MARINES KNOW NO PAIN WOUNDED YANK TAKES NO PAIN KILLER

Miss Frieda Goldsmith, an instructor at Reed College, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Goldsmith, of this city, is in receipt of the following from Dr. Bertha Stuart, a professor of physical education for women at Reed College, on leave of absence for service with the American Red Cross, now at Blots, France:

I am setting down to the hardest work I have to do over here, letter writing. I have fortified myself with a cup of coffee made on my sterno outfit—George Washington coffee which I begged, and jam which I likewise stole. You see to what straits I am driven. The letter writing is difficult for a number of reasons, and I am mentioning it because I am begging forgiveness for not having written more frequently. There are so many to whom I have wished to write, my girls, my majors, my seniors, my patients, and all the friends who have done so much for me. So, I beg of you all forgive the few letters, and write to me just the same, for it is not lack of thought of you, nor lack of interest in you, nor lack of appreciation for the kindnesses.

Our hospitals are filled with American wounded, they are wonderful. Never complaining, never grumbling; they speak of their wounds as scratches—such scratches—and talk but of getting back, and showing the Boche what the Americans are over here. One of the Marines objected to an anesthetic, giving as his reason that "the Marines knew no pain."

They are the finest sports that ever lived, and the French are filled with the finest of admiration for them and speak always with unlimited praise of what they have done and are doing. A French officer told me after the Chateau-Thierry affair that one American was worth five Englishmen. And then he added, "if they had had the experience they would excel even the French," and that is the greatest compliment in the world, for where the French are the Germans are held.

When the men came in after Chateau-Thierry, I went into a small ward where there were about thirty or forty men mostly gassed or with small wounds (comparatively); I stood in the door and looked in, and finally said, "Well, hello." You should have heard the reply; they just shouted "hello." An "honest to God American woman that speaks United States" is the most popular adjunct of a hospital, or anything else for that matter.

Often as we go along the streets talking the men will stop us, and say, "say, do you mind letting me hear that a minute," or something to that effect: "gosh, ain't that music," greeted us one night. They are very funny, poor things, but the depth of their homesickness will never be known except by one who has experienced it in the same circumstances. If you don't do anything else write letters to every one you know who is over here.

But to go back to the hospital, I leaned up against the bed while they began to recount experiences, and I have never spent such a thrilling hour for an hour went by before we knew it. I wish I might tell you some of the tales, but if written it would be cut out by the censor's sharp scissors, so what is the use? Anyhow they did wonders, and have kept on doing wonders, and we are so filled with pride we just swell whenever the French speak of them.

Nearly every morning now we stand and watch the long lines come in, and nearly every evening the equally long lines go out. And that is when it grips, for we have seen them return or others return, and the change is frightful. And they are so fine, these big, tall boys of ours; they arouse everyone's admiration; they are such splendid physical specimens, and then to see them afterwards peg legging painfully down the street, humping along on crutches, or leaning against a tree to rest, is heart breaking.

For myself I am well, and as happy as one could be. I am living in a fine French family; they have lost one son in the war and three weeks ago the other disappeared at Plemont where the Germans entirely surrounded the 4th French Cuirassiers and cut them off from their main army. The whole battalion was captured, we do not know whether dead or alive; no one remained to tell the story. The mother and father and sister rise at five each day and go to the church to pray, but as the days pass and there is no news they get whiter and sadder and more drawn looking. We try to be gay and to keep them from thinking about it, but it is pretty hard. But this is just one family, the same story is repeated in practically every other family in this town, and when it is the father, who is gone leaving a mother with four or five small children it is still sadder.

There were 450 American nurses dropped in on us today; they will not stay long but will be sent to hospitals all over France. We need nurses badly, and cannot understand why there are not more coming over.

I am sleepy and shall stop; if there are questions than any of you would ask write them and I shall be glad to answer them.

Many thanks for the money and clothes that have been sent, and here's hoping that more will be sent. We will promise to use them as we think you would wish.

REGISTRATION IN DRAFT EXCEEDS EXPECTATIONS

There were exactly 4,157 registrations in Clackamas county Thursday, according to final figures checked up by the local board Saturday evening. The government's estimate was 3,520, the county board figured an even 4,000, but the final showing exceeded all expectations.

