Water Extensions

Cities as well as individuals should seek to render service to their neighbors. Situated north of Oregon City lies a section beautifully located, with such improvements as gas, electricity and rapid transportation to Portland. The Oak Grove and Jennings Lodge communities are growing by leaps and bounds the only drawback being the difficulty they are experiencing in obtaining an adequate water supply. At the present time their needs are being supplied by individual water systems, which at best are a makeshift until something better can be obtained. Jennings Lodge through its Community club, is trying to solve the problem by establishing an independent system, obtain a supply by sinking wells, or preferably through a physical connection with the systems of Portland or Oregon City. It is not the province of the Enterprise to solve the problems of the water board, but it has been suggested that slight changes at the intake would increase the amount of water so that sufficient would be available to care for these communities until the population became large enough to warrant the construction of a second pipe line to the source of supply.

If such an arrangement could be brought about, a real service could be rendered to communities that are at our door. These communities should be bound to us by every tie of social and business life. Their location is such that every interest of theirs should be our interest. In helping them we will be doing a neighborly act, and at the same time make the water plant of Oregon City by reason of the increased business, a better business institution for our own city. It would be no unpleasant shock for the water rate to come down. Let's wake up and become acquainted with our neighbors on other than election days, when a county division fight is on.

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Taken on the Oregon City Enterprise June 26, 1891. Clackamas is noted for celebrating the Fourth of July in royal style, and as usual, will have a grand time the coming national day. There will be a grand procession, with liberty car, etc., reading of the Declaration of Independence, the guard of states, oration, music and sports. Prizes will be given to handsomest lady and gentleman on the grounds.

Crown Willamette Nine Tops League By Sunday Victory

The Crown-Willamettes again head the league in Willamette Valley baseball. In one of the most spectacular games of the season they Sunday defeated the United Artisans by a score of 4-to-3.

Moeller, on the mound for the papermakers, allowed five hits. His support was checked with four errors. Thompson allowed four hits and his team made two errors. He pitched into the hands of Kerr, the Artisans' star backstop. Kracke caught for Willamette.

One of the features of the game was the clever work between the Artisans' short stop and first baseman who delivered a professional brand of ball. Rittenhaus with three hits out of four times at bat, starred for the paper makers, and Judd, newly placed in the field, drew the crowd when he nailed two hot ones in mid-air, with one hand.

Hillsboro Sunday defeated the Kirkpatrick's by a seven to three score. The Archlites met defeat on the Gladstone diamond at the hands of the Bolton Bugs. The score was 13-to-8. The Bolton team also took their game a week ago Sunday, winning 5-to-4 from the Mountain Road nine. The Crown-Willamette team is scheduled to play to Salem next Sunday to play the Senators. The Salemites last Sunday won from Camas in a 10-inning game; score 2-to-1. The C-W team plays Camas at Camas on the Fourth of July.

TWO SUITS FILED Suit to collect a total of $1479.24 together with $100 attorney's fees was instituted today by the Mason Tire Sales company against T. W. and T. A. Selwood. The amount is alleged to be due upon two promissory notes. Suit was also filed by John Gregory against G. I. Nelson for $82, said to be due for labor performed.

New York Letter

NEW YORK, June 25.—Nobody in this whole wide land (You can't call it "broad" any more without having some punster interrupt you) is more grateful for the outlook of business thriving next autumn than are the chorus girls of the shows just closed and closing. Beautiful June is more liable to be a sad month for them. There isn't enough summer time chorusing to take the place of the winter affairs that stack the scenery quietly in a storehouse. But they are being rapidly absorbed into New York fashion modeling, and they are perfectly happy to walk haughtily across a show room for a change so long as the good little pay envelope appears just the same at the week's end. At a fashion show put on the other day by one New York maker of women's clothes, $300,000 was spent on the production. Musical comedy has nothing on that so far as the chorus girl is concerned.

It's pretty hard to wait eighteen years and search two continents to get the girl you want to marry and then have your romance end in an arrest for A. W. O. L. That's the sad story of Lieut. Marcus Sakarof, graduate of the Greek Military Academy, who was arrested here the other day. Eighteen years ago, when Sakarof was a Lieutenant in the Greek Royal Navy, he met an English girl, fell in love with her, and tried to persuade her to marry him. He failed for the time and the girl returned to England. Some time later, he went there to find her. She had gone to America, he was told. Just as he was about to pursue her, he was recalled for service in the Balkan war. When he was through with that war, he sailed for the United States, and kept on looking until he went into the World War and once more he became a soldier. Then one day, on leave, he saw the girl at Brighton Beach! This time he won her and they were married. He was stationed at Fortress Monroe and after several months, he got leave to go home. He failed to return, probably deciding that he had waited long enough to settle down at home. And if he hadn't got himself into the arms of the law by speeding his automobile the other day, he would be settled there still.

