SANDY, Oct. 24.-Mr. and Mrs. Her-SANDY, Oct. 25 .- The semi-annual man Frey , who recently returned to district Sunday school ocnvention was Portland for the winter, were pioneers well attended at the Pleasant Home in the Firwood settlement in 1979. Henry Oatman preceded the Freys Ware made a strong talk on the value three years, and Henry Koch and wife of child training. Dr. Abbott gave an came shortly after. "Idlewild," the atable address, some points of which tractive countryplace of the Frey famwere as follows: "Our boys and girls ily is the same spot that in pioneer days was but a forest primeval, and there are 100,000 boys and girls in Oregon between the ages of 6 and 18 all these years the home fires have been lighted here at least a part of the tim each season.

The Freys remember the wind-fall of January 9, 1880. Mrs. Fry was about her house work, and her husband was working on the hill about 200 feet from the house on that bright, sunny morning. "There had been a snow fall of six inches, and the should be made during the formative ground was soft from heavy rains, but no wind was noticeable, and when a along the line of life it is strongest great noise which sounded like shootduring the adolescent years and the ing startled me, said Mrs. Frey, I rushed out to se what was the matter. My husband could not see the house but came running to see if anything was wrong, and great trees were falling in every direction, fences were blown down and the outbuildings unteachers. The following officers were roofed, some of the roofs being carried 200 yards. Tips of burned snags broke off, filling the air and flying 50 to 60 feet, many of which were buried in the ground. While grading at Firwood this summer some of these treetops were unearthed. "This windfall felled a swath of timber three-fourths of a mile wide from Portland to Cedar creek no live timber falling beyond Cedar creek.

"It took 9 men 5 days to clear the road to Sandy, a distance of two and a half miles. The wind came from the southwest, there were no clouds and "In the same storm the steeple of the First Presbyterian church of Portland toppled over, and Gresham, which place had one house at that time, was medley of uprooted trees.' When the Freys went on their place the Malar land was the best place on the road east of Sandy, though there were some trails leading in other directions. Mr. Frey who has always been interested in the development of this section is proprietor of the Koessel and Frey meat market and has done business in that one block for 29 years in Portland, but Mr Frey would rather spend his time at the old ranch out here than any place in the world.
