ENTERPRISE FAMILY
STAGES FIRST PICNIC

The first annual picnic of the employees of the Morning Enterprise was held Sunday at Pudding river.

Leaving Oregon City from 8 to 9 o'clock, machines bearing the happy Enterprise employees and their families, made their way to the picnic grounds.

Prizes Are Won.
The program of sports was as follows:
Three Legged Race—Free for all, 25 yards.

Married Women's Race—Twenty-five yards.

Single Women's Race—Twenty-five yards.

Boys' Race—One hundred yards.

Egg Race—Free for all.

Swimming Race—Free for all.

Spelling Bee—Grand prize, $5, won by W. W. Woodbeck.

Music by R. & A. orchestra.

Young Boxers Make Hit.

Among the features that made a hit was the match between little Dave Hoss and Jack Bollinger.

Sports appearing on the program were pulled off as scheduled.

Woodbeck, who removed his shoes in order to get a better footing in the running race, became stalled when his socks clung to the fresh eggs that were broken and scattered on the track.

Woodbeck Wins Dance.

W. W. Woodbeck, who has not danced for years, made a wonderful hit when he appeared in a fancy dance with Nan Cochran.

James Johnson and Howard Christensen, as well as Ben Grossenbacher and Charles Bollinger showed what could be done by the diving act.

Dancing was enjoyed when several old fashioned quadrilles were enjoyed on the lawn.

Spelling Match Held.

W. W. Woodbeck has the honor of winning more prize money in the contests than any of the picknickers.

Words that were never heard of before given in the spelling match did not "stall" this man, and his close competitor was Ben Grossenbacher.

Each employee was remembered with a "nose dive" by Mr. Woodbeck, causing much amusement.

In the evening a taffy pull in charge of Hal Hoss was among the amusements and also a huge bonfire on the banks of the river, where a welch roast was enjoyed, as well as a lunch served with hot coffee.

E. E. Brodie, manager and editor of the Morning Enterprise, donated the prize money for the big affair, and is in favor of holding a similar celebration next year.

Many Attend.

Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Brodie, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Hoss, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Johnson, Mrs. Howard Christensen, Mrs. Alene Phillips, Mrs. Ben Grossenbacher, Mrs. Ben Grossenbacher, Mrs. Howard Christensen and Roscoe Locke, (tie), Mrs. Howard Christensen.

War A Money Burden

The covenant of the League of Nations was based upon the theory that might makes right. It was predicated upon the understanding that five great nations would be strong enough to control the world by force or arms.

President Harding is working along different lines. He knows, as any thinker knows, that wholesale bloodshed will not prevent war, nor will it be a check on the riotous expenditure of billions for armament.

In proposing a conference between the five great nations of the world looking to disarmament, Mr. Harding has acted with wisdom and discretion.

We cannot wholly eliminate war. There will always be nations with chips on their shoulders. But we can arrange to reduce our armies and navies to a minimum, consistent with our safety, and while we are not willing to police Europe, we are ready to provide and finance our own police force, if other nations will do the same.

In a few short months, Mr. Harding has made a wonderful impression upon the people of the United States. He works quietly, without the blare of trumpets, and is not seeking personal glorification, but the good of his country and of the world.

IN BUSINESS

The Advertising Designer
This is a business which is growing. It consists in making designs for show cards, window cards, newspaper and magazine advertising, catalogues, letters, post cards and circulars.

This business should be learned by one educated in the high school, at least, and in the art school. The particular branch of it one enters must be studied and this is best learned by working as an apprentice for a time with wages at from $5 to $10.

THE WOMAN CITIZEN

Street Cleaning
Many an immaculate housewife has given little thought to the cleaning of her community's streets.

Mothers, do your children empty their pockets of waste paper on the way home from school? Do you and they throw banana peels and apple cores into the street? Do you allow rubbish and ashes to lie in the street near your house? How are your streets cleaned?

We spend millions of dollars, and keep busy a small army of laborers cleaning the streets, and yet we do not begin to keep them as sanitary and attractive as do some cities in Europe, who flush them daily with great deluges of water.

The Picnic Party.

The auto has brought "Lirnam Wood near to "Dunstanne." What was a prohibitive distance in pedestrian days is now only seven minutes by driver; and picnic parties are expressing our idea of "the pursuit of happiness."

There are two kinds of picnics; the lady-like kind, where you have service and silver; and the roughing-it kind, which appeals to men, and to children and to vigorous, out-door women.

Loganberry Plot Yields Large Crop

J. C. Spwyer, residing on a Sixth and Washington streets, had the honor of being the first producer of Oregon City to dispose of his loganberries, in this city, with Mr. Fish, of Barlow, being the first to bring berries in large lots.

Mr. Sawyer, who has three rows of berry bushes of this variety, the rows 45 feet long, will yield over 200 boxes by the close of the season. These bushes were planted two years ago, and have made wonderful growth since that time.

Two Cars Collide on Milwaukie Road

A machine driven by W. F. Schooley of Oregon City, was damaged by the fender and bumper when it was struck Sunday evening by a car driven by A. P. Morse of Milwaukie. The accident, which happened at 5:30 o'clock, occurred on the highway between Sellwood and Milwaukie. Morse was attempting to make his way around a number of cars that were on the road when he struck Schooley's

Are We "N. G."
The census taker has a pernicious habit of cataloging the home-keeping woman "N. G."—by which he means non-gainful.

It's a Sign They Mean Business

HAPPY THOUGHT
Fire! Liability
Smith has "money to burn"
And he'd be a fine catch;
And the best of all is—
He is hunting a match.

Just every day or two;
And so he got divorced from her,
As was his rightful due.

When the picnic is over we put all our outfit of utensils together in a convenient place where they may be picked up quickly when someone honks the horn for the next joy-ride.

Style Scandals.

Of all the inconsistencies of which we consist, the most ridiculous are to be found in our manner of array. In winter we pride ourselves in low, furless neck. When the thermometer registers ninety degrees, we don "summer furs" and bright sun-hiny yellow colors.

When we were a pedestrian people, we hobbled tipsily on exaggerated French heels; now that we ride in autos, we make ourselves comfortable in wide, low-heeled shoes.

When swimming was only the accomplishment of the elect we had bathing suits so homely that they could not be made more so by oceans of water; but now that everybody swims, or tries to, we ledecker ourselves in swimming suits so ornate, flimsy and burffed as to be fit only for beach promenade.

For the mermaid who means business, there is the sensible black and white, fray, or navy wool suit much like her brother's. It is sleeveless, short skirted and plain.

Swimming is exercise de luxe. It strengthens the whole body as no system of physical culture can. It reduces the over-fat and harrish flabby muscles.

Closed or open shop in the theatrical world means nothing whatever in the lives of Eddie Foy and his family. For Eddie and all of the little Foy's are going to make up the cast of a comedy just written for them by Willard Mack.

In the new telephone directory of our city just issued, the old-time battle of the Cohens and the Smiths for numerical predominance once more goes on to the "Cohens" if one counts in their kinsmen, the Cohens. Of course, the Smiths insist upon a same-spelling contest; but the general opinion is that the extra e isn't a serious difference and that the Cohens are victors, with 1,718 of them in the book to a mere 1,415 Smiths.

Across the Hudson from Manhattan seems a long way off in a good many ways. And never more than in the summertime when that land up above the Palisades becomes a territory of tent campers.
