The basket social given by the Liberal school at the Hoff hall on Saturday evening, March 5, was a complete success.

The hall was crowded, as nearly 300 persons listened to an interesting and well delivered program.

Miss Agnes Clifford, the teacher, a popular woman, is to be congratulated and her untiring efforts are greatly appreciated by the community. Thirty-two beautiful baskets were sold by the well known auctioneer, Will Heinz. The net sum of $80.70 was netted, which will be used to pay for a new organ installed the first of the term, a new flag, picture frames, etc., that go to make a perfect school. A well filled basket was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Heinze by the school. The decorations were effective. Oregon grape, cedar and daffodils were used in profusion. Liberal district 36, is proud of the school, which received its diploma for a standard school last year.

One of the delightful social events for the past week took place at the Willamette hall when members of Alumni of the Oregon City high school and friends enjoyed dancing. The excellent music was furnished by Miss Frances Bowland, piano; Paul Burns, traps, and Jack Loder, saxophone. Patrons and patronesses were Mr. and Mrs. Hackett, Mrs. A. McDonald, Miss Johnson, Miss Godwin and Mr. Schultz. There were about 60 attending.

One of the most enjoyable meetings at the Derthick Club was at the home of Mrs. A. C. Howland, on Ninth and Center streets, Friday afternoon, March 4, when Mrs. Howland and Mrs. John W. Loder were hostesses of the afternoon.

Mrs. Charles H. Caulfield was the reader of the afternoon, when she gave a most interesting article on "The Violin Art in France," which was as follows:

"Violin playing has been popular in France from the very earliest times and that country has produced an immense number of eminent violinists, violin teachers, and composers of violin music. "One of the earliest French violinists was Jean-Marie Leclair (1697-1764) who was famous for his violin compositions, which showed many of the qualities, and later became characteristic of the French school. "Early French violinists and violin compositions showed the influence of the Italian school, but later an independent French school appeared. Vivaldi, and later Paganini, both Italians who spent much time in Paris, had a tremendous influence on the development of violin playing in France, and the French school shows many traces of the genius of these men. The most famous of Vivaldi's French pupils were Rode and Bailot. "At the end of the 17th century, Paris was the most noted center of violin playing in the world. The most brilliant stars of this period were Vivaldi (an Italian) Kreutzer, of German parentage, both born in France, Rode and Bailot. These men by their teaching, playing, and compositions had a great influence on the art of violin playing in France, and in the world generally. "The two most eminent representatives of the modern French school were DeBoriet and Viotemps. The work of Belgian nationality, but as the Belgian school is really a branch of the Paris school, with very slight differences, they are rightly considered as belonging to the modern French school. "Among the famous French composers for violin are Rodolphe Kreutzer, 1766-1831; Pierre M. P. Bailot, 1771-1842; J. Pierre J. Rode, 1774-1830; Jacques Mazas, 1782-1849; Charles V. DeBoriet, 1802-1870; Jean Delphin Alard, 1815-1888; Jean Baptiste Charles Dancu, 1818-1907; Henri Viotemps, 1820-1881; Edouard V. A. Lalo, 1823-1892; Emil Sauret, 1852. "Although France has produced violinists and violin makers, her greatest contribution to the development of violin playing came from the inventive work of Francois Tourte, 1747-1835, the man we owe the perfecting of the violin bow, who spent a long life in improving his instrument and whose model is universally conceded to be the finest ever made. He took the greatest pains in selecting Pernambuco wood in order to get the proper forward grain and by a series of careful experiments determined the exact degree of heat to which to subject the wood in order to get the proper inward curve. He also fixed the exact length of the bow and the point at which to begin tapering it, as well as just where to place the nut and the point. He invented the method of spreading and fixing hair in the head of the nut, which was usually made of tortoise shell mounted in gold. So great was his genius for his work that he is often called the Stradivari of the Bow. Up to the time of Tourte's invention the stick had been bent outward, like a bow used in archery. The musical program followed. Mrs. John Risley was the vocalist of the afternoon, and her singing was highly appreciated, as were also the violin solos rendered by Jack Loder. Both responded to encores. The selections of the vocalist and violin soloists were from French composers. Refreshments were served during the afternoon. The Howland home was artistically decorated with cut flowers. Attending were Mrs. Livy Stipp, Mrs. John Risley, Mrs. L. L. Porter, Mrs. S. O. Dillman, Mrs. J. E. Hedges, Mrs. William Krassig, Mrs. Raymond Caulfield, Mrs. C. H. Meissner, Mrs. E. A. Chapman, Mrs. C. G. Miller, Mrs. L. A. Henderson, Mrs. H. E. Straight, Mrs. L. L. Picken, Mrs. G. A. Harding, Mrs. Matilda Charman, Miss Muriel Stevens, Mrs. J. W. Moffatt, Mrs. Gilbert Hedges, Mrs. C. O. T. Williams, Mrs. Charles H. Caulfield, Mrs. R. C. Ganong, Mrs. J. W. Loder. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Livy Stipp on Ninth and John Adams streets.

The young couple will be at home to their many friends after April 1.

One of the most interesting and successful meetings of the Euterpean Club for the year was held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Gault Saturday, March 5.

At 1 o'clock a luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by her daughters-in-law, Mrs. Lyle Gault and Mrs. Victor Gault, of Portland. As this was the day following the presidential inauguration, the hostess carried out the patriotic idea in table decorations and place cards. The latter were in the form of original jingles concerning the president, vice-president, their wives and cabinet officers.

Tributes were also given to the retiring president and vice-president.

The jingles were cleverly composed by Mrs. L. A. Read.

The business meeting began with a roll call of members, made interesting by each responding with some bit of information concerning the Columbia river. Geological, geographical facts were cited and some interesting mythical legends were told.

For current events, "The Port of Portland Bill" was ably presented by Mrs. Frank Miranda and followed by general discussion by the members.

Mrs. Victor Gault had charge of the subject of "art" for the afternoon, and requested each guest to tell something about the life and works of Van Dyck, an early Flemish artist.

Mrs. Frank Oswald related the history of our old hymns.

Enjoying Mrs. Gault's hospitality were Mesdames Harry Paddock, R. M. McGetchie, Frank Oswald, M. E. Turner, Frank Miranda, F. A. Parker, J. W. Leonard, Victor Gault, Lyle Gault, L. A. Read and F. P. Nelson.

The monthly business meeting and social of the Philaetha Class of the First Baptist church last Monday evening was a most enjoyable affair.
