FRANK SOLDAT SUES E. C. DYE ON LEGAL BILL

The case of Frank Soldat vs. E. C. Dye, was tried in the justice court Saturday. Soldat claimed he employed Dye to perfect an appeal in a case against the A B Junk & Hardware Co. of Portland, and to file a suit against M. Barde & Son, also of Portland, but that Dye refused to do so, and also claimed that defendant had collected in $60.78, and that Dye had refused to deliver over the money on demand. He also claimed he had paid Dye $21, which was sufficient for his services. Dye brought in a transcript from Portland, showing his work in the court there, and showed a pay order permitting him to collect the $60.78, but this Soldat claimed to be a forgery, although it was witnessed by two Y. W. C. A. secretaries of Portland. Dye claimed a settlement with Soldat for $45.78, and this was not denied by the plaintiff on cross examination. Dye claimed the whole point at issue was whether Soldat should give him a receipt, or not, and this was also admitted on cross-examination, by the plaintiff.

In spite of the testimony favoring the defendant, the jury returned a verdict over what Dye admitted, of $4.22, thus sticking nearly $20 costs on top of the other expenses.

CRUEL AND INHUMAN TREATMENT ALLEGED IN DIVORCE SUITS

Clara M. Shay entered suit against Thomas Shay on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment Friday. They were married in Astoria February 29, 1912, and she alleges that for the past year he has drunk intoxicating liquor to excess and also gambled. He drank so much that she was forced to leave him in October, 1917, she claims.

In the complaint she says she was forced to support herself and he demanded part of the money she earned. Owing to his treatment her health was broken and she asks a divorce and the right to resume her maiden name of Clara M. Halferty.

In the divorce suit of Minda A. Stapf vs. Joseph G. Stapf she alleges cruel and inhuman treatment and says that he cursed her and at one time in San Francisco when they were living in rooms he threatened to throw her out of the window and she was in constant fear of her life.

She claims that he has failed to support her and when she was called to Portland on account of the illness of her brother he refused to send her money to return to him and they have since lived apart.

They were married in Portland February 23, 1915, and she asks a divorce and the right to resume her maiden name of Minda A. Warner.

TWO DIVORCE SUITS ARE ENTERED MONDAY IN CIRCUIT COURT

Cruel and inhuman treatment is alleged in the divorce complaint of Olare Nerheim vs. Christian Nerheim, who were married in Norway January 23, 1902.

She alleges that he grew cold toward her and cursed her and told her that he would make it so uncomfortable for her that she would be forced to leave.

She claims that one night she went to lodge with another woman, he giving his consent, and she came home before 12 o'clock and he locked her out of the house and told her to climb in the window and after she got in he would not let her sleep in her usual bed.

There is one child of the couple, aged 15, which the plaintiff asks the custody of and a decree of divorce.

Jennie Robertson and F. M. Robertson were married in Oregon City in June, 1888, and in a divorce suit entered here Monday she alleges cruel and inhuman treatment. She claims that he found fault with her work and called her names and one time hit her on the ankle with a board, which caused her to have to stay in bed for several weeks.

There are four children of the couple of which the plaintiff asks the custody and $15 a month for the support of these. She alleges that he earns $200 a month.

Mr. Gilbert, Mrs. Dye spoke at the Methodist church Sunday evening outlining the plan for a Y. W. C. A. in Oregon City. At the close the congregation voiced its approval by most cordial and unexpected applause, and Mr. Gilbert followed with a strong commendatory address. Many lingered with suggestions and offers of assistance and invitations for other talks before schools and clubs of the city. Two national secretaries, Miss Maxwell and Miss Dennison, trained college women, will arrive next week to look into the entire subject of expense and maintenance, and if feasible plan for a drive in January. This week they are conducting a drive in Yakima. Flourishing Y. W. C. A.'s have recently been established at Salem, Astoria, Walla Walla, and other towns of the Northwest, wherever girls are engaged in industries.

EMERSON HOEYE DIES

A telegram was received from Brookline, New York, Tuesday morning by Dr. and Mrs. George Hoeye, announcing the death of their son, Emerson Hoeye, who died of diphtheria, and the remains are to be shipped to Oregon City, where funeral services will be held, and the interment will take place in the Hoeye family lot in the cemetery at Salem. The young man will be given a military burial.

Emerson Hoeye was one of the most popular boys of Clackamas county, entering the service when the call for young men and boys came from Uncle Sam. He was the youngest boy from the county having enlisted, and from the time he arrived at Goat Island, Cal., where he was in training, until transferred to the U. S. Transport Northern Pacific he was one of the most popular lads with his fellow seaman and the officers. He was rapidly promoted after being in the service, and at the time of his death he was apprentice second class quartermaster, and was looking forward with pleasure to the time when he would be advanced to one of the higher officers of the transport. Hoeye had just returned from his tenth trip overseas on the Northern Pacific, and the first heard from the lad after arriving was a telegram received from him telling that he was stricken with diphtheria and unable to write, but would like to see the mother and father, Dr. and Mrs. Hoeye, but owing to the distance knew this was impossible. This telegram arrived Tuesday morning, but Saturday the first news of his illness was sent his parents by the navy. It is not known how long the lad has suffered from the fatal disease.

Emerson Hoeye was born at Nelson, B. C., September 30, 1901, but has resided in Oregon City most of his life. He attended the Oregon City High School, and was a student of that institution for two years when enlisting in the navy, this being two years ago last March.

Besides his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Hoeye, of this city, the lad leaves the following sisters: Mrs. Beryl Ayer, of Salem; Mrs. Zella Tuston, of Alexandria Court, Portland; Mrs. Helen Flaney, of Seattle; his grandmother, Mrs. S. S. Rogers, of Salem; aunts, Mrs. Millie Reed, of Corvallis, and Mrs. Laura Moore, of Salem, also a cousin of Mrs. Hazel M. Neutgent, of Salem. He was the nephew of Clarence, Cecil and Clayton Rogers, of Portland.

When the death of Emerson Hoeye was known in Oregon City it cast a gloom over the entire city, as no boy was more popular here. A golden star is to be added to the High School flag in his honor, at the exercises to be held at the school building Wednesday afternoon to take place of the blue star that represented him while in service. Three other stars will be placed on the flag at the same time to represent other students who have recently passed away, or killed in action.
