In the genial warmth of the mid-day hours the steady advance of vegetation makes us forget we are living in a winter month till the frosty night reminds us that we are still in the first half of February and while basking in the sunshine or doing work that belongs to Spring, right pleasing is the thought that none of that glad time is spent but that "untouched the golden store doth lie."

The fruit trees are giving brighter promise day by day, while the logan berries about which grave fears were held are putting out the lushest of buds in all their portion below the

Population Possibilities

The housing committee of the Live Wires of the Commercial club is again in motion, this time in a more definite way, and there appears to be a strong probability that the outcome will be the actual construction of homes in Oregon City and an ultimate solution of the housing problem. The committee has $17,000 subscribed, and is asking for a total of $26,000 before starting operations, and as scores of business and professional men and property owners have not subscribed a dollar to date, it may reasonably be expected that the money will be forthcoming to guarantee the start of the plan.

The committee is entitled to high commendation from the people of the city for its efforts. The members have worked faithfully, with a broad view to the future of Oregon City, and they are rightfully entitled to the cooperation and support of not only the Commercial club but of the citizens generally.

If our information is correct, and we believe it is, Oregon City is going to suffer a disappointment from its federal census enumeration. On the basis of the school enumeration here, we ought to have a population of in excess of 7,000 in the city limits, but if the government census shows better than 6,500 we shall be surprised.

The suggestion that Oregon City may have a population of 25,000 within a few years is no idle dream. It is altogether practicable. When manufacturing concerns are forced to build hotels to house their employes and to establish branch factories in a near-by city, it is easily discernable that we are industrially top-heavy, and that the building of houses has not kept pace with out commercial expansion. It is high time we woke up.

Dr. Strickland Turns Physician For Wood Through With Dems

Dr. M. C. Strickland, born in the sunny south, with Democratic forebears, has forsaken the party. He has been a leader in the councils of the local Democracy and has twice been elected county coroner on the Democratic ticket.

The doctor is now wearing a Leonard Wood button with pride and on the wall of his private office is a card carrying with it a membership in the Leonard Wood club.

"I have had enough of this administration," explained Dr. Strickland. "We need a strong man at the head of this government, and General Wood is that man. He has the firmness and tact necessary in these critical times to stop the profiteers and to check the spread of radicalism. He is head and shoulders above any other man suggested for the presidency."

MOLALLA SECTION IS TRYING TO SOLVE PROBLEMS OF MARKET

At Molalla last Saturday R. G. Scott, county agent, met the poultry keepers at a meeting called for the purpose of forming an association to ship the eggs produced in the Molalla section to eastern markets through the state poultry producers' association. They will hold another meeting Thursday, February 13, to complete the organization.

Traffic In War Stamps No Crime

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Violation of an order of the secretary of the treasury is not a criminal offense, United States Judge C. M. Hough declared in federal district court yesterday, directing the jury to find not guilty several persons charged with trafficking in war saving stamps.

MONEY FOR VETERANS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Every man serving in the war would get a world war veteran bond, worth $1 for every day in service and bearing interest at 4 3/4 per cent, under a bill introduced yesterday by Representative Osborne, republican, California.

The issue would be limited to $1,500,000,000.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Frank A. Vanderlip, who first called attention to Europe's serious economic decline nine months ago, declared in a statement today that the foreign exchange situation can be righted and Europe can be put on her feet only if the Europeans will go back to work. But Europe can only do this, he said, if America will supply her food and raw materials.

The former head of the famous National City bank of New York, added that America can easily undertake the work of rehabilitation. The first step, he said, was the most important though it need not be a large one.

"A billion dollars will go a very long way," Vanderlip said, "in starting Europe on its way to production. But it must be a billion dollars spent for food and raw materials. It must be a billion dollars spent on any financial rehabilitation."

"This is the first move necessary to help the exchange rates recover. The present decline in exchange tends now to halt our exports. It is conceivable the halt might occur very sharply. To a considerable extent ships are now going to Europe without full cargoes."

"Last year we exported $8,000,000,000 worth of goods, and the trade balance in our favor was $4,000,000,000. In pre-war days a trade balance of $600,000,000 for us was about the top figure. These figures indicate that if the halting our exports gets far enough it will result in a jar that will pile up cotton, agricultural products and, to some extent, manufactured goods."

"I do not believe such a situation would result in any serious unemployment for us. There might be some thrown out of work while a process of readjustment went on, but very little hardship would follow. Our consuming capacity is greatly in

METHODS TO IMPROVE FARMS ARE DISCUSSED

County Agent R. G. Scott went to Clarkes Tuesday evening and appointed a committee to work under the supervision of the farm bureau. The meeting was held at the Grange hall and was attended by about 30 residents of that place.

The first subject brought up for discussion was dairying. Mr. Scott illustrated his talk with slides and showed a number of interesting pictures along this line. Among these were some of the dairy cattle that has become famous for their large amount of butter fat. Among the breeds shown were Guernseys, Ayrshires, Jerseys, Brown Swisses and some of the ordinary grades that had made good records.

Mr. Scott also showed the importance of the silo on the farm and illustrated with many views of farms where the silo has done much in making a dairy farm a paying industry.

In showing the pictures, barns, both sanitary and unsanitary, were given as an illustration of what could be accomplished if kept clean and sanitary.

