State Agricultural College Offers New Teachers Course

To meet the call of Oregon grade and high schools for more qualified teachers of vocational subjects, the state board of higher education has authorized a new degree course in vocational education at the state college. This will allow students who wish to teach such subjects as agriculture, home economics, engineering, and commerce to take such of each as is needed for effective teaching, without extreme specialization in a technical subject.

Experienced teachers, normal school graduates and students from other colleges, may get their credits accepted in the new course and fit themselves for vocational teaching and supervision in one to three years, depending on the number of college credits they enter with.

Students who want to prepare for administrative vocational education may distribute their credits among the different subjects which they expect to handle. Cities are calling for supervisors of technical courses, and towns and country want teachers and supervisors of two or more vocational subjects. Teachers who want to qualify for these positions may distribute their elective where they will do the most good.

Another opening is offered to students preparing to teach the "realized subjects" under the Smith-Hughes laws—mechanical drawing, industrial chemistry, business English, commercial law and others.

Surveying of Home Sites Near Zig Zag by Forestry Service

A. G. Jackson, forest examiner with the United States Forestry service, was in Oregon City Wednesday on business connected with the surveying of summer home sites near Mount Hood. The forestry department is now engaged in laying out a number of new plots for lease to people wanting summer homes on Zig Zag creek and Still creek, near Rhododendrum, and according to Mr. Jackson they are going fast. Over fifty people now have permits on lands leased from the government, for which they pay $10 per year for half-acre tracts. Since the laying out of the Mount Hood loop road the demand for summer homes in that vicinity has become heavy.

BUILDING NEW BRIDGE HERE TO TAKE 18 MONTHS

Proposals will be invited for the construction of a new bridge across the Willamette river connecting Oregon City and West Linn within the next two weeks, unless some unforeseen obstacle intervenes, it was learned Wednesday by a delegation from Oregon City and West Linn that made a trip to Salem for a conference with Herbert Nunn, state highway engineer.

It appears that the state highway commission and the county court have finally reached a definite understanding as to the financial end of the situation, and that as soon as Attorney Devers, of the commission, passes on the legal phases of the question, that advertisements will be published and that bids will be opened sometime next month.

The estimated cost of the new bridge is $229,000. This is the maximum amount authorized by the commission for what is known as the type "B" structure, as against $300,000 for the type originally proposed more than two years ago. The general appearance of the bridge will be the same as was first suggested, but the steel construction will not be encased in a heavy sheath of cement, but will have a coating of cement one and one-half inches thick, which will be applied under the gunite method, under high pressure. The structure will have a width of 20 feet for vehicle traffic and pedestrian walks on each side of four and one-half feet, protected by 10-inch curbs. The steel will not be required to carry as heavy load as was outlined under the original design, but the bridge will be as durable and will carry a maximum traffic load.

In the bridge design provision is made for four comfort stations in the four piers, but the state is not prepared to finance the plumbing and equipment of these rooms nor the stairways leading down to them from the deck of the structure. The main deck will be covered with six inches of laminated wood, set on end, and will have a surface of asphaltic pavement to withstand the jar of traffic. At the Oregon City end of the bridge will be a fill, which will be paved at the expense of the city after it has settled.

Between 15 and 18 months will be required to complete the structure, and the old bridge may be used for a short time after actual construction starts, the new bridge being opened for foot passengers before it is thrown open for vehicle traffic. In the interval of probably a year, covering the winter months of 1921 and 1922, provision will have to be made for a temporary structure, of the pontoon or some other type, but the state will not take care of the financial end of this emergency.

Dr. Hugh S. Mount, representing the Oregon city council; L. L. Porter, recorder of West Linn; M. D. Latour, ette, E. E. Brodie and Wallace B. Canfield, of the Live Wires of the Commercial club were present at the conference, the first three being the committee that was appointed last week to promote the conclusion of the negotiations. Incorporated in the settlement with the highway commission by the county court is the adjustment of the county indebtedness to the highway commission for grading and bridge along the Pacific highway from the Multnomah to the Marion county line, and the appropriation of $83,000 for Clackamas county's share of the construction of the Mount Hood loop road. It is understood the highway commission has agreed to accept the county road bonds in part payment of the final settlement.

TEACHERS TO CONVENE HERE ON SATURDAY

The Clackamas County Teachers' association will hold a meeting in the local high school auditorium on next Saturday, when representatives from the different schools over the county will be present and take part in the program. McANULTY BUYS PALACE SWEETS ON MAIN STREET

Congratulations

Solution of the problems that confronted the county court with especial relation to a new bridge across the Willamette river at Oregon City will be met with satisfaction and relief by not only the court itself but by the public generally. The knowledge that the twin cities are to be connected with a modern structure, adequate for present and future traffic, is a matter of congratulation. It is gratifying to know that negotiations have finally reached a point where the highway commission of Oregon is willing to take charge of operations and arrange for actual construction of the big span with the guarantee that the bridge will be built with an eye for beauty as well as utility and strength.

