CANBY MERCHANTS DONATE FINE TROPHY FOR COUNTY FAIR

CANBY, Or., July 15.—A handsome trophy cup is displayed in the window of Carlton & Rosenkrans, to be offered for the best exhibit of White Leghorns at the Clackamas county fair to be held here in September. This cup is donated by the firm, which has always taken an active interest in the fair. Each year a handsome trophy has been arranged by the employees, and it has never failed to carry off a prize. This year plans are being made for another display, which will be even better and larger than previous years.

There are five cups offered for poultry display this year, and all are as handsome. Andrew Koehner, of this city, who had charge of the poultry department last year, and made a most successful superintendent, and succeeded in getting many premiums offered in that department. He is much encouraged this year in the manner in which the people are donating towards the prize list.

Among those contemplating to enter in this class is George Meeks, of Canby, who has won many prizes on his birds at the previous fairs. George has many new birds he is to show at the 1920 fair, and will no doubt be among the prize winners again. He has finished hatching for this season, and 375 baby chicks are now at the poultry yards as the result of his incubators setting.

Funeral Service Held For Walter Smith

CANBY, Or., July 15.—The remains of the late Walter Smith, who died suddenly at Pendleton, owing to poisoning supposed to have been caused by something he had eaten, were brought to his home at Barlow and funeral services held Friday morning at 10 o'clock, with interment in the Zion cemetery in this city. The services were largely attended, as the young man was well known here. He is the son of Mrs. J. Goertler of Barlow.

Lester Hurlas, a nephew of Mr. Smith, who was also making his home at Pendleton, where the two were employed, and was his room mate, had gone to a celebration given by the Indians, which was attended by many residents of Pendleton. Hurlas had invited his uncle to accompany him on the trip, but Smith told Hurlas he did not care to, but might come later. At that time the young man was in the best of health and each day Hurlas looked for Smith to come to the celebration, as it was a four-day event. When he returned found to his surprise that Smith had died during his absence and his body had been shipped to Barlow for interment. He left immediately for this place, but arrived too late for the funeral. The young man were "pals" and the nephew was heartbroken when, being informed of the death of Mr. Smith.

Mr. Hurlas will remain here for a few days before returning to Pendleton.

Mr. Lee has been engaged in the bee industry for a number of years in this city, and has been most successful in the industry. Canby stores have been depending largely on the honey produced by the bees at the Lee farm, and several of the residents are already negotiating with Mr. Lee to supply them with the honey. Not only does he supply the market with the cakes of honey but also with the strained.

The property Mr. Lee has purchased consists of 50 acres. Besides being engaged in the bee business here, Mr. Lee has also been one of the rural mail carriers.

He was met in Portland by his brother John McNary, Salem attorney. Later in the summer Senator McNary expects to visit the ports and harbors of the state and will deliver a number of addresses on subjects of interest to the voters.

After attending the Republican national convention in Chicago, Senator McNary returned to Washington and New York. At the latter city he consulted a surgeon relative to an injury of the right hand sustained in an automobile accident in 1918, which caused him to lose control partially of his fingers, necessitating his learning to write with his left hand.

An operation to correct this defect will be tried next fall.

CHENOWETH FUNERAL

Many friends of the late Oliver Chenoweth, a war hero, whose death occurred in Portland last week, attended the funeral services held at the Finley chapel. The floral tributes were most beautiful, and several handsome pieces were sent from Oregon City. The services at the crematorium were of a military form and taps were sounded. Pallbearers were former comrades of the young man while he was in the service.

The young man's death was caused from gas and injuries received in the service in France. Several pieces of steel remained in his body, and owing to the location it was impossible to remove them.

Oliver Chenoweth, whose age was 22 years and 1 month, was the fourth son to be in the service, and son of the late John Chenoweth, a pioneer newspaper man, and formerly an editor of the Oregon City Enterprise. He was also employed on several of the leading newspapers in Portland. He was a nephew of Mrs. M. R. Howell, of this city, and cousin of Miss Ella Howell, who were among those to attend the funeral services.

With the berry season now at its height, the market is well supplied with Loganberries, raspberries and the black caps, for which there is a big demand.

It is feared that earlier in the season that the local markets would suffer from a shortage of the berries owing to the high price contracts that were offered by the canneries, but this is not the case, for there is really a large supply this year than there has been any time heretofore. The berries are finer quality and the recent rains have done wonders for the bushes, after the week of warm weather.

The price of berries vary, some of which are bringing a price of from $2.40 to $3.00 per crate, while others are bringing as high as $3.50.

Royal Anne, Bing and Lambert cherries were somewhat damaged by recent heavy rains, and the growers were jubilant to see the sun shining again so as to enable them to proceed to harvest those which are salable. These prices also vary, according to the quality of the cherries. Some who have contracted their cherries to the canneries early in the season, are faring better than some of the growers, for some are disposing of their fruit at 6 and 7 cents, while a number are offering to dispose of their cherries at 4 and 5 cents providing the picking is done by those purchasing.

The blackberries have not been seen in the local markets although it is reported there is a good supply in the various country districts.

The cultivating blackberries will be of large crop according to the appearance of the bushes, and no doubt there will be a good demand for these.

The peach crop will be shorter this year than any previous year. This is due to many trees being killed by the unusual cold weather during December and January.