The board has been busy since Friday morning, checking up outlying precincts and sorting over the cards according to selective service instructions. This task will be largely completed by Monday and definite instructions as to the mailing of questionnaires are hourly expected, according to Miss Harrington. Additional cards are coming in by every mail, from those who were away from the county at the time of registration and who registered in outside counties. These will continue to arrive for perhaps a week.

Edward Maxmeyer, a Clackamas county boy, has been inducted by the local board to Camp Pike, at Little Rock, Ark., to continue his studies in the officers' training camp. Advices were so received by the local board Saturday. Chester Douglas, another local registrant, left Saturday evening for Ft. McDowell, Cal. Albert Joseph Scott, an Oregon City registrant, has also been inducted for duty at Camp Pike.

Word was received Saturday from the local board at Anchorage, Alaska, that Herman Gerhardus, formerly a Clackamas county registrant, had been inducted into service from Alaska and would report at Liscum, Alaska, at once.

John Frederick Mason and John Frederick Erickson, two limited service men, have been called to the colors, and sent to the Clackamas board for clerical duties in connection with the new draft. From here they will probably be sent to Washington at a later date.

Lloyd Riches, formerly advertising manager of the Enterprise, has also been called to the colors and reported at Vancouver Saturday morning. He will probably be stationed in Portland.

INSANE ESCAPE HELD BY GOVERNMENT FOR DEPORTATION ORDERS

Word was received Tuesday noon that James Walsh, who escaped from the asylum at Cedro Wooley, Washington, and who was captured by Sheriff Wilson Sunday morning at Oswego, had been held by immigration authorities at the Washington institution on deportation orders. Just what Walsh is to be deported for is not known, but local officers were advised to hold him until government authorities would call for their man.

Walsh, who is a native of Ireland, was captured as a slacker suspect, as he had been hiding in the groves beyond Oswego for several days prior to his capture. He is 33 years of age and had no registration card. He finally confessed Monday morning that he had run away from Cedro Wooley, a few weeks ago, but did not give the officials any clue as to why he had been confined at that place. He was apparently rational, and it would not be surprising to learn that he is a man badly wanted by government officials.

Deputy Latourette took the matter up at once with Clarence Reames, special prosecutor at Seattle, who is looking up the man's record at the Washington institution.

SUIT TO FORECLOSE MORTGAGE

Adam Foshag has filed suit against U. G. Lonzworth to foreclose a chattel mortgage given in December 1917, covering a team of horses and a set of harness.

Husband Was Peevish Said Wife Was Crazy Subject For Asylum

In a peevish moment he told his wife that sometime when she was asleep he would hit her so hard she would never wake up. He further stated on several occasions that she was crazy and should be in an asylum. His wife, however, didn't feel that such statements were the sort that a loving husband should make, so she filed suit for divorce Monday. The plaintiff is Iva Cantril and her husband, Glen Cantril, is accused in her petition, of doing these things—and many others, which have rendered life burdensome.

OWNERS OF CARS OFFER THEM FOR MOTHER PARADE

A large number of owners of automobiles have offered their cars for the Mothers' parade to be held in Oregon City Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The parade starts promptly at 2:30, and a patriotic program will follow at the Liberty Temple. Among those donating cars Wednesday morning were L. Adams, McFarland Auto Co., Mayor Hackett, M. D. Latourette, W. B. Cook, William Hammond, E. L. Holman, John Leythwaite, E. E. Brodie, S. O. Dillman and Miller & Parker. A number of others are to be heard from. Those desiring to assist in making this parade a memorable one, and wish to donate the use of their automobiles may telephone the Liberty Temple, and the name registered.

There are a number of mothers and grandmothers, as well as great-grandmothers desiring to appear in the parade to show respect to their boy soldiers in France, who are unable to march, and they will be provided with automobiles. A division will be set aside for the wives of the soldiers, and their children.

George Bannon, of the Bannon & Company's store, announces he will present the mothers and wives with service flags to wear on their sleeves during the parade, and these may be secured by calling at the store.

