Preacher Is Humorist Bath Is Interrupted Boy Very Patriotic

Alfred, eight-year-old son of Rev. C. H. L. Chandler, is a patriotic youth. He has observed the men in uniform stand at salute whenever they hear the national hymn, and he followed the flag. The lad's father has a streak of real humor in his make-up, and the other night the boy was scheduled to take a bath, and after he had disrobed, his parent slipped over to the piano and started the "Star Spangled Banner." He played it through four times and then he heard a wall.

"Ma, make Dad stop playing, I want to take my bath." Mrs. Chandler peered into the bathroom and there was her son, clad in his birthday suit, standing at attention, but hoping that his father would cease.

OREGON CITY PEOPLE VISIT MANY PLACES ON EASTERN TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Caulfield have returned to Oregon City from their Eastern trip after having had a most enjoyable time, visiting many places of interest. Among the places visited was Chicago, where they were guests of Mrs. Caulfield's brother, Irving Phillips, and also her nephews and nieces. They also visited Santa Fe, inspected the Indian village and also visited the petrified forest, a most delightful sight, and also the "painted" desert. Mr. and Mrs. Caulfield say this is well named, for it has the appearance of a hand painted picture and is of rare beauty.

While in Arizona they visited Flagstaff, and also viewed the ruins of the cave-dwellers, and the grand canyon and Wanaa canyon were also among the places visited. After arriving in California, Los Angeles, Catalina Islands, Mount Lowe and San Francisco were among the places of interest visited.

Mr. and Mrs. Caulfield say although they have been through many beautiful states, visited many places of interest, but nothing compares with Oregon in their estimation, and are glad to be back in the little city by the falls, having been away six weeks.

SMALL BOY HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

Little John Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lewis, the former prominent realty dealer of Newberg, had a narrow escape from drowning in this city Monday morning while swimming with a number of companions in the Willamette river near the mouth of the Abernethy Creek. Had it not been for the timely arrival of his cousin, Max Myers, who is but 10 years of age, the same age as Lewis, who used presence of mind, the boy would have been drowned.

Lewis and Myers had slipped away from the home of the Myers' boy's mother, Mrs. Laura Williams, deciding to go in swimming. They had proceeded to the river bank, where with other companions, they had enjoyed bathing, Myers being an excellent swimmer, while the Lewis boy was learning. He had climbed upon a floating timber, and in some manner lost his balance, when he was precipitated into the water. The Myers boy was standing on the beach nearby, and seeing the top of his cousin's head bobbing up and down in the water, realized the danger of the lad, although other boys standing by did not offer any assistance, believing the boy could swim. Myers sprang into the water and swam toward the drowning boy. Placing Lewis' arm around his waist and tightly holding onto the now almost unconscious boy, he swam toward shore. After reaching shore both lads were breathless and the Lewis boy became unconscious for a short time.

The Myers boy in telling his mother of the accident said, "Mama, I was winded when I reached John's side, but I stayed with it and got him out."

John has had enough swimming for a time, and says he will not go in again while in Oregon City, for he believed that he would have drowned had it not been for the heroic efforts of his little cousin.

The Lewis child arrived here Sunday evening from Newberg for a brief visit with his aunt, Mrs. Laura Williams, who brought the child home with her. She, too, will see that there will be no more swimming acts such as that of Monday.
