

Jennings Lodge

JENNINGS LODGE, May 23—Inasmuch as the Red Cross drive began this week, Jennings Lodge has prepared for it. Saturday evening a Loyalty League was formed and every person present pledged his or her allegiance.

The big service flag for our community will be dedicated June 9th, at the church. The flag honors 25 of our boys, many of whom are in France fighting for democracy.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Fox and daughter, Geraldine, are visiting Mrs. Ellis R. Keads, of Meldrum.

G. M. Williams has rented the William Jacobs place.

Little Winifred Gardner is ill with a severe attack of the measles.

The W. O. Tucker family has rented the bungalow of the late Miss Elizabeth Cook.

Mrs. Hunter, of Meldrum, has returned to her home after a serious operation.

Standish Shephard has been on the sick list.

Another family welcomed to our community is the Wilson family, who have rented the J. Millar place.

Stella McVicker, a popular "freshie" at Milwaukee High, who recently moved from Roethe to West Linber, is visiting friends in this vicinity.

Mrs. Frank Lambert had as guests last week, Mrs. Fred Moser and Miss Ruth Schmale.

The H. Krowl family has rented the house of Mrs. Rice.

Thomas MacBeth, who recently moved into our neighborhood, was called in the last draft.

Mrs. A. W. Myers spent Sunday in Portland visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. Robinson, who recently purchased the J. E. Johnson place has returned after spending some time in Portland on account of illness.

A special Parent-Teacher meeting was held last Friday and election of officers for next year followed. They are: President, Mrs. Kennedy; vice-president, Mrs. Jacobs; secretary, Mrs. Moore; treasurer, Mrs. Brackett and librarian, Mrs. Altman.

Mr. and Mrs. Kinney spent Sunday with Mrs. Robertson, of this place.

Dr. Sellwood and wife, Mr. Livingstone and wife, motored out to Mrs. Cushing's home and spent Sunday.

Mrs. George Berry spent a portion of last week visiting her daughter, Mrs. John Berchard.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett have sold their home, and have moved to Portland.

The Ladies' Guild will hold their regular meeting at Grace Chapel with Mrs. R. H. Deter as president.

Mrs. Cushing and Mrs. Crawford spent an enjoyable evening at Reed College last Tuesday, attending a concert.

Mrs. John Berchard spent the weekend with her mother, Mrs. G. F. Berry.

The girls' climber class held its regular meeting at the home of their teacher, Mrs. A. G. Smith. A pleasant evening was passed in knitting sewing on the service flag and listening to an interesting story read by Mrs. Smith.

Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Haynes and family are preparing to move to Casadero, and the Browning family have purchased the Dr. Haynes property.

The Butler chicken ranch reports a thousand White Leghorns.

The death of Alex Jefferys on Tuesday of last week at the Good Samaritan hospital came as a surprise to his friends of this place. Mr. Jefferys owned a summer home at the Lodge.

Battle Ground, Washington, relatives motored out and spent Sunday with the G. W. Card family.

The death of Miss Elizabeth Cook, at the Oregon City hospital, after a brief illness, came as a shock to the community. The remains were sent to Cincinnati, where reside four sisters and six brothers, for burial. The six brothers acted as pall bearers and interment was in the family lot at that place. Miss Cook had resided here for three years, where resides a brother.

The Red Cross drive is progressing with marked success. The quota was filled by Tuesday.

Howard Truscott made a business trip to Salem last week.

The Schab family are moving into their new home, which formerly was the Bartlett place.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Apple and family have returned to Oregon after spending the winter in Cincinnati, Ohio. They say Jennings Lodge certainly "looks good" after an Eastern winter.

The school is preparing an interesting program for the last day, which will be May 31.

PARIS, May 21.—M. Duval, who was director of the suppressed Germanophile newspaper Bonnet Rouge, was condemned to death today by court martial for treason.

The six other defendants were sentenced to imprisonment for terms ranging from two to ten years.

HELP IN 50-50 WHEAT PROGRAM

Thousands of Retail Grocers Support Food Administration Rules.

SIGN PLEDGE VOLUNTARILY.

New Wheat Saving Program Demanded — Allied Food Shortage Increases—America Must Feed Fighters.

Explaining the United States Food Administration's new 50-50 wheat regulations is a war time task the American grocer has gladly shouldered.

Each flour customer is now required to buy one pound of cereal substitute for every pound of wheat flour.