Clackamas county is to be well represented in the parade. Canby is to be largely represented, as also is Molalla, West Linn, Willamette and Gladstone. It is probable that Milwaukie is to have a large delegation.

A number of features are to be introduced during the parade. A large number of the women and young ladies are to sing patriotic songs when marching down Main street.

Among the features will be the singing of a quartet composed of Maude Lageson, Miss Naomi Armstrong, Miss Flossie Blackburn and Miss Mable Morgan, four of the patriotic young ladies of Oregon City, several of whom have brothers in the service.

A second parade is to be given in the evening, this to start also at Thirteenth and Main street, and is in charge of Miss Dolly Pratt, chairman, Miss Alberta Dunn, Miss Marie Keck, Miss Hazel Farr and Miss Rose Justin. In the evening parade the Home Guards will march, and there will be automobiles decorated and a number of pleasing features, that are to be surprises.

Following the evening parade, these young women have arranged a program to be given at the Liberty Temple.

Business houses are to be decorated with national colors for this day, and the residences along the march will display the Stars and Stripes. Charles J. Hood has donated the use of his delivery truck for the evening parade, and Hogg Brothers furniture store has assisted in making a feature of the parade.

Slept Out In Yard Iron Bed So Torrid Vacation Is Hot One

STEVENS POINT, WIS., Sept. 16.—Because the iron bed was so hot he could not touch it and the bed clothing was nearly the same temperature, Superintendent and Mrs. H. C. Snyder, who were spending their vacation with relatives in Oskaloosa, Iowa, were forced to sleep out in the yard for four nights and during the day to remain in the shade. Mr. Snyder, who is a Soo official, says that it was 110 in the shade during his visit at Oskaloosa.

School children must have good eyesight to be efficient.

CARVER APPLICATION TO CROSS COUNTY ROAD STILL BEFORE BOARD

A continued hearing of the application of Stephen Carver to cross the county road at the Baker's Bridge, was held on the grounds yesterday, when the public service committee met with the railroad officials and members of the county court. The tax commissioners' findings were not made public and it is not known whether the petition was granted. Carver seeks to cross the Clackamas river at a point near the Baker's Bridge, and continue thence along the road for some distance toward Clear Creek. The commissioners and court are objecting to the crossing on the grounds that the public interests are not safeguarded. The hearing was held about a week ago and continued to give the commission an opportunity to go over the grounds with the parties.

WELCOME LETTER TELLS RELATIVES DR. CARLL MOORE IS UNINJURED

Mrs. Arthur Millin has received word from her nephew Dr. Carl Moore, this week, from France, saying he is well and in the midst of battle. Carl Moore's name appeared in the casualty list of a few days ago, and it was feared by relatives and friends of the young man that it was the nephew of Mrs. Millin and Mrs. L. L. Pickens. He is also the grandson of Mrs. Emma McDonald, of this city, one of the well known Oregon City pioneers. His father John Moore also resides here.

In a letter to his aunt received on Tuesday Moore tells of a large shell having fallen at his feet, but it failed to explode. Had it done so, Moore would have been instantly killed, he writes. He says while writing the letter he was dodging bullets, and that it was a terrible thing to be conversing with friends, and to return to the point a few minutes later to find but a few pieces of flesh remaining of their bodies. Relatives and friends of the young man are greatly relieved to hear of his safety. Moore is with the Heavy Artillery.

BIG TREES, PRIDE OF CHAUTAUQUA PARK ARE STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

H. E. Cross, owner of the Chautauqua park at Gladstone, while visiting his park a few days ago, was some-thing partly stripped of their bark, while several are practically ruined, and must be cut down. A number of these are three feet in diameter. The trees have been struck with lightning, and one of the trees bears the markings from the top to about 80 feet of the ground. The ground in places shows where the lightning struck, and is badly scorched. One of the trees stand about three feet from the new pavilion. Mr. Cross believes this damage was done during the lightning storm of several Sundays ago.

