Peach Crop Will Be Below Normal

CANBY, Or., July 1 .- The peach crop for this season will be some what different than that of last year for many of the trees have suffered from the extreme cold of December and January and in many orchards the trees are practically dead.

One of the growers reports that several of his choicest trees that he be lieved had been saved, have put forth new sprouts to bear this year, but with the hot sun coming on, they did not have strength to stand the heat and the leaves are now falling and indications point toward the trees dying.

Never before in the history of Canby was the peach crop larger than that service with basket dinner accompof last year. Tons of the delicious fruit was shipped from this section, Rock Creek Methodist church or in an this year will bring disappointment to many of the growers.

Ice Plant Is Doing Good Business
