Put 'Em In Jail

The congressional investigation of the affairs of the United States shipping board is beginning to astound the people of the country, for it is apparent that not a few of those in positions of authority are guilty of indiscretion, or worse. The probe, as it progresses, indicates that employees of the government, in time of war, conspired to defraud the public treasury and got away with it, and that some of the honest men who believed in exacting a dollars worth of service for a dollar expended were summarily fired from their positions, and were unable to secure redress.

There is no excuse for deliberate dishonesty. The straight road is the only easy road to follow. Our prisons are full of examples of men who could not or would not resist temptation, and who, like nearly all thieves, were detected and punished.

The greater criminal is the man who connives to steal from the government at a time when the country ought to be solidly backing those clothed with authority to prosecute war. He is a despicable creature, without moral fibre. He ought to be placed in the category of the man without a country, for he cannot call for protection upon the nation that he has systematically set out to rob.

After conditions in the shipping board are pried wide open, congress might well go into the affairs of the spruce production division, about so much has been whispered in the northwest, and if men waxed rich on ill-gotten profits they should be sent to a place where they cannot enjoy their filthy money.

Put 'em in jail.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. William Owens and family, whose home is at Denver, Colorado, have arrived in Oregon City, where they are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Terrill, of Division street. Mrs. Owens is a sister of Mrs. Terrill, and is making her first visit here. Their daughter, Miss Lois, is an accomplished pianist. The Owens family made the trip from Colorado in their automobile, experiencing some stormy weather enroute and were forced to pass through some bad roads owing to snow and rain. While in Wyoming they were delayed for three weeks on account of a blizzard, and are glad to reach Oregon where the roses are still blooming and the birds singing. They will remain here for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. James Spatz, of Redland, were in this city on business Wednesday.

Mrs. Clarence Farr and daughter, Miss Hazel, are at St. Johns, where they are visiting relatives.

Samuel Ball, of Portland, was among the Oregon City visitors Wednesday.

Roger Bartlett, of Spokane, Wash., was here Wednesday.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 17.—Freezing and temperatures of 25 to 28 degrees prevailed this morning in North Georgia, with clear skies.

LOCAL MAN IS TERRIBLY BURNED IN EXPLOSION

Peter T. Johnson, farmer and bachelor living about two miles east of Tualatin, was burned to death late last night from the explosion of a gas lamp which he had tried to light. He was 72 years of age and had lived alone on his 15-acre tract for the past 24 years. The flames from the ex-L. Malsam, a neighbor, chasing his scream rushed to the scene of the tragedy, where he found Johnson writing in agony. Before Malsam could get a doctor Johnson died. His clothing was literally burned off and his body was terribly seared from the flames. Funeral services will take place today at 2:00 o'clock p. m., from the funeral parlors of Holman & Pace, Rev. Edgar will officiate.

HEAVY RAINS CAUSING MUCH DAMAGE HERE

The heavy rains during the past two days, which seem to have been general over the state of Oregon, have caused much havoc among the farmers and especially construction work over Clackamas county. Many of the streams are now at flood tide, and in several instances the waters have broken through the banks and flooded farm lands. Up to 5:00 o'clock yesterday morning, the downpour averaged 1.29 inches and along with the heavy rains a sixty-mile gale is blowing at North Head. More rain today is predicted with a shower for every day of this week, according to the weather man.