A wide variety of substitutes has been provided: Cornmeal, corn flour, edible cornstarch, hominy, corn grits, barley flour, potato flour, sweet potato flour, soy bean flour, Feterita flour and meals, rice, rice flour, oatmeal, rolled oats and buckwheat flour.

Graham and whole wheat flour constitute an exception to the national regulation. Either of these commodities may be sold at the ratio of three pounds to five pounds of wheat flour.

Mixed flours form another exception. Where any flour contains 50 per cent, or less of wheat it may be sold without any substitutes.

Where the flour is mixed at the rate of 90 per cent wheat and 10 per cent of other ingredients an additional 20 per cent of substitutes must be purchased by the consumer.

Where necessity is shown specially prepared infant's and invalid's food containing flour may be sold.

That the approved substitutes may be assorted in a fact many grocers and housewives overlooked for a time. For instance, if a customer wishes to buy a 24 pound sack of flour the necessary substitutes might be assorted as follows: Cornmeal, 8 pounds; corn grits, 4 pounds; rice, 4 pounds; buckwheat, 2 pounds; cornstarch, 1 pound; hominy, 2 pounds; rolled oats, 3 pounds.

None of the substitutes should be considered as a waste purchase. There are many household uses for each. The eight pounds of cornmeal can be made into cornbread, corn muffins or used in the baking of wheat bread.

Cornstarch is useful in making custard, thickening gravy or may be used in cake baking. Corn grits fried like mush forms a delicious dish, or it may be used in baking corn bread. Rolled oats are used largely as breakfast porridge or in oatmeal cookies or in making muffins.

Buckwheat flour may be used in bread making, forming an excellent substitute for one-quarter of the wheat flour, but is especially choice in the form of buckwheat cakes for breakfast.

With 11 wheatless meals needed each week in America to provide enough wheat for the allies, the Food Administration believes the substitutes will all be used to advantage.

Appraisers for the estate of John Watchman, deceased, were appointed Monday in the persons of G. W. Owings, D. W. Shrock, and Oscar Simpkins.

And as you might well imagine, the kiddies like it, except the last cold dash that the doctor slyly engineers by quickly transferring the supply pipe into a bucket of cold water—for hygienic effect.

And what a blessing it is to these meek, tortured people, who for months have been without all of life's comforts and most of life's necessities, to be ministered to in this fashion.

It is perhaps understandable to them that "les Americains" out of sheer pity might offer them that meager thing that civilization calls "charity." But to be clothed, fed, sheltered and cheered as they have been by our Red Cross is more than they can understand.

For they have seen a great miracle grow out of the darkest pit of human experience. They have seen a bright light out of which has stepped the ministering angel who has taught them to smile again. They are no longer sick. They are no longer cold or hungry, and now, wonder of wonders, this same good friend has contrived in some magic way—within the sound of the guns—to give them—baths.

Mary Foster, of the Sunnyside district, was examined by county physicians and committed to the state hospital Saturday afternoon.

A marriage license was issued Saturday to Taylor Elmer West, of 10th and Division streets, and Miss Marie Agnes Bell.

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmitin (double strength), and add to it 1/4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Any one who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.—Huntley Drug Co.—Adv.

The first district in Clackamas county to complete its Red Cross quota, and it is thought the first district in the state, reported an over-subscription of 116 per cent today, two days before the drive officially opened. This is Marquam district situated in the southern part of the county.

And this is not the end of Red Cross work in that district. The committee states it will be able to raise more contributions next week.

The committee which put over this enviable record is captained by Rev. J. F. Coleman, with J. L. Jones, E. B. Albright, W. E. Harman, C. W. Birtchett, and T. C. Bentley as lieutenants.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The railroad administration has approved expenditures of $937,561,318 by the railroads this year.

Most of this will go to the Eastern lines, where war traffic is heaviest. While nearly $250,000,000 was clipped from what the roads said they needed, the authorization is nearly three times that of any year of the last three.

The largest portion will be $497,686,000 for equipment.

The New York Central was allotted the biggest amount, $70,000,000, while other large assignments were: Pennsylvania, east $64,000,000; Pennsylvania, west $48,000,000; Baltimore & Ohio, $43,000,000; Santa Fe, $41,000,000; Union Pacific, $30,000,000; Southern Pacific, $29,000,000; Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, $14,199,000.

FORD CAR BRINGS A SHOWER BATH EVERY AFTERNOON

Babies Grow Whiter as Doctor and Nurse Serve Daily Baths From Door to Door.

