PAVING IS TO START ON STREETS OF CANBY DURING COMING WEEK

CANBY, March 24.—Canby is to have paved streets at last, and preparations are now being made for the laying of concrete, which will commence early next week. George Meeks says that all work will be done by "local talent" and is sure to meet with satisfaction, for there are men residing here who are familiar with that line of work, and why go elsewhere to employ labor.

In order to lay the concrete it is necessary to arrange 26 shut offs or the water mains on the sidewalks, and the tapping of mains is now being done by George Meeks, E. Nealand and L. Jackson, who have already much of the work done.

The streets to be paved at the present are Front street, extending from the northern part of the city to the White garage, and also B and C streets.

By paving the streets of Canby the people of this place will not be bothered with the mud of winter and the dust of summer as in previous years, and at a later date it is planned to have other streets improved accordingly.

There is no more attractive little city in Clackamas county than Canby and by improving her streets will add to the beauty of the historic place. With two handsome bank buildings, large furniture store, concrete department store, substantial building of the I. O. O. F. # A World Board of Trade

A good idea as to the proper function of a league or association of nations, can be had by considering it as a kind of world Chamber of Commerce.

A Chamber of Commerce does not undertake to dictate the conduct of any private business. A merchant or manufacturer who joins such an organization, retains the right to run his own business as he sees fit. Otherwise he would not join the Chamber of Commerce.

The league of nations covenant failed to appeal to this country because, rightly or wrongly, people believed that as constituted, it would have the rights of control over this country.

If no general association of nations is formed, the world will be in the position of a city that has no business men's organization. A world court, if such a tribunal is established, can not perform the work needed, any more than the courts in a city can perform the work of a Chamber of Commerce.

There needs to be in a community some association whose work it is to harmonize conflicting interests, and plan programs of co-operative action. Cities that have no such organization are torn with factions and the lack of general co-operation keeps them stationary.

The world needs that kind of association. It should not undertake to govern its members. Its function should be to harmonize differences and to plan methods of co-operation. Like a board of trade, it needs to have regular meetings, and to have established bureaus that shall carry on continuous work where the same is needed. It can accomplish a great step in world progress, just as a good Chamber of Commerce accomplishes wonders in promoting the development of a city.

It can do a great deal to secure world peace; first by getting the nations in the habit of working co-operatively; second, by suggesting measures of joint action against nations that threaten war.

When a man reaches 50 he likes to fool himself with the assurance that he has just begun to live.
