It is the duty of all the farmers to attend the meetings, if possible, read all the articles on Farm Bureau work they can, then if you have any questions to ask the solicitor do so and sign up promptly, by doing this you not only help the work along but help keep down expenses.

FORUM OF THE PEOPLE

NEW ERA, Ore., Feb. 8.—(Editor of the Enterprise)—It is my opinion that the American Farm Bureau Federation is founded on safe sound and constructive principles, and that it will prove the solution of many of the big problems confronting the American farmers today.

I think it is a worthy move and should receive the support of every farmer.

MOLALLA, Ore., Feb. 8.—(Editor of the Enterprise)—I cannot help but feel, at times, that the farmers do not realize the importance of the Farm Bureau movement and the need of a strong organization such as it is.

The last two weeks I worked as a solicitor in Linn and Benton counties, securing members for the Farm Bureau; I began work early in the morning and stayed out late at night, some days I would go without dinner and part of the time without supper.

I waded streams, cooned logs, crawled thru brush, climbed mountains and braved terrific windstorms all to help the work along and I expect the captains and drivers in the different districts in Clackamas county to see that the soldiers put in long days here as they are paid for this work, and I hope the farmers will not take up the solicitors time by telling their hard luck stories and all the wildcat schemes they have invented in.

The people that I met treated me very good, but some of the solicitors met some bad actors; of course we have none of them here.

Don't set back and howl and kick, saying that the farmers won't hold together but get in and help the F. B. along and we will hold together.
