

PERTINENT POINTS FOR FARMERS

By R. G. Scott, County Agent

ARE YOU A MIDDLEMAN?

Do you stand as a middleman between your cows and the feed dealer? Do you turn over your cream check each month to the feed store? Why not grow your own feed and be the ultimate consumer of the profit from your cows, instead of passing it along to some one else. A silo will help.

FUTURE OF DAIRY INDUSTRY

It has been an open question with dairymen this past year whether their cows were supporting them, or they were supporting their cows. Working sixteen or more hours a day for seven days a week, and then to find at the end of the month that you have paid out more for feed than your cream check comes to, is not one of the pleasant experiences of life. With hay somewhere around the $30 mark, and bran and shorts noticeable for their shortness, with substitutes of unknown value, in their place, it is time for dairymen to consider what the future of the dairy industry may be.

A careful analysis of the whole situation shows the following facts. In Europe dairy cows have diminished fully one-half, possibly to one-third of the number before the war.

On the Pacific Coast—owing to high prices for beef and a two years shortage of feed, in addition to high wages—there has been an unprecedented movement of dairy cows and dairy calves to the Union Stock Yards. Meantime the population of Portland is increasing with the expansion of the war industries. It becomes plain that there will be a shortage of milk in the near future.

Another thing to consider is the educational campaign being carried on by the department of Agriculture as to the food value of milk. Milk is the most necessary food we have, not only for children, but for adults.

A great effort is being made to induce people to use more milk and milk products. Thus we shall see an increased demand and a lessened supply—with the inevitable result—higher prices.

These being the plain facts, it will be the part of wisdom to keep the good cows and sell the poor producers. If you don't know which these are, join the Cow Testing Association, or buy a set of dairy scales and weigh the milk regularly, two days out of each month, sending a sample of each cow's milk to the creamery to be tested three or four times a year. If your cows aren't paying their way, make room for some that will. Remember a good dairy herd can't be built up in a year or two, and if you have a good herd, don't sacrifice it—Put up a silo—grow your own feed—and you will soon be able to join the Limit Club and loan your money to Uncle Sam.

When a heifer first comes fresh, be sure to be on hand, and take the calf away before she has even seen it. In carrying it, take care to smear your coat and overalls well with the wet calf. Then go back to the new mother and pet her. When the time comes milk her, and bossy, thinking you are her calf, will lick your coat and let you strip her. And always afterward she will fight for you, and come at your call, and her own calf will be an utter stranger to her after a few weeks.

The writer has never tried this out, but it sounds as if it might work. It would pay to test it out, because this above mentioned breeder claims that owing to the gentleness of the cows under this treatment, you get a great deal more butterfat the first two months.

CANADA THISTLE

This weedy pest is among plants what the Kaiser is among men—it wants to own the earth. Leave it alone and in a few years it will take your farm and your neighbors farm, too, and then the county. There is a law providing a fine of $10 to $100 for allowing this noxious weed to go to seed. The County Agent would like to keep track of every patch of Canada thistle in the county. So if you know of any that is not being controlled, drop me a line, and I will take it up with the owner.

How can you kill it? There is only one way, starve it to death. That means keep the top cut off level with the ground or below the surface. Don't allow a leaf to appear—without leaves it cannot keep the roots alive. If you have a large patch, plow it, and keep plowing it, or cultivating it so that no stalks may grow. It may be possible the second year to put in a cultivated crop like corn. But you must be on hand with the hoe all season. There is no easy way to kill the Canada thistle, just as there is no easy way to get the Kaiser. But like the big fight over there, this scrap with the Canada thistle is a fight for Liberty, for the right of good crops to grow on your land and that of your neighbors.

Women Electricians Equal to Men, Says Chief Engineer of Waldorf-Astoria

Chief Engineer E. C. Bingham, in charge of the immense electrical plant of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City, has employed several girls as assistants because his men have been drafted. "I am sorry I did not know about them before," he said. "They are equal to any men I have had."

Premium on Speeches Scheme All Reversed Conversation is Craved

Talk right up to her, Friend Husband, if you would keep her affection! Don't be a clam—or she may sue you for a divorce. Too much talk has landed many an unhappy married person in the Clackamas county divorce mill, but seldom it is that a man is sued for divorce because he talked too little. Elmer G. Wendling is charged by J. Beatrice Wedling, of Portland, of doing this very thing. In her divorce suit filed Wednesday, she claims that since April, 1916, her husband has not shown any willingness to carry on an ordinary conversation, but has constantly answered her questions in monosyllables all of which, together with alleged late hours and other breaches of domestic etiquette, has caused her much mental anguish and humiliation.

She asks to be awarded the minor part of the couple.

Mrs. Nettie Benson, former Portland milliner and dressmaker, charges Otis Benson with a gamut of indiscretions in her complaint filed yesterday. Her husband, she claims, squandered her own personal earnings following their marriage, then obtained a shipyard job at good pay, packed up his kids and left his wife and her daughter. Benson was formerly a Portland jeweler.

Sina A. Larsen charges Martin Larsen of falsely accusing her of many acts that a loving housewife would not do, and of hurling vile epithets at her on sundry occasions.

BOOKLETS DISTRIBUTER One million copies of a booklet entitled "France, Our Ally," have been distributed by the Y. M. C. A. among the American soldiers overseas. It sets forth French life and customs in a manner that gives the soldier a correct impression of France.

Army Officer Arrested For Supply Scandal

Captain Aubrey Vaughn, of the United States Army has made a confession in connection with charges in the raincoat supply scandal, and his testimony will be used in the prosecution of the contractors.

PUNCTURES ARE NO HINDRANCE TO SPEED COP

As a mild but rather cutting protest to the ceaseless energies of Speed Officer Meads, unknown miscreants sometime Saturday night scattered dozens of roof tacks at the door of Meads' "dougout" on the East 82nd street road. The tacks were carefully buried in the dust along the road adjoining the pavement at the exact point where the speed cop darts after his fleeing prey, and three punctures resulted before Officer Meads discovered the cause of the blow-outs.

Six arrests were made Saturday and Sunday. Abe Brugger and J. L. Beridge each paid $10 into the treasury Monday morning; J. Wilson and G. W. Soyter parted with $15 each; J. Nowall tendered $25 and Mrs. A. Smith was fined $20 for passing a car when another machine was approaching. As a result of this mixup one auto was crowded off into the ditch. All are Portland parties.

H. Hartley, also of Portland, was fined $50 and costs, for a little joyride party between Clackamas and Portland at 1:30 Sunday morning Hartley claimed he picked up his associates along the road, not knowing who they were. Speed Officer Meads found two partly empty bottles in the machine and two partly full couples in the rear seat of Hartley's car. Hartley averred he did not know any of his cargo but he was given a $50 jolt.