"Good morning. We have come to give the children their bath," this, of course, said in good French. Then from off the motor car slides a portable shower bath, carried into the house by doctor and nurse.

For the next half-hour that little cottage boasts of a bathroom in active service, for when the water is heated the blessing of a warm, clean shower pumped by the doctor falls on the head of Young France, while the nurse scrubs religiously and the darkening water bears witness of a whiter, cleaner child.

What if some of his dreams didn't come true? They couldn't all come true. And so, with a little sigh she turned back to the letter.

"Dy know," it went on, "that it's only the thought of you, and our cabin the rocks above the lake with the little workshop behind, that gives me any courage at all. Well it surely does; and it's the only thing, sometimes, when I come in feeling down-hearted and blue, that makes me put out the gas in the usual way."

She laid down the letter, and again looked out toward Wilder's ledge where they were cutting. It was an iridescent day, and the snow glittered blue-white in the sunshine. The jagged rocks of the ledge showed deep purple above the white fields, zig-zagged by dark rail fences.

Even as she looked, one of the great pines on the top of the ledge seemed to topple and disappear.

"So that's the end of another dream," she thought, with a choking sensation in her throat. And she reached for her handkerchief.

There was a hollow crunch of footsteps on the front porch. The front door banged, her own burst open. And there stood Jim.

In the instant before he dashed across the room and caught her up, she noticed his new fur coat and city-cut clothes.

"I sold the patents," he shouted, "to Westinghouse. Six thousand and royalties," he added, jubilantly.

An hour later, her eyes shining, too, her face moist, and her breath a little choked, she said: "Jim, dear, they're cutting off the timber on Wilder's ledge."

"Yes," said Jim, "to build our cabin. It's Langley's ledge, now, dear. Here's the deed."

THE CABIN

By NEWTON LAWRENCE.

"Old Wilder's cutting timber on the ledge," the big voice of Doctor Frost boomed from the hallway, and the trend of his great lumberman's boots shook the frail New Hampshire farmhouse.

Carroll Larue, wrapped in a patchwork quilt, in an armchair by the window, did not look up when he entered, or answer his cheery: "How's the little patient, this cold morning?"

His bit of gossip about old Wilder cutting timber, had brought two dull red patches into her pale cheeks, and she feared to meet the doctor's kindly, piercing eyes. "Could it be," she asked herself, "that he knew—that he knew, how she and Jim had planned to build their house among the pines on that ledge, when Jim got his patents—and sold them?"

So she stared at the glass of potash and water, covered with a saucer, on the window sill, and her mother answered for her: "She's just the same, doctor. Gargles her throat with potash, and takes the tonic you left for her. But she doesn't take any interest. Are you sure, doctor, that it's not—that it isn't—?"

"Consumption! Bah!" snorted the doctor. "There's just one thing more than this influenza that's the matter with her, and that's— Well, it's psychological. Not a case for a pathologist at all," and he pulled up a chair beside her.

From the corners of her eyes, Carroll saw his huge bulk in his shaggy fur coat settled into the chair. The coat and his beard were frosty, where his breath had condensed and frozen.

"Here you are, young lady," he announced, brusquely, and slipped a thermometer between her lips. "Smoke that for a while, and listen to me."

"You and Jim Langley were both born on Christmas day twenty-two years ago. And I've known you both just that long. There isn't a likelier girl than you in Caremont county; but Jim, well, he's a ne'er-do-well, a dreamer. He lost his job at the electric company for wasting the company's time on his fool inventions and such. You know more about that than I do, because you worked in Mr. Thompson's office and earned more money. I'll bet, than he did in the shop."

"But now, because Jim's gone off to the city on a wild-goose chase, most likely, there's no use losing your grip on yourself, little girl, and moping."

The girl said nothing, but shook her head slowly, and looked out across the snow-covered fields toward the dark fringe of pines on Wilder's ledge.

Later she watched the doctor's cutter disappear down the road. Then she crossed the room to a writing desk, and took out a letter—Jim's last.

It was written in New York, and there was the picture of a hotel on the envelope. It began:

"Dearest Carroll: They won't take any interest in my invention. And I'm almost discouraged. I can't manage to see anyone in the big electric companies who has authority to buy my direct-current converter, if they wanted it. They all say, 'we'll investigate, and let you know, Mr. Langley.'"