COUNTY JUDGE OFFICIATES AT ARMY WEDDING

Everett R. Newman, a soldier, home in Soda Springs, Idaho, was granted a license to wed M. Sophronia Shearer by Clerk Harrington Thursday. The olive drab lad and his intended immediately marched up to County Judge Anderson's office, where the ceremony was performed.

QUESTIONNAIRES TO GO OUT TODAY FOR RECENT REGISTRANTS

The gigantic task of mailing out questionnaires is to begin today, provided the local board has everything in shape to begin the work. Advices to this effect were received by the board today from the adjutant-general's office, instructing that the work begin Wednesday and that at least 10 per cent of the men between 19 and 36 be sent their questionnaires each day for the next nine days. The order also permits them to be sent out at a faster rate if possible to do so, but the figure placed is the estimate.

The board has been swamped with work since the registration, and may not be able to start the work until Thursday, although every effort will be made to mail out the required number on schedule.

CONRAD COCKERLINE LATE OF ESTACADA WOUNDED IN FRANCE

Mrs. Cockerline and daughter Miss Grace, who are temporarily making their home in Oregon City, while the latter is employed at the Huntley drug store, received a message from the war department last night notifying them of the serious wounding of their son and brother Conrad C. Cockerline, on the French battle front. The young man was a draftsman in this county, the family living near Estacada, and has been overseas some months.

LABOR HEAD TO GO EAST.

SALEM, OR., Sept. 16.—State Labor Commissioner O. P. Hoff has notified Governor Withycombe that he has appointed C. H. Gram, who will be Hoff's successor in office, to attend a conference of state labor agencies in Washington, D. C., September 30 and October 1, to consider plans of cooperation with federal authorities for application of factory and other labor laws.

Friday Looked Blue But Proved Lucky for Constable After All

Yesterday afternoon Constable Jack Frost condemned Friday, the 13th by all that is holy.

Today he is all smiles again and says it is not such an unlucky day after all.

Just as the worthy constable was getting ready to invest a $300 government reward in 4th Liberty Loan bonds, Jack received the sad news that the man upon whose head the reward rested, had escaped from custody by breaking out of the Multnomah county jail. The lad was Albert Kidder of West Linn, who robbed the West Linn postoffice some time ago and who was captured by and confessed to Mr. Frost, who turned the lad over to government authorities. When the lad pried his way out of the Multnomah county jail Thursday, he also pried Jack out of a neat check for $300. The sad news came Friday, the 13th.

But last night, Constable Jack, Chief of Police of West Linn, Frank Hamner and deputy police Elmer Garrison caught the boy in hiding in his father's barn in West Linn and Jack Frost is not cold any more and feels his part of the reward as good as safe in his pocket again.

Who Gets Reward? Wild Scramble On Everybody Seeks Bit

During the evening performance of the Barnum & Bailey circus in Portland recently two automobiles disappeared from the grounds, one belonging to Peter Jensen, of that city, and the other to the Foster-Kleiser Sign Painting Company of Portland. The Oregon City officers were immediately notified, as it was thought the automobile thieves were making their way toward the south. All, of course, "got busy," and well played their part of sleuths, but Mayor E. C. Hackett notified Officers Joyner and Frost that he had seen a stray car near New Era, standing along the roadway, without passengers. The officers immediately went in that direction, secured the automobile and brought it to the court house yard, where a lock was placed on the wheels. Later the owners from Portland appeared, and paid Joyner and Frost $16, but the laugh is now on Mayor Hackett, who had given the officers the "tip." The mayor says "the cigars are still coming."

When Peter Jensen was informed that his automobile had been found, and brought to Oregon City, he came to get his car, but refused to pay a reward for the recovery, claiming that he had his automobile insured against being stolen, and did not think it was "up to him" to pay for its recovery. The Oregon City officer, H. H. Hughes, did not agree with him, so he placed a still stronger chain around the wheels of the automobile, and held her tight here. The officer was determined to fight for his reward, as he had used plenty of gasoline in his own automobile in trying to locate the lost one, and he demanded the reward, and it was necessary to take it to court, and by so doing Hughes received $175, and the mailcarrier, who "put him wise," is to receive his reward from Mr. Hughes. Hughes says this man will get more than cigars, so Hazen Bernard will be the lucky man, as he is the mail carrier, who helped to play the part of a sluth.

