

CANBY AND SOUTHERN CLACKAMAS

CANBY PRODUCES THE LARGEST POTATO CROP THIS YEAR IN HISTORY

CANBY, Nov. 11.—One of the largest potato crops ever harvested in Clackamas county is for 1920, and potatoes are of exceptionally good quality.

The commission merchants at Canby are busily engaged in shipping their potatoes and potato meal to California. San Francisco is one of the main points where potatoes are being shipped to at the present time.

W. H. Lucke, owner of the largest commission houses at Canby, who recently returned from a business trip to San Francisco regarding his potato shipment, has a crew of seven men selecting the potatoes for shipping. He also has two outside men buying potatoes in the Willamette Valley section and several here managing the commission house in Oregon City.

His largest warehouse is being filled with various varieties of potatoes. Among these are the Burbank, American Wonder and Garnet Chilli. There seems to be a better demand for the Burbank and Garnet Chilli, forty carloads to San Francisco, and in all this season will be about 500 carloads. The price he is paying ranges from 80 cents to $1.75. At this season last year he was paying $2.00 a sack, but the price increased towards the close of the season. Mr. Lucke believes that the present price will not be changed even later in the season, since the yield is unusually large throughout all sections of the county.

Each year, except last year, Mr. Lucke has shipped several carloads of small fir trees to California for the Christmas trade. This year he has an order for four carloads.

Several merchants dealing in Christmas trees in California last year had more trees on their hands than the market called for, but will risk this year's sale, and have placed their order in early. It is the intention of a number of those dealing in trees to the south to ship these to other sections, where there is a demand for the western fir, to be used during the holiday season.

CANBY TO HAVE AN APARTMENT HOUSE; 17 ROOMS

CANBY, Nov. 10.—The Seaton hotel here has been sold to Elmer Earles, formerly of Silverton, and will be converted into an up-to-date apartment house. The new owner will remodel the building, and install both rooms and all modern conveniences. Lately, there has been a scarcity of houses in Canby, and the new apartment house owner has been welcomed with open arms. The property formerly belonged to Mrs. Carrie Seaton, of Portland.

According to figures now being compiled by Brenton Vedder, county school superintendent, the school fund for the coming year will have a deficit of about $13,000, which will either have to be made up by the county court from the general fund, or interest bearing warrants, issued.

Under last year's assessment, the valuation of all property in Clackamas county outside of regular high school districts, was $17,877,142.33, and of this amount, the county school superintendent's office was allowed two mills, or $35,754.28, to do business with for past year 1920. A balance of $5000 was left in the treasury from the preceding year, making a grand total in round numbers of $40,754. The bills from outside high school districts, not including Oregon City, are now in the superintendent's hands, and although the entire amount has not been summed up, the cost to educate Clackamas students will be more than $52,000, and the superintendent's office has a fund of $40,754 to pay these costs.

Under the law, any student living outside of a regular high school district can attend any high school she or he may wish, with the tuition paid by the county. Therefore, Oregon City district alone has a bill against the county of over $10,000 for the past year. Marion and Washington counties also have presented bills for large sums.

According to Mr. Vedder, the reason for the high amount to be paid by Clackamas county in educating its students for the past year is on account of the increased salaries of teachers and the increased attendance in the high schools. He has not completed the figures as yet, but the above condition as to finances is nearly right, and the sum that the county will have to pay will probably amount to more when the bills are tabulated by the superintendent's office.

PROMINENT LEGAL LIGHT KILLS SELF, WIFE DYING

Deranged by the fear of a third stroke of paralysis, Colonel Schuyler Colfax Spencer, prominent clubman and attorney, shot his wife and killed himself with a bullet through the heart about 7:30 o'clock Wednesday morning in the Spencers' fashionable Willamette Heights home at 1125 Thurman street, Portland.

Mrs. Spencer is fighting for life in St. Vincent's hospital. According to hospital attendants, she will die, but Dr. E. A. Sommer said she might be saved by an operation.

The tragedy took place Wednesday morning before the household had been aroused. The sound of a muffled shot was heard by Mrs. Dorris Jones, who lived with her two young daughters in the Spencer home, where she was the housekeeper.

Although there were no witnesses, Spencer apparently had shot his wife in the side with a bullet from a .45 calibre revolver, while they were in their bedroom.

Mrs. Jones ran toward the room just as Mrs. Spencer staggered out, her hand clasped to her side.

Crying incoherently, she made her way down the staircase with Mrs. Jones, toward the telephone to inform the police.

Unable to break into the room, police and neighbors placed a ladder against the room by a window.