English needlework of the time of Charles I is on exhibition at the Dawson Galleries. Many a famous lady worked industriously at her embroidery during that period and the results of her work are truly marvelous to us of this generation. But this age. The number of different kinds of stitches are multitudinous and it was not uncommon to crowd so many of them in to an inch of space that it takes a magnifying glass to distinguish them all. Purses, carpets, bags, and all sorts of things are in the collection, among them a pair of white satin sleeves embroidered in gold by Queen Anne.

More than 1,000,000 telephones are installed in New York City, with 5,500,000 miles of wires, and 4,250,000 calls made every day. More than a million people are talking over the wires during every one of the busy hours of the twenty-four. There is something fascinating about such big figures even when they are only concerned with telephoning. But probably about 250,000 of that daily million, exclaim, "Oh! my gosh (or words to that effect) I wish that 'phone would let up."

George C. Brownell's law card will be found in another column of this paper. Mr. Brownell has filled the office of county attorney of Kansas, and was also attorney for two different railroad corporations. He comes here highly recommended, and has letters of introduction from Ex-Senator Ingalls, of Kansas and Senator Mitchell, of this state. His office for the present is with Burney & Draper.

Lucy Jeanne Price

Lucy Jeanne Price, who is ex-commander of the local American Legion post and one of the framers of the bill, will answer through the columns of the Enterprise all questions upon the bill addressed to "Bonus Editor, Enterprise, Oregon City."

(By Phil Hammond) Question: Can I take advantage of the loan when I have no security? How can this be accomplished? The bonus bill, passed by the legislature and the people of the state which provides a loan fund for ex-service men, can be used so that property can be bought and that same property used as security for the loan. This means that property can be purchased and a mortgage given on the property as collateral for the loan. In order to do this, it is necessary to make an agreement with a property owner who is willing to give a deed for the property so that you can secure title to it. The property can then be used as the security required by the bill.

Under the law, loans are made to the extent of three-quarters of the value of the property. The procedure is this: Secure the title by agreement with the property for the remaining one a first mortgage on the property in return for the loan of three-quarters of the purchase price; turn this money over to the property owner as a payment, giving him a second mortgage on the property for the remaining one-fourth of the purchase price, or making a contract with him for the payment of this remaining balance.

Although this arrangement depends largely upon the accommodation of the owner of the property you desire to buy, many real estate offices, and private citizens throughout the state are willing to make this arrangement. The risk for them is slight, and they receive three-fourths of the purchase price of the property practically as a first payment. The limit of the state loan is $3000. This sets the limit of the valuation of the property to be purchased at $4000 unless the property owner is willing to take a second mortgage on a larger amount than the remaining quarter of the purchase price. A total of $3000 however, is the full extent to which the state will make a loan.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The following article by Mr. Hammond is an expansion of the general features of the bonus bill passed at the last election. Beginning Monday, Mr. Hammond, who was one of the framers of the measure, will conduct a question and answer department in the columns of the Enterprise. All inquiries should be addressed to "Editor Bonus Column, Enterprise, Oregon City."

(By Phil Hammond) The bonus bill was passed by the people of the state in order to aid the ex-service men, who gave up their positions and their time, to get back on an even footing with the industrial world. It includes two distinct and optional provisions, a cash bonus or a loan.

WOMAN'S PAGE

by Florence Riddick Boys

Pamela King SAYS: THE WOMAN CITIZEN

Behold the Highway. When we are in a highway do we think what a wonderful thing it is? Now that we are voters it behooves us to inform ourselves about these most useful public devices, and to take a share in regulating them.

We have the worst roads among civilized countries. This is because distances are so long and we are a sparsely settled country because our roads are built by localities instead of central government, because they too often fall into the hands of political spoils-men rather than expert road engineers, because as a people we do not know what good roads are and have no idea what we ought to demand.

It is expensive to have good roads, and more expensive not to have them. Over poor roads transportation takes longer and smaller loads can be taken. The cost in time lost is paid ultimately by the consumer of goods transported; and we would find it cheaper to build better roads and save time and money.

A city is judged by the appearance of its streets; a county or state by the excellence of its roads. Poor roads and rough pavements are unsightly, dangerous, noisy and expensive.

The increasing use of the auto is making for better roads, as auto associations bring pressure upon legislators. Many motorists are becoming interested in good roads on account of the school wagon which takes their children to and from school. They have found out the value of the consolidated school and they want good auto roads to lead to it that their children may make the trip more quickly and with less discomfort.

