The Home Folks' Concert with the Gladstone orchestra, was a pleasing feature of the afternoon program. Following them appeared Rev. H. V. Adams, who spoke on character topics. His lecture, "Grapes of Gold," which he was scheduled to deliver, was replaced by "You Will if You Can," another masterpiece which pointed out the road to success.

A four o'clock concert was given by the Royal Hawailan Quintette, a troupe of musicians who have traveled from coast to coast on vaudeville and chautaugua circuits. Their especial hits were made with the steel-quitar pieces. One of the company, Joseph Kekuku, is said to be the originator of this method which has become popular. Two ukeleles, two guitars, and the steel guitar prises the instruments handled boys, who sang and played to an ap-
