

DOCTOR FITTED FOR LEADER

Much in Knowledge of Medicine to Equip Man for High Public Service.

There is much in the knowledge of medicine to fit a man for the high calling of lawyer and leader of the people, says Dr. Frederick Peterson, in the Century. He continues:

"To reach the goal of national health, the physician's accumulated knowledge and experience must be brought to bear upon the laws which relate to fit marriages, to housing and the food supply, to education, occupations, recreations, hygiene and sanitation, to contagious diseases, alcoholism, poverty and crime; in short, upon every law which relates directly or indirectly to the health and well-being of the people. His interest reaches into the depths of sociology, biology and philosophy, to the relations between persons and groups, between nations and races. The interests of medicine are fixed only by the boundaries of life itself. When the great state, with its great free municipalities is at length established, when war and poverty and disease and unemployment, as we know them, have been banished to the vast rubbish heap of man's outgrown ignorance and folly, it may be that the physicians of that noble time will be expected to frame wise laws not only to insure individual health but to prevent the disease to which the organism of the state, the body politic, has in all earlier social stages been subject."

WOMEN DRIVE MOTOR TRUCKS

Not So Dressy as Some Jobs, but It's Healthful, According to One of Them.

To release skilled mechanics for other work and thus give some help in the war, there are seven girls at one motor factory whose daily tasks consist in driving newly finished cars from the factory to the shipping dock.

And the girls won't trade jobs now for any of the purely feminine pursuits, says the Washington Times. They get greasy and dirty—they have had to throw away cosmetics and powder puffs because they are futile—but still they like the job and they all say they would not trade it for a place at the kitchen sink or on the firing end of a sewing machine.

"It's a much better job than being a department-store detective," Mrs. Lotta Dupuis, who formerly tripped shoplifters and sneak thieves in a downtown store, says. "Of course it isn't so dressy, but it's healthier and I like it better. Also I can make more money for the support of my three kiddies."

Mrs. Wanda Ludeman backs up Mrs. Dupuis. She formerly was a government operative in rounding up violators of the Harrison narcotic law. "I took the job because I wanted to help the government, and every woman who does one man's work releases a man for the firing line," said Mrs. Ludeman.

The Modern Way.

The conversation in the lobby of a Washington hotel turned to the subject of modern methods when a little story along that line was contributed by Congressman Claude Kitchin of North Carolina.

Some time ago a young man became enamored of a beautiful girl, and after a courtship of some months he mastered sufficient courage to tell her of his great love.

"Tonight," said he as they sat one evening in the alighting gloom of the veranda, "I am going to your father and ask for your hand in marriage."

"That is very fine, Harry," the pretty one replied, "but don't be so old-fashioned."

"Old-fashioned," returned the lover, thoughtfully. "I don't quite understand."

"Don't ask him," was the prompt explanation of the girl. "Tell him."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Welsh Intermarrying.

A remarkable instance of Welsh family intermarrying is given in a quaint chronicle of local events kept by one Peter Roberts, notary public, of St. Asaph, who died in 1646. He wrote: "Upon Saturday evening, the xxvith day of Novr., 1624, Thomas Mostyn, Esq., and Gwen Parria, widow, the late wife of the late revd. father in God, Richard Parria, late Lord Bishop of St. Asaph, deceased, were married; and also William Mostyn, gent, son and heir apparent of the said Thomas Mostyn, and one Anne Parria, one of the younger daughters of the said late Lord Bishop, were likewise married the day and year aforesaid; and Richard Parria, son and heir of the said late Lord Bishop, and Marie Mostyn, third daughter of the said Thomas Mostyn, were then married."

Lusty Old Age.

What time of life can be compared to the time of lusty old age? Does white hair betoken falling powers? Nay, no more than the snow that crowns the giant old pine betokens any weakness or decay of the tree. The head and the hairs of our coming Redeemer shall be "white like wool, as white as snow." Herein is the mystery of the strength of old age.

As is a lusty tree, so is a lusty old man. He knoweth the secrets of heaven and earth, and he beareth fruit to the last. He dieth not easily, but like a great oak, whose roots go deep into the earth; he is laid low only by a mighty enticement of nature.

Boy Waved Flag at U-Boat Firing on Tug

Jack Ainsleigh, a ten-year-old boy, climbed the mast of the barge Lansford while the German U-boats off the Massachusetts coast was firing on it and the Lehigh Valley Railroad tug which was towing it, and tearing the Stars and Stripes from the mast waved the flag at the German. He is shown here with his brother shortly after he landed safe and sound.

ON PUTTING THINGS OFF

There Are Times When Waiting a Little While Helps a Whole Lot.

"Procrastination never got anybody anywhere, but," said Mr. Gratebar, "there are times when putting things off a bit helps a lot, as, for instance, in the matter of answering certain letters."

"I get once in a while a letter that is cross, ill tempered, sarcastic or that maybe sets up some proposition that the writer himself would have known wouldn't hold water if he had stopped to think about it."

"Now, my natural inclination would be to answer that letter right away. I could shoot his proposition full of holes easily and make it look foolish. His sarcasm I could answer much more biting. But what I do now in my somewhat riper years is to smile and say to myself:

"What's the use?" "What I do now before answering such a letter is to wait a day, to sleep on it."

"There's a habit that it would be worth any man's while to cultivate. Sleeping on it will iron the wrinkles out of any sort of trouble, solve for us any problem; it soothes and clarifies. It brings back our courage and our sense of humor. And then, in the morning, when I come to answer that letter I answer it in a spirit that makes not an enemy but a friend."

"This sort of putting things off I don't call procrastination it is just waiting a little to give all hard feeling time for evaporation."

SURE CURE FOR INSOMNIA

Eat Pint of Peanuts and Drink Three Glasses of Milk Before Retiring.

Recently a friend who had heard that I sometimes suffer from insomnia told me of a sure cure. "Eat a pint of peanuts and drink two or three glasses of milk before going to bed," said he, "and I'll warrant you'll be asleep within half an hour." I did as he suggested, and now for the benefit of others who may be afflicted with insomnia I feel it my duty to report what happened, so far as I am able to recall the details.

First, let me say my friend was right. I did go to sleep very soon after my retirement. Then a friend with his head under his arm came along and asked me if I wanted to buy his feet. I was negotiating with him when the dragon on which I was riding slipped out of his skin and left me floating in midair. While I was considering how I should get down, a bull with two heads peered over the edge of the wall and said he would haul me up if I would first climb up and rig a windlass for him. So as I was sliding down the mountainside the brakeman came in, and I asked him when the train would reach my station.

"We passed your station over 400 years ago," he said, calmly, folding the train up and slipping it into his vest pocket.

At this juncture the clown bounded into the ring and pulled the centerpole out of the ground, lifting the tent and all the people in it up, up, while I stood on the earth below watching myself go out of sight among the clouds above. Then I awoke, and found I had been asleep almost ten minutes.—H. B.

Making Them Better Americans

Believing Americans in the trenches will be best backed up by healthy Americans at home, the National Security League has inaugurated a system of giving men and girls confined in offices ten minutes exercise on the roofs of buildings where they are employed. These girls of the New York State Industrial Commission in New York City had the pleasure of taking their exercise three times a week atop a twenty-two-story building. There they got better t-b than they found in the dusty streets.
