Private Fred W. Lewenberger, H. Q. Co. 305, Infantry, 77 Division, A. E. F., Somewhere in France, October 22, 1918, writes his mother: I am feeling fine. We have been taking some great hikes and talk about your grass, I have seen just thousands of acres of it, but it's nothing like ours. I wish you could see the goats they have over here. They are milk goats, the brown kind like you use to tell us about. When we travel along the road we see French women out herding them for there is no fences in this country. Everything is high here. A fellow can't even buy a piece of candy. If you send anything for Christmas send some hard candy. We get everything else we need. We have our heavy woolen underwear already. I don't think it gets very cold here so a French girl tells me that can talk a little English. Meat is 50 cents per pound, cheese 70 cents and little white candles 12 cents apiece. Bread is the cheapest thing one can buy to eat.

I never saw so many motor trucks in all my life. Sometimes there is a thousand in one string, makes of all kinds. I will sure have a lot to tell you about over here when I get back. I am sending you a couple of handkerchiefs that I bought a month ago have carried them in my pocket as I didn't have time to send them to you. We are an awful long way from a town now.

Nov. 10, 1918. You see I have been transferred to the 77 division, which is now at the lines. I have been on the hike for the last three weeks and didn't have time to write. We have been right behind the last push the Americans made and I sure got to see what I wanted to see for a long time. I guess the Americans gave the dutch a "run for their money." It looks to me like this war will soon be over, at least I hope so. We are having good weather, but have had a lot of rain which made it muddy. The Germans sure thought they owned this country for they planted crops in all the ground. You ought to see the big cabbage patches all around here. They had to run off and leave it all, so we have a lot to eat.

Dec. 14, 1918. Well I have lots of time today to write, we are still in the same place, don't know how long we will stay, maybe all winter. All kinds of rumors going around to that effect. But a fellow can't never tell for orders change very often. I still feel fine, we are getting lots of eats at present, and have nothing to kick about, only that we are not on our way home. But guess there's no use to look for that until peace is signed. That may take a long time before those Dutchmen sign "peace."

If they ever start war again there won't be any more Germany. We are still drilling just the same as we did in the states. I suppose this is to keep us busy and limbered up. In this town of Antruville there is no barracks so we just live around in some of their barns. I have often wondered where all the people of France live. I have seen very few kids in any of these towns. They all seem to be old, frogs, and not very many of them.

The other day I ran across a fellow that went to Camp Lewis the same time I did. The funny part this Guy Cooper, has been dishing out feed to me for a month and I didn't know him 'till he said "Oregon." I asked what part. "Sandy" he said and his father and mother live at Lents. He went to Camp Kerney when Frank Mooney and Ed Roadarmel did. Boots Roadarmel was left at Camp Mills with others that had the mumps. He told me of many we know that were killed in the Aragonne woods, September 25th. One Charley Austin was shot the last day before the war stopped. He had charge of us from Oregon City to Camp Lewis. Cooper used to run the Bull Run butcher wagon, he knew everybody around Clackamas. We sat down and had a good talk you bet. Tell Morley I have a German pistol if I can get home with it.