The Bonus Bill

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The following is one of a series of articles written by Mr. Hammond, ex-planning the bonus bill, recently passed by the citizens of the state. Mr. Hammond, who is ex-commander of the local American Legion post and one of the framers of the bill, will answer through the columns of the Enterprise all questions upon the bill addressed to "Bonus Editor, Enterprise, Oregon City."

No time limit is placed upon applications for the loans, but a loan can be made to one person but once. Persons receiving compensation under the war risk insurance act are also eligible to receive the loan. The loan may be paid off at any time when regular payments are due. Part payment may be made in sums of $25 or multiples thereof. No change is made if the property is sold to a person who is also eligible to receive the loan, but if sold to someone without this qualification,

SCHOOL DIRECTORS MAKE PUBLIC FACTS IN LATE CAMPAIGN

Members of Board Correct Last Minute Canards Told to Voters

To the voters of Oregon City: So much has been said about the school administration of Oregon City during the recent campaign for the election of school directors that we deem it a public duty to inform the residents and voters of the school district as to the facts relative to certain statements that were circulated just before election.

Some of the people were misled by misrepresentations, calculated to bring about the defeat of two members of the board, who were candidates for reelection the office of the school clerk being used as a basis for a bitter fight, wherein prejudice was substituted for reason.

First: It was stated to many voters as a fact that the school board intended to dismiss the teachers who had signed the Lavourette-Messner petitions. While we have first-hand information that these teachers were definitely informed by the circulator of the petitions that there would be no other candidates, we would not, in any case, contemplate any action that would deprive any teacher of her right to exercise her privileges of citizenship. Such action would be unfair, unjust and unworthy of any school director. We believe that the election and retention of teachers should be based upon their ability to render service to the school district, and not upon their individual views as to the personnel of the school board.

Second: It was also stated as a fact that the school clerk drew a salary of several thousand dollars per annum; that he was paid to much and he does little in return for the compensation paid him. We are firm in the conviction that the school clerk earns every dollar of his salary of $45 per month and we would not think it good business to place the responsibilities of this position in the hands of inefficient persons who might be willing to attempt to handle the work for less money. There is a vast amount of detail connected with the situation of which the public generally has little knowledge. Last year the school clerk's office received and disbursed one hundred thousand dollars, in round numbers, and he is obliged to keep a set of books adequate for the business affairs of the district. He handles the routine of meetings and the work incident to executing contracts with our corps of teachers. He must be ready at any time to devote whatever time may be required for school district affairs, and we desire to say in this connection, that repeated audits have convinced us that the books of the present incumbent of the school clerk's office are admirably kept and that he has been complimented by more than one auditor for his efficiency and accuracy.

Third: Another statement that was circulated during the campaign carries with it a direct reflection upon the honesty and integrity of the members of the school board. We refer to the charge that the school board paid a sum stretching from $1000 to $1640 for printing the Hesperian, the annual publication of the high school students. Until we made an investigation of this matter, within the last few days, we had no knowledge of the Hesperian affairs, but we did not know that the school board had nothing to do with handling the publication and did not pay a single dollar toward it. We have learned that the printing cost was $675 and that it was based upon a competitive figure. The students and their faculty advisors have always controlled this student publication, without advice or assistance, financial or otherwise from the school board.

We make these statements advisedly in order to correct the impressions obtained by a number of people from misrepresentations and utter falsehoods for the most part on the day before election. ROY A. COX, J. B. ROAKE, O. A. PACE, Members of the Board of Directors of School District No. 62, Oregon City, Oregon.

Page Shakespeare: What's In a Name?

Ordinarily when a woman marries she changes her name. Vrdia Cooper does, and again she doesn't. She is marrying Dufur Cooper—no relation at all—yet. The marriage license was applied for Saturday in the office of the Clackamas county clerk. Assist. County Clerk Guy Pace was a trifle disturbed, but was assured that the license was issued. Cooper, who is 21, comes from Milwaukie. Miss Cooper, who is 20, is from Oregon City.

This is the second case of this kind on record here this year. February 21, Orval D. Bartram took out a license to marry Millie Bartram. Both were from Portland.

A marriage license was also issued Saturday to Clyde A. Warren, 25, and Florence Schuss, 19, of Oregon City.

The loan becomes immediately due, unless the principle has been reduced to 60 per cent of the total amount borrowed. Fifteen days after date of sale is allowed in order to make this reduction. The rate of interest then rises from four to six per cent and the entire loan becomes due five years after the date of sale. The appropriation voted by the state to take care of the loans and bonuses amounts to $30,000,000.