"It's six weeks now, but I'll stay until the converter's marketed, if it's before. What's the use coming back before? I couldn't get a job paying enough for us both to live on—even if we didn't build the cabin on Wilder's ledge by the lake. And I simply won't have you working for that Thompson after we're married."

If Jim could only understand, she thought, looking up from the letter, that it was he with his dreams and fancies, his imagination that she wanted. What if they did call him a ne'er-do-well? What if he was? She wanted him.

What if some of his dreams didn't come true? They couldn't all come true. And so, with a little sigh she turned back to the letter.

"Dy know," it went on, "that it's only the thought of you, and our cabin the rocks above the lake with the little workshop behind, that gives me any courage at all. Well it surely does; and it's the only thing, sometimes, when I come in feeling down-hearted and blue, that makes me put out the gas in the usual way."

She laid down the letter, and again looked out toward Wilder's ledge where they were cutting. It was an iridescent day, and the snow glittered blue-white in the sunshine. The jagged rocks of the ledge showed deep purple above the white fields, zig-zagged by dark rail fences.

GRADE SCHOOLS TO ENTERTAIN. In the I. O. O. F. hall, Saturday evening, the Sandy grade schools will present the opera, "Boy Blue." The proceeds are to go to the Red Cross. Teachers and children are working hard to make this a success and you may be assured that you will enjoy every minute of it Saturday evening, 8:30, I. O. O. F. hall.

LOYALTY LEAGUE MEETS. The Loyalty league held a good meeting last Saturday evening. Although there was no speaker scheduled for the evening, the audience enjoyed the talks made by John Revenus, Miss Angela Canning, Rev. Dubberfuhr and Mr. Brehaut. The children of the Lutheran school sang two choruses and Dorothy Esson sang "Keep the Home Fires Burning" with the audience coming in strong on the chorus. Miss Harriet Kelly, of Portland, was well received in two solos. By motion of the members, the league will meet the first and third Fridays of each month. Keep the date in mind and come out. There will be something good each time.

FOUR CELEBRATE AT MARMOT. Adolf Aschoff, aged 63, his son Ernest, age 42, grandson, age 7 and L. M. Urison, age 62, celebrated their joint birthdays at Aschoff's mountain home at Marmot, last Sunday, with a royal feast, one of the features of which was a mammoth birthday cake, two feet across, which bore the initials of the four. The invited guests were, Ernest Aschoff and family, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Aschoff, Wm. Ward and wife, of Portland, P. R. Meinig and daughters, Gertrude and Frances, Otto Aschoff, Mrs. Emma Thomas and children, Maxine and Clifford, Florence and Edna Bramhall, of Troutdale, H. Helms and family, A. Bell, Robt. Reidron, Anna and Isabel Gilbert, of Portland, Barney Edwards, A. D. Edwards and son, Lemnis. Mr. Aschoff's children presented him with a beautiful gold watch.

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES. On May 30th, 10:30 a. m., the Lutheran church will have a special service in compliance with our president's wish and proclamation that all his fellow citizens assemble on that day in their respective churches to worship the Lord. This service will be conducted in English and a collection will be taken for the army and navy. The pastor extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend.

JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET. The Juniors of the Sandy high entertained the seniors most royally last Friday evening with a banquet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Ganger at Bull Run. The place cards were dainty hand painted favors, done by Miss Mladys Mitchell. Music and games filled the evening.

CHERRYVILLE BOY PASSES. This community was shocked to hear of the death of Wm. Allen, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. "Billy" Allen, of Cherryville. "Sammy" as he was affectionately called by everyone, took sick a week ago last Saturday and Friday it was decided to take him to the Good Samaritan hospital. He was operated on at midnight and rallied from the operation. For a time it seemed that science and skill would win but death came at 3:00 o'clock Sunday morning, the cause being appendicitis and tuberculosis of the stomach.

He was thirteen years old and had lived in Oregon ten years. He attended the Sandy school for several years and four of his former play mates acted as pall bearers—Alfred Meinig, Fred Junker, Carl Laundree and Ruben Hoffman. W. J. Wirtz conducted the services and several appropriate songs were sung by kind friends and neighbors. He leaves, besides his father and mother, two brothers. The hearts of the community are with them in their sorrow.

TOKIO, May 21.—Aroused by the Japanese negotiations with China 2000 Chinese students have returned to China within the past 10 days. A majority of the 3000 remaining here plan to follow.