AID TO ENTERTAIN

CANBY, Or., July 15.—The Ladies' Aid Society of the Lutheran church will give an entertainment and bazaar at the Artisan hall Friday evening to allow their employees a chance to celebrate Independence day and also to make some repairs to the mills and the machinery in the logging camps. Dairy Meeting Is Held At Monitor

At a meeting held at Monitor Tuesday evening, Richard Scott, county agent of this city, and R. V. Gun, of the extension service of Oregon Agricultural college, gave interesting talks on dairying industry. Mr. Gun analyzed the figures in butter fat production presented to him by a number of the dairymen, among these being one of the well known dairymen of that section. After the analysis had been made it was found that the cost of production was 55 cents and he had derived but 57 cents from the sale.

Henry Hanson was in charge of the meeting, and it was largely attended. The meeting was held at the Monte Cristo school, and owing to the condition of the roads Mr. Scott and Gun did not reach their destination until 9:30.

Mr. Scott will go to Wilsonville this evening to attend a meeting where dairying will be discussed, and at which time M. S. Shrock will attend.

They entered the store through a back window. The combination of the safe was broken off and the nitro-glycerine charge inserted and exploded but without effect. The cash register was tapped, but little or no money was taken. The robbers left behind them no clue as to their identity save automobile tire tracks that indicated they were traveling in a large touring car.

There were over 1500 delegates at the convention, 100 more than ever attended a meeting of this kind in the history of the order.

Actress, "Rube" Marquard Whom She Is Suing for Divorce, and "Rube" Jr.

The second romance of Blossom C. Marquard, known on the vaudeville stage as Blossom Seely, has ended in the divorce courts. She has brought suit against Richard W. Marquard, the "Rube" Marquard who has been a star pitcher on several big league baseball clubs and is now with the Brooklyn team, charging desertion. They were married in March, 1913, after she was divorced from Joseph Cohen, known on the stage as Joseph Kane. Marquard was named as correspondent and subsequently Cohen sued Marquard for $25,000 damages in an action, alleging that the baseball star had alienated his wife's affections. The Marquards have one child, Richard W., Jr., five years old, now in the custody of his mother, who has placed him in a Cleveland school.

KRUGER OF DIFFERENT OPINION ON HALL SITE

Councilman Krueger, who cast the deciding vote necessary to choose a location for the new city hall, and who swung with four of his colleagues, Eby, Green, Albright and Bridges, in the selection of McLoughlin Park, is ready to switch, he stated Monday afternoon.

"I understand there is a great deal of opposition to placing the new building in McLoughlin Park," said Councilman Krueger, "and I understand the proposition may be held up indefinitely as the city is threatened with court proceedings. I believe the building should be located down town, and would prefer a location near Ninth or Tenth street, as it would be near Singer hill and away from the congested district. I am therefore ready to ask for a reconsideration of the question at the next meeting of the council."

Mr. Krueger's desertion of the McLoughlin Park site would leave the council tied up on the question, and the matter would then be squarely up to Mayor Holman, who favors McLoughlin Park partially for financial reasons.

"I told the councilmen," said the mayor, "that I would veto a plan to place the building on McLoughlin Park unless the Eighth street side should be chosen. I certainly would be against erecting a building on the Seventh street side of the park, but I do not believe the structure would injure the park, nor affect the beauty of the property if it should be located on the north end of the block. The city has no funds to purchase property down town, as the total in the fund for such a purpose is only $3185, and that amount is insufficient."

Councilman Tobin, who favors a down town location, and who is chairman of the finance committee, believes that the city has the necessary funds to finance the purchase of a site on the lower level, and he is making up a statement for submission to the council.

CHINESE EDITOR SAYS WAR IS COMING ON SHANTUNG ISSUE

HOOD RIVER, Or., July 12.—Dr. Poon Chew, San Francisco Chinese editor, Saturday night in a lecture before a Chautauqua audience here, predicted a world war as a result of the action of the peace conference in making the Shantung award to Japan. He declared that Japan was not entitled to the award, but forced it by a threat to withdraw from the peace table and form an alliance with Italy and Russia and make a separate peace with Germany. Dr. Chew, however, expressed the hope that America, characterized as China's only friend among the nations of the world, would keep a friendly eye on the Oriental situation and prevent a world calamity.

MULTNOMAH COUNTY MEN HAD POWER TO BUILD VISTA HOUSE

Portland, July 14.—Authority to construct Vista house at Crown Point on the Columbia river highway was vested in Multnomah county commissioners by the law which empowers them to expand county funds for the erection of "necessary buildings for the use of the county," held Circuit Judge Tucker yesterday in a decision which threw out of court the long-pending suit by taxpayers seeking the return to the county of money paid contractors for the work.

Vista house was built at a cost of $99,148.05, of which $2812.35 was paid by the Vista House association and $96,335.70 by the county. An early estimate of the cost of a comfort station at Crown Point was $12,000, which investigation proved to be entirely inadequate. "The Vista house is beyond question a public building for the use of the county," says Judge Tucker's opinion, "whether it is recognized as a comfort station or as a memorial to the pioneers who forced their way through the Columbia gorge in the earlier days. The structure is open, free to the public at all times, and is maintained by the county. It is an integral part of the Columbia highway."
