Flying Hen Caught; Turks Go to Rescue

CANBY, Nov 9 .- A peculiar incident occurred in this city on Tuesday afternoon, displaying intellectual qual-Ities of two turkey hens that are awaiting the day when their heads will come off, heads that were "used" in freeing a hen when she was caught in

The hen, a White Leghorn was in a yard with other poultry together with the two turkeys, when flying became caught in the branches of a tree. The turkey hens seeing the predicament of the White Leghorn, walked leisuretheir necks up to the overhanging branches where Miss Leghorn was endeavering to free herself, took hold of the branches with their mouth and tugging away at them soon freed the hen. The turkeys walked away as un concerned as when coming to the rescue of the hen.

Canby Gardens Man Is Oregon Booster

CANBY, Nov. 2.-Mr Marsh, who purchased a tract of land at Canby about a year ago, located in the Canby Gardens, is a booster for Oregon. His former home was in the East, where the thermometer went many degrees below zero each year, and he says it went as far as 57 degrees below zero on one day, he decided to look elsewhere for a home. Hearing of the opportunities afforded in the West, he followed the advise of some of hi friends to try the western coast. Disly over to the tree, and stretching posing of his property interests in Wisconsin he started for Oregon, where he said that some of the Wisconsin people said 'i't rains all the time." "This is nothing to 57 degrees below zero," says Marsh, so off he started for Oregon, first settling at Corvallis. where he remained for awhile until he became interested in Clackanias coun ly, when he purchased his tract of land, consisting of ten acres, and planted to prunes. This at once appealed to the Wisconsin man when first visiting the place. Mr. Marsh says that no iner prunes can be raised than right in Clackamas county, and although the yield this year was not as large as in former years, the quality was about as fine as he had ever seen. The crop was easily disposed of for the cannery at Woodburn sent its trucks to the orchard and paid the market 'price the crop without the necessity of preparing it for shipping. Mr Marsh says even if he went back to his old home state to visit no one could hire him to remain away from Oregon, and he would be glad to be back in the old Webfoot state. He also says that this has been one of the Dies in California so says that this has been one of the for Oregon every time" is Mr. Marsh's
