Hungary Signs For Peace Amid Silence

BUDAPEST, Nov. 15.—When the peace treaty between Hungary and the entente allies came up in the national assembly today the deputies rose, sang the national anthem and then voted for ratification amid silence. The Christian nationalists, Slovaks, Croats, Germans, Western Hungarians and members of the extreme left departed from the chamber. It was ordered that the black flag of mourning should fly over public buildings.

In an address lamenting the crushing weight of the terms imposed, Karl Buzsar, former premier, brought tears to many eyes. Count Teleky, the premier, proposed that he be tried for his part in negotiating and ratifying the treaty, but the deputies voted unanimously their refusal.

Preachers Take up Abode in Church

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.—High rents have caused two southern California pastors, the Rev. M. C. DeWeese of the Western Avenue Methodist church, Los Angeles, and the Rev. Warren Elsing of the Presbyterian church at Van Nuys, a suburb, to move their families into their churches.

This became known here today.

BRYAN DENIES SAYING PRESIDENT SHOULD QUIT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—W. J. Bryan, here today en route to his winter home at Miami, Fla., declared he knew of no plans to reorganize the democratic party and reiterated his suggestion that President Wilson resign so that President-elect Harding could take office without delay.

Mr. Bryan said he had no appointments with democratic party leaders. Soon after his arrival he called on Secretary Colby, but said this had to do with official business.

"I understand." Now unfeignedly intrigued, Philip had abandoned all pretense of treating the matter lightly, and was sitting forward, cigarette smoldering between his fingers, his eyes intently searching Priscilla's face. "Tell me something about the content of these dreams. Go back as far as you can . . ."

"My first memories are very vague," Priscilla told him. "They were childish and simple impressions of another little girl who was rather unhappy most of the time. I think she lived with an old woman—a wretched old witch of a woman who was cruel to her, seemed to hate her and enjoy beating her—in a mean little flat somewhere. The old woman used to tell fortunes with cards in the front room. But all that's very vague now. I don't remember much more, except that the little girl used to play a great deal in the streets."

"But when she—or you—grew up, the dreams became more real?"

"Yes; about that time something happened to the old woman. I presume she died, and the girl was left alone to look out for herself. I don't know what she did for a living because I never saw her except at night. Then I would meet her, or rather find myself with her in the Street of Strange Faces . . ."

A questioning look obliged Priscilla to break off here and explain about the river, the Dark Corner, and the Street.

"And then we," she resumed—"or she—would start off and have curious experiences. She somehow fell in with a sort of desperado, a gang leader such as one sometimes reads about in the newspapers, named Red Carnehan—"

"So you remember names?"

"Oh, perfectly; places, too. And this Red Carnehan fell in love with her, and they became engaged—I guess. She was brighter, more intelligent than he, and she planned things for him to do, with his gang—robberies and such things, as far as I know—and how to escape the consequences. Another man, named Mario, loved her, too; but he wasn't one of Red's gang; in fact he was bitterly opposed to her having anything to do with it, and always begging her to give it up and marry him. But she was afraid of Red, and always refused. I think she always meant to marry Red Carnehan until last night . . ."

Priscilla paused and was so long silent, staring at the floor, lost in thoughts and emotions conjured up by this near approach to her latest dream, that Philip found it necessary to prompt her.

"What happened last night?"

"The dream that frightened me so I had to tell somebody and thought of you."

"Then, tell me . . ."

She rose, crossed to a desk, came back with the manuscript.

"I'd rather you'd read it, if you don't mind, Philip. I wrote the story out last night, as clearly as I could remember. And here it is . . . But

WRESTLER FALLS HEIR TO MILLION WAS A BUTCHER

LA GRANDE, Or., Nov. 17.—Jack O'Neil, a butcher in this city, and well-known throughout eastern Oregon as a professional wrestler, has inherited a big estate in Michigan, and letters written to his friends here indicate that the property was worth at least a million dollars and perhaps more.

Mr. O'Neil received word about ten days ago that his uncle, "Tax-Title" O'Neil, of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., had died. He went to the funeral, and to his surprise, he learned after the services that his uncle had left all his property to him.

Mr. O'Neil has written to friends here saying that his uncle's estate included thousands of acres of valuable land and that the elder O'Neil had also acquired title to a narrow channel of water used as a shortcut by the Lake Michigan steamers. The uncle had installed a tollgate at the entrance to the channel, and collected toll from each boat.

"Spending a million wouldn't worry me any now," Mr. O'Neil wrote.

Mr. O'Neil was employed in Albert Krause's butcher shop here, and also worked for Fred Block, a butcher in Condon, Or., in which city Mr. O'Neil is well acquainted. He had wrestled in various parts of the state, and was well-known to the fans.

ONE MORE SHIP GOES ASHORE IN CALIFORNIA WATERS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—The steam schooner G. C. Lindauer, laden with 390,000 feet of lumber, went ashore Wednesday off the California coast at Albion, Mendocino county, according to advices to the Marine Exchange. The crew is safe.

According to advices received here the ship was disabled when a rope caught in her propeller and this, coupled with the rough weather encountered, caused her to go ashore.

SIMON BENSON QUILTS COMMISSION OVER TROUBLE WITH BOARD

SALEM, Or., Nov. 17.—Simon Benson, member of the State Highway commission, has resigned as the result of differences with other members of the commission. Governor Olcott, in giving out the news of Benson's resignation, said his successor had not yet been selected.

PICTURE IS TELEGRAPHED

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The New York World last night announced the successful transmission of four photographs by telegraph between its office here and the office of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Two photographs, one of the Yale-Princeton football game and the other an airplane view of New York City, were sent from New York to St. Louis and a picture of an Indian chief and one of a Mississippi river steamer were sent from St. Louis to the World office. The total time of transmission for one picture was eight minutes.
