Turning on the Juice

The favorite indoor sport in Washington is for a member of the minority party to explain to his colleagues in a laborious fashion the faults of the majority party. From a ratalitory standpoint, this practice may : : justified, and it is not without precedent, and while the members of congress of both parties take little interest in what is said, the speech may be used later as political campaign material.

Such a program is expensive and is distasteful to the people who have to pay the bills. The latest offender is Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, who criticized the president for taking week-end trips in the government yacht Mayflower. The executive, according to Mr. Harrison, should be denied any pleasure or recreation, and should work seven days a week. The senatorial critic neglected, of course, to refer to the trips and tours of Mr. Wilson, who comandeered the steamer George Washington for two round trips across the Atlantic, and left his office in charge of his secretary.

Senator Harrison does not like it because the president wrote a letter to Senator McCormick if Illinois concerning the political situation in New Mexico. Naturally Mr. Harding favored the election of Senator Bursum, republican, and said so. We recall the bye-elections of 1918. while we were at war, and the epistle penned by Mr. Wilson, in which he urged the defeat of republican candidates for congress. The people of the country were fully aware that the republican congressmen had given the war program their support and they revolted against the presidential tactics. In short they demonstrated that it was not a Democratic war and the result of Mr. Wilson's interference was that his party was shorn of its majority in congress. The republicans of New Mexico, and possibly some democrats returned Senator Bursum by a majority of around 7,000, justifying the correspondence between the president and Senator McCormick.

In a little more than a year the country will hold a general election for congressmen. Senator Harrison is merely turning on the juice to start the political current, as is the custom, and should not be taken too seriously.

NOT ENFORCED SAY OFFICERS

That the state and county traffic laws, relative to night driving, and to speeding are being flagrantly violated is the essence of complaints that are being made to the county authorities. Sheriff Wilson says that his department is unable to cope with the situation, due to the fact that the sheiff's office at present has no officer who is either detailed or equipped to handle traffic problems. Stories of reckless driving, of machines being crowded off the roads, of > highways are told, and the sheriff county has been received by County himself admits that the speedsters Agent W. A. Holt, from the state have become informed of the fact that enforcement of the laws here is lax, be used in the compilation of a book and are taking advantage of the to provide homeseekers with detaied paved highways to disregard regula- information about the state. Accidents on Increase

Accidents in Clackamas county are on the increase, and many of them, according to the sheriff, are of a only traffic officer who is on the by October 15. 76; L. Beatie, $27.60; Geo. Pennell, direction of the court, and the rec. Romance is Short;

MISSING BOAT THOT CLEW TO ESCAPE OF MAIL TRAIN ROBBER

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 21 .- More

The disappearance of the boat is taken here as a possible indication that Gardner has been hiding on the island all the time the search for him has been progressing, and that he has just taken advantage of the fact Saturday

The rope of Evans' bosc had been unfastened and left on the beach and the roller kept in the boat for sliding it down the beach, had been used and then thrown back on shote. No trace of the craft could be found this morning.

There was no patrol or search whatever yesterday or last night, the last two launches of the water patrol having been withdrawn by Warden Thomas Maloney after all hope of capturing Gardner on the island had been abandoned.

8 Days is Duration

Charging that his wife left him eight days after their marriage, and that even during the eight days she was not true to him Hubert Ragan has asked for a divorce from Mar garet L. Ragan in circuit court here. The Ragans were married in Fortland, November 11, 1920 Eight days later, Ragan avers in his complaint, his romance went utterly to the bowwows, though before that it was showing signs of strain. During the eight days his wife honored him with her company in his home, Ragan's complaint says he was often com pelled to work from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until midnigh', and when he did so his wife want out with another man, often remaining until 1 or 2 in the morning.

Women Boost State

The Oregon City Woman's club held the first meeting of the year Thursday afternoon at the Commercial club parlors with an attendance of forty and many new applicants for membership. The president, Mrs. Eva Emery Dye, outlined the program for the year and named the various committees, after which Mrs. Ruth Martin, Chatrman of music led in community singing that will be specialized through the year.

Vacation adventures, "What Impressed Me Most" proved the forty women eloquent boosters for Oregon roads and rivers, Oregon mountains and beaches, each and every one registering delight in the new resorts discovered and amazement at the thousands of tourists encountered from every state in the Union. Altogether the day proved an adventure in geography, in history and in art.

Only the high spots were touched, pictures like paintings, and stories interrupted by continual applause, altogether an auspicious opening for a new year in clubdom.

The new officers, elected at the last meeting during the spring of the year, were installed Thursday. They are: Mrs. Eva Emery Dye, president; $75 so far, as against $292 in April, Mrs. Edward McLean, vice president; Mrs. M. C. Hunt, recording secretary; Mrs. A. McDonald, financial secretary, and Mrs. Rosa Green, treasurer.
