MARKET REPORT

During the past few days oggs have gone from 40 cents to 46 cents. This is due to the high price of feed and the poultry fanciers do not believe this price is too high, with the prevailing prices of all feeds for poultry.

Cherries are still in the market in large quantities. The Kentish are retailing at four cents; the Royal Anne, six cents, and the Black Republican the same. All are of exceptionally fine quality at the Brady Mercantile Company's store where the prices are

Green and yellow string beans are now coming into the market. The prices are ranging from 15 cents to two pounds for 25 cents.

The prospect for a large tomato crop is encouraging. The vines are laden with green tomatoes, and the prices will no doubt be satisfactory to the housewives who are planning on making their catsup and other pickles

The cabbage has been somewhat discouraging to many growers in the county. The worst pest that has been found with the plants is a worm that is making a deadly attack on the roots. Many growers have tried to rid their plants of the pests, and some have succeeded in doing so without damage to the plants, while other farmers have been forced to remove the entire plant from the ground and place other products in their stead.

BESSIE L. NOAH CHARGES SPOUSE WITH CRUELTIES

Brief was the matrimonial bliss of one Bessie L. Noah, if her complaint for divorce filed Saturday can be taken as the facts. She was married to Fred E. Noah in Salem, in June of 1912. and before the end of the nuptial year. almost on the heels of the honeymoon tour, in fact, he commenced to mistreat his bride. In September, the complaint says, he started with a course of nagging and treatment which made her life miserable, and to cap the deal, she charges that he was arrested in Sacramento for unlawful cohabitation with another woman, thus making it impossible for her to further live with . him as his wife Besides the decree of divorce, she prays the court to allow her the use of her maiden name of Bessie L. Balcome.

HOW OLD IS LONDON TOWN?

Notwithstanding Antiquity of British Metropolis Many Great Buildings Are Modern.

It is surprising, when we think of the age of London, and think of the tower which William the Conqueror built; of the ancient abbey; of the Norman church; of St. Bartholomew's, how many of London's most prominent buildings are less than a hundred years old, and how many of them are quite recent structures, observes a writer in London Tit-Bits,

Of all the buildings which flank Whitehall only the Horse Guards, the Banquet hall and the Old Admiralty existed a hundred years ago. The government offices are all new.

Within living memory the house of parliament, the Thames embankment and all its flanking buildings, St. Thomas' hospital, the National gallery, South Kensington museum, the Tate gallery, the law courts, all the big hotels and even the present Mansion house have been built, whilst nearly mercial offices in the city are new, they stand are very old.

A hundred years ago there was no High Holborn, no Shaftesbury avenue, no Charing Cross road, no Regent treet-or, at most, it was just in the making-and no Trafalgar square. Kingsway and Aldwych are streets of yesterday.

Moreover, such great centers of population as Putney and Islington and Hampstead and Edmonton were little outlying villages quite disconnected with London, whilst West Ham and names, and places like Shepherd's Bush and Wormwood Scrubs might .$4.50 tance they represented. A century $3.75 ago, too, the railroad stations which

We wonder if this opinion is shared by others. It does not mean, of course, that ninety-nine people out of a hundred are deeply unhappy. That would be absurd. But there is no doubt that a great many people are quite unhappy a good deal of the time, perhaps not half the time, but enough rather to cloud their lives.

We should like to know the opinion of physicians generally. More and more people go to the doctors to tell them their troubles. The physician of today takes the place of the confessional of yesterday.

Then, too, there is the new application of psychology to the field of medicine—the so-called psycho-analysis, which is so rapidly taking its place as an important part, literally, of the medical pharmacopoela. This new science has given a wonderful insight into our sub-conscious selves and reyeals how far that sub-conscious self all the banks and great piles of com- really dominates our lives and determines the amount of happiness which although the thoroughfares in which we really get out of this confused welter of existence.