No trace of the thieves have been found, but no doubt they have gone south.

Took Tainted Money Wife Resents Thrust She Was Humiliated

That she has been compelled to keep up her home, that she has been publicly humiliated by her husband, and that she has been wrongfully accused of having accepted "tainted money" are some of the allegations of Della F. Andersen filed against William Andersen in the circuit court Thursday. The Andersens are Portlanders and were married in 1907 in Washington. On one occasion, the wife claims, her husband took her into a leading Portland department store, and there informed the manager that he would no longer be responsible for her bills. Desertion is charged by Harold Earl Cushman against Bertha E. Cushman, the husband claiming his wife left their home in 1916, following a two year trial at domestic happiness.

SCHOOL TO OPEN IN OREGON CITY ON NEXT MONDAY

Another big drive starts next Monday, September 23. This time it is the school drive. At nine o'clock next Monday morning the bells will ring and the campaign will be on.

During the summer the buildings have been thoroughly overhauled and cleaned and the janitors are now putting on the finishing touches. At the Barclay building the school board had planned to repair the furnaces to make them hold out another year, but they were found to be in such bad condition that new furnaces were decided upon. The installation of these furnaces will be completed this week. At the Eastham school some much needed cement walk has been laid.

In the high school no increase in numbers is expected; a slight decrease will be no surprise. The new Man-Power law is sure to take many young men from the schools. Young men between the ages of 18 and 21 may not expect to remain long in school, no matter where they enter.

In the grades some increase in enrollment is expected. It is learned that no attempt will be made to classify high students before the first day of the term this year.

While there will be several new faces on the teaching corps, a majority of the teachers were here last year. Supt. R. W. Kirk, who was superintendent of the Corvallis city schools for seven years, is much pleased with school conditions here. He says it is a vital part of the patriotic duty of every citizen to rally to the support of the schools.

All three of the principals, W. L. Arant, J. R. Bowland, and N. W. Bowland will be in their places next Monday morning. "The schools are fortunate in retaining these men. The teaching corps will be as follows:

- R. W. Kirk, superintendent.
- High School: Principal, W. L. Arant, teachers' training. Miss Zoe Brown, domestic science. Miss Lydia Doolittle, domestic art. Mr. Luther A. King, manual training. Miss Elizabeth Lewis, Latin and English. Miss Lois McQuaid, English. Miss Georgia Prather, history. Miss Rose Price, English. Mr. Burr E. Tatro, commercial. Miss Evelyn Todd, mathematics. Miss Elizabeth Wagner, history and science. Mrs. Coy B. Woodard, science. Miss Burnice Zimmerman, commercial.
- Eastham School: N. W. Bowland, principal. Mrs. Eva Scott, Mrs. Gussie Hull, Mrs. Edith Landsdowne, Miss Jessie Perkins, Miss Erma Keene, Miss Jessie Bowland, Miss Lucile Roe, Miss Helen Purcell, Miss Esther Harris, Miss Agnes Harris.
- Barclay School: John R. Bowland, principal. Miss Lela Reed, Mrs. Gladys Hargreaves, Miss Grace Crooks, Miss Lillian Holsworth, Mrs. Stella G. Edwards, Miss Elfreda Epling, Miss Clara Wiewasiek, Mrs. Nettie Theroux, Miss Cordella Wiewasiek. Music Supervision, Miss Beatrice Kirkup.

THREE SEEK SEPERATION

L. Edward Thompson and Bernice M. Thompson were married April 17 of this year. On the morning of the 27th of the same month, Mrs. Thompson packed up her trunk and left for Los Angeles, Calif., with the curt announcement that she was never coming back.

L. Edward Thompson so alleges in his divorce suit filed Friday and asks that the matrimonial bonds be severed on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. Emma J. Besancon has brought suit against her husband Charles Besancon, charging that her husband cursed, swore at, and otherwise abused her, until life was rendered burdensome in the extreme. She asks $25 per month alimony and $50 attorney's fees. The parties are West Linn residents.
