats attended the Oregon City high school, graduating from the institution several years ago.

The committee dance in the I. O. O. F. hall last Saturday eve, was fairly well attended, fifty numbers being sold. A number of out of town people attended.

ASK ELECTION BOARD TO GIVE TO RED CROSS

All of the members of the primary election boards of Clackamas county have been asked to turn their warrants, amounting to six dollars per member, over to the Red Cross. In Sandy precinct No. 2, the following have been appointed to serve: Florence V. Sykes, Blanche R. Shelley, J. H. Weaver, P. B. Gray and Isabel Gray. Two of these have assigned their warrants to the above named cause, but the other three members have refused to do so. It is hard for a patriotic citizen to understand the reason for this. We have never questioned their loyalty to the land of their adoption, and we sincerely trust they have a reason for their refusal that will stand the test when the time comes that others may doubt them. It seems such a little thing to give a few hours of our time when the best of our manhood is giving its all; and over there, on the bullet-swept battle fields, behind the lines, at the training camps, The Red Cross brings to them, medical aid, comfort, nourishment, the very necessities of life. Every dollar we withhold here means that some loved one over there may die because you have not come across with some necessary aid.

"Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide, In the strife of truth with falsehood, for the good or evil side."

Has Sheriff Wilson Made Good?

The Portland Evening Telegram evidently thinks so, for in its issue of May 1st, it devotes two columns of space in telling how Sheriff Wilson of Clackamas County converted a former well known dive keeper, and made a useful citizen out of him. It tells of two specific cases where kindness to fallen ones in the sheriff's keeping, has started them out on the right road. It points to his administration as that of the ideal official.

Sheriff Billy Wilson has eternally chased the bootlegger never forgetting however, that the law breaker is a human being. "Sheriff Wilson's Humanity Scores Big" says the Telegram.

He has driven the notorious dives out of Clackamas County—once and for all. The Friar's club is no more, Erickson's Tavern is done for, and The Belle Hotel is a thing of the past.

His everlasting fight to break up the liquor transportation has won unstinted praise from all over the Willamette Valley. He has made 14 bootlegging arrests since January 1st. The county is $12000 ahead by reason of his energies, so far during 1918.

He has operated his office with one less deputy than his predecessors, and his tax department has collected more money at less expense than any other county in Oregon.

He has been YOUR sheriff at all times, standing for straight enforcement of the law. He has given you a clean, honest and honorable administration.

He has worked night and day as chairman of the County Local Board, and has done his work well—without one cent of expense to Uncle Sam, who asked him to take the job.

He has given the taxpayers his best efforts with their interest ever at heart. The results are an open book.

Certain organizations are fighting Sheriff Wilson. Your sheriff should be impartial and independent of all cliques and organizations. If you want this sort of a man for sheriff of Clackamas County, cast your vote for,

CHAMPOEG---RARE APPRECIATION

Interesting and Beautiful Scenes Along Willamette River

The following story of a trip to Champeog was written by Mrs. Bertha Adams, city librarian, from notes furnished by David Caulfield, a pioneer of Oregon.

Leaving Portland at 7:30 A. M. we arrive at Oregon City about 8:30 and then pass into the locks, lately purchased by the United States at a cost of three-hundred-thousand, we are lifted forty feet into the upper river and pass the Crown-Willamette paper mills that employ something like a thousand men.

Passing out of the locks, on the east bank we see Canemah, an old town, where the boats of early days landed and transferred their freight and passengers to the lower river. It was also the meeting place of the Indians to hold their potlach, and catch their salmon. The Molallas, the Yamhills, the Callopolas, the Multnomahs and Tumwaters gathered with their canoes, the Indian name of which is "Canim." The Indians at the falls on the lookout for the upper river Indians on seeing a canoe approaching would sing out to their friends, "Canim ah," from which the whites framed the name Canemah.

And three miles farther up the river, we come to Rock Island, about the middle of the island on the west side you will see a small cottage that is called Castle Kenna. It was built by a noted spiritualist lecturer called Katie Kenna so that she might be alone to commune with the spirits of departed friends. At the head of the island on the east side, way upon the bluff may be seen "Col Colica" or balance rock, to which is attached an old Indian legend, that at one time Rock Island formed a dam that backed the water up, over the Willamette Valley and was the home of a great colony of beaver. Col Colla, an Indian, was set to watch that the lower river Indians did not break the dam and let the water out and destroy the beaver homes, but Col Colla went to sleep and the dam was broken and for punishment Col Colla was turned into a stone and doomed to stand watch through all time.

From the head of the island we enter a nice, smooth piece of water skirted by alders, dogwoods, and balm of gileads, and pass by some old pioneer places such as the Cantonwine place, the J. L. Barlow, John Kruse, R. V. Short and Ex-Gov. Curry places. Passing under the Wilsonville bridge and then on to Butteville, the old home of F. X. Mathieu, the father of Champeog day, and in a short time we arrive at Champeog, arriving there about noon. And then for a cool shade and a picnic lunch which everyone must bring along or go without.

And after lunch we repair to the speakers' stand and listen to the early history of Oregon as told by those that helped to make Oregon. And then we go and view the monument and read the names of those that aided by their votes that the country should belong to the United States and not to Great Britain.