Some idea of the magnitude of the task facing the engineers of the highway commission may be gained from the statement that about eighteen months will be required in the building of the bridge. This is no toy affair, to be started and finished during the same season. It is a project, the cost of which will run into more than $200,000, demanding the best engineering brains of the state, and the services of a contracting firm with experience and ability.

Along with the termination of the negotiations over the bridge question comes the announcement that an agreement has been reached under which the payment of all indebtedness due the state by reason of the grading of the Pacific highway will be met, and that the appropriation from Clackamas for the construction of the Mount Hood loop road will be financed to the satisfaction of the commission. In bringing about the finish of the most vital problems facing them, the county court has acted wisely and may now face with equanimity the tremendous task of expending millions of dollars in giving Clackamas a system of permanent highways second to none in the state.

McBAIN WRITES FROM EAST DESCRIBING PAPER MILLS THERE

A letter has been received by H. A. Shandy, of this city, from B. T. McBain, former mill manager of the Crown Willamette Paper Company, now connected with the Nekoosa-Edwards Paper company at Port Edwards, Wisconsin. Mr. McBain refers to the watch that was presented him by mill employees at West Linn shortly before his departure for Wisconsin, and the letter, of much interest to mill employees and other friends of Mr. McBain follows:

Port Edwards, Wis., April 28, 1921. Dear Shandy: Well, I told you I'd write you a few lines to tell you all about things, so you could tell the other boys. Many might be interested. The watch hasn't lost a minute and is admired by all. I take great pleasure in telling how I got it—not why, because I do not know why.

This is a pretty place (in Spring). I guess it will be cold in winter from what I hear. The mill here is ground wood, sulphite and paper, making 50 tons of newsprint and commercial wrappings. The mill at Nekoosa has four machines, 90 to 100 tons, of sulphite and sulphite wrappings, all colors and grades. They make their own ground wood, sulphite and Kraft pulps.

There are about 900 men, about one half at each plant, three miles apart. I am assistant to the president with duties of manufacturing and operating manager. There is an electric car every hour between the mills. A mill is located at Wisconsin Rapids making news and wrappings, and now putting in a large news machine 160 with electric drive like No. 9 at West Linn with wire 100 feet, 5 presses, 28 6-foot diameter dryers and other equipment like No. 9. The motors are 110 on couch, 75 on presses, 110 on dryers and calendars x 35 on reel.

The breast roll is to be level and the stock will be delivered to the wire with a hydraulic head like I wanted to put on No. 9. I believe before No. 9 gets full speed they will do that to get good formation. This new machine is designed for 1200 to 1400 feet per minute and was built by Beloit Iron Works at Beloit, Wis.

There is a strike still on here but a little thing like a strike never bothered me much, as you know. I hope before the summer is over to visit Oregon City and bring my family over here, so I'll be in to see you and shake hands with all my dear friends in the paper mills of West Linn and Oregon City, where I have spent so many of the good years of my life making paper, and incidental money for my employers, or at least helping my fellow workers to do so—pleasant work to say the least. Say hello, please, to the boys.

Trusting this finds you well and that all the heads of departments from top to bottom are enjoying the changed condition. I remain Very truly, B. T. McBain.

Illness. Mr. Justin has been in poor health for some time.

Mrs. B. F. Hall, of Canby, accompanied by Mrs. Williams, of that city, were in this city Wednesday. While here they visited friends.

Elmer Veteto, of New Era, accompanied by his wife and children, motored to Oregon City Wednesday, where they transacted business.

FRANCHISE FOR PORTLAND AUTO STAGE WANTED

After hearing petitioners from Oswego and Clackamas asking that a franchise be granted for the operation of an auto stage to Portland, the city council Wednesday night referred the matter to the street committee. The legality of the franchise had been approved by the city attorney. A resolution from the Oregon City Commercial club asking the council to not allow the franchise was read and placed on file. The petitioners were represented by Phil Hammond.

A resolution presented by William Stone, representing a district south of Oregon City seeking annexation to the city was passed. It calls for a special election to be held at the same time of the state election June 7th to get the voters' expression on the matter. A petition bearing the required number of signatures accompanied the resolution.

A communication from the county court in regard to the finances for the new bridge across the Willamette river was read, but due to the absence of Chairman Hant of the street committee, and member of the special bridge committee, no final action was taken. In the letter the county was asked to authorize a debt of $31,600 as their share of $18,400 to be paid by West Linn. It was said in the letter that they had already authorized that amount. Councilman Petzold questioned the fairness of the proposition, stating that West Linn's valuation was two and one-half million dollars, and that Oregon City's was three million and a quarter, and he contended that the bridge money should be raised in the same proportion.

The permanent improvement of Harrison at 7th and Division at Molalla and of 15th street from Jackson to Division was referred to the city engineer for estimates.