Dr. Sommer, who was one of the first persons to reach the house, picked up Mrs. Spencer and administered emergency treatment. She was taken to the hospital.

Temporary insanity, induced by ill health and extreme nervousness, was the only explanation of Spencer's action that friends would consider as at all possible this morning.

Spencer was well known in Oregon City among the legal fraternity. He secured a divorce from his first wife here in 1894, and the decree was handed down by Judge McBride, acting for Loyal B. Sterns, then judge of the circuit court of this district. The complaint filed by Spencer at the time alleged desertion.

RIGHT NAME OF DEAD MAN IS REVEALED HERE

At a coroner's inquest held over the remains of the young man who was killed by an explosion near the mills here Friday, it was learned that his right name was Elmer E. Plimpton, and not William Brown, as first reported.

A telegram was received by Coroner Johnson yesterday from a relative of the dead man. The verdict of the coroner's jury was that Plimpton came by his death accidentally. The jury was composed of J. E. Jack, Earnest Mass, Jr., Geo. L. Story, D. C. Rossman, W. F. Schooley, H. W. Delboudt.

Plimpton was 21 years of age and was killed by a flying scantling from an explosion during blasting operations at the works of the Crown-Willamette paper company.

The body is at the undertaking parlors of Holman & Pace, and is being held until arrangements have been made for burial.

Robbery Prevented By Night Officer

Night Officer Surfus was just in time Wednesday night to prevent another robbery of the Brady Mercantile establishment. The officer had tried the door earlier in the evening, and on his return beat, found it unlocked. As he entered the store, the burglars got away from the rear entrance, and made such speed that Surfus could not catch them. Mr. Brady claimed this morning that he would place a watchman over the company's building.

Two Years Ago

Sacrifice of blood and treasure, so far as the United States was involved, came to a sudden termination two years ago when representatives of the German government executed an armistice with the supreme commander of the allied forces. The fighting that had lasted since August, 1914, and had resulted in the destruction of millions of lives and billions in property came to an abrupt stop, and all the world breathed easier. Our gallant boys who poured into France in time to turn the scale, made victory possible.

That was two years ago. Subsequent events are fresh in our memories. Heads of a few of the allied nations, including the president of this country, finally, after months of deliberation, concluded a treaty of peace with the central powers, and tied to the treaty a covenant that provided that might should rule. The senate of the United States, authorized by our constitution to act in conjunction with the executive in negotiating treaties, and ignored and insulted by the executive, refused to accept the covenant unless it should be carefully safe-guarded with reservations calculated to preserve the sovereignty of this nation. Mr. Wilson promptly appealed to the people and nine days before the second anniversary of Armistice Day, the people spoke decisively at the ballot box and repudiated the Versailles agreement.

So, after two years, we are technically at war with Germany. Mr. Wilson has forced this country to arrange for a separate peace by tying to the peace treaty a document that had no place there, and we may now expect congress, backed by a great referendum of the people, a "solemn referendum" if you please, to put an end to a state of war.

America today, assured of her political and national integrity, will do honor to the men who carried the flag to foreign soil that liberty might survive.

MYSTIFYING SCOTT NOW LOCATED ON NEEDY FARM

Elmer Scott, whose mysterious disappearance last week caused Sheriff Wilson and his deputies some worry, and whose suit case was found on the banks of the river near Canemah Monday, has been located in Clackamas county. Scott claims that he is alright, and his employer's name is Sampson, owner of the farm where he is at work.

The suit case found last Monday on the banks of the river here contained a number of pieces of clothing, photographs, insurance policy and other articles of some worth. It was first thought by the officers that Scott had jumped into the river and drowned. Scott's brother came to Oregon City from Willamina, and tried to help unravel the mystery. In the meantime, Elmer Scott was working on a farm near here and unconscious of the flurry he had created over his disappearance.

JAIL SENTENCE FACES BUILDING MEN IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Jail for building profiteers as one means of lessening the housing shortage was advocated today by Senator Kenyon of Iowa in discussing the situation with witnesses appearing before the senate housing committee at its first session here.

Senator Kenyon repeatedly asked witnesses if they did not think more drastic laws for profiteers would reduce the housing shortage and told one witness that he "thought putting a few of the building profiteers in jail would help a lot."

Senator Calder, chairman of the committee, told several witnesses he thought a quick revision of federal tax laws back to a pre-war basis would help, declaring that heavy taxes made investors shun real estate. Most of the witnesses apparently could give Senator Calder little information concerning the effect of the revised tax laws, would have. Chicago is two and one-half years behind in its building programme, Building Commissioner Rostrum said.

A state of siege has been declared in Moscow, according to dispatches from Heligoland to the British foreign office.