One of the subjects brought up for discussion was the cow testing. Clyde Ringo, a well known dairyman of that section, suggested that a cow testing association be formed at that place, and there were a large number of the farmers residing in that section engaged in dairying as a side issue. After considerable discussion it was decided to hold a meeting in the near future, and Mr. Ringo was appointed to take up the matter with the farmers and to arrange for the data of the testing when some of the thoroughbred cattle were to be used as an illustration of what attention, including care and proper feed can do towards building up the dairying industry in Clackamas county.

The next subject taken under consideration was the Canada thistle, that has become a pest to some portions of the county. John Gard was appointed to look after this matter, and it will be his duty to visit the farms of the Clarkes section and make his report to Mr. Scott. W. H. Hooten, one of the prominent residents of Clarkes, who has had much experience with this pest, said that he had accomplished much on his place by destroying the plants, and the system he had followed was proving successful.

The "gray diggers" (squirrels) have become a nuisance to many farmers, and Albert Gassler was appointed to distribute the poison grain, a mixture of barley and wheat, to the farmers who have been troubled with the pest. Mr. Gassler is to collect the money for the grain from the farmers, which amounts to 25 cents per pound, and this is to be turned over to Mr. Scott. The county appropriated an amount of money for the purchase of the poison and grain is to be sent out to the various sections where needed. In many localities last year, when the diggers had commenced destroying the crops, the grain was used to advantage and many of the squirrels met their fate.

Mrs. Kleinsmith, one of the prominent poultry fanciers of Clackamas county, was present at the meeting, and suggested a poultry association be formed at that place. She is engaged in breeding pure blooded White Leghorns, and has an order for 1300 baby chicks.

Arrangements were made for holding a meeting to further this organization, and the date set was Friday evening, February 20, when one of the professors of the Oregon Agricultural College would be in attendance and talk on poultry industry.

The meeting called by Mr. Scott was one of the most enthusiastic held at Clarkes, and plans will be made for largely attended meetings in the near future.

William Cook, county assessor, accompanied Mr. Scott, and was called upon to address the assembly. He spoke on the county and state fairs, and advised the people to vote in the interest of their section of the county by being represented at the 1920 fairs. The Clarkes grange has never been represented at the fairs, and as there is a large number of active members, and much grain, products of various kinds that are produced in that section would no doubt make an excellent showing and probably would win some of the prizes that are offered by the associations. The matter was favorably looked upon and it is probable that the Clarkes grange will endeavor to make an exhibit at this year's fair.

S.P.O.R.T.S Misses - Hits - Bullseyes

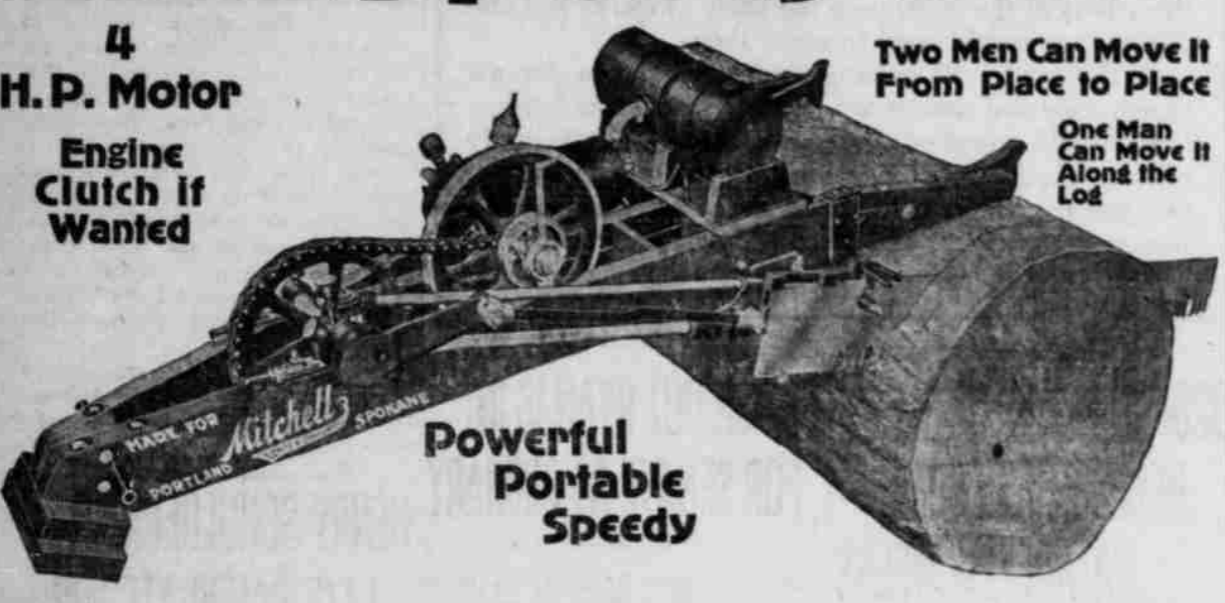

By C. W. ROBEY

Hey, what do you know about this? The Molalla high school basketball team wants in on the state championship high school contest to be held at Eugene some time this month. The Molalla team has never been beaten, and its manager, Gordon Taylor, claims that there is not a high school team in the state that can do it either.

For a town of its size, Molalla certainly does itself proud this year in producing such a basketball aggregation as the high school boasts at present. Not only is the team strong, but some of the players are certainly wizards at the game. They have cleaned up everything in this neck of the woods, and have challenged the best high school team in Portland for a game. They ought to get it too.

It the Molalla team goes to Eugene to enter the state high school championship contest, we venture to predict that they will "eat 'em up" and come home with the bacon.
