COUNTY SCHOOLS NOW RANK AMONG BEST IN OREGON

WORK OF TEACHERS IS GIVEN PRAISE

New Association Officers are Chosen; Leonhardt Will Head Local Division

That Clackamas county schools are entitled to premier place among the counties of the state is the opinion expressed by educators who have visited during the annual institute, which Friday closed the last of three days session here.

J. W. Leonhardt was yesterday elected head of the Clackamas County Division of Oregon State Teacher's Association. He will succeed W. L. Arant, who has been president for the three years.

Work is Lauded According to E. D. Ressler, dean of vocational education at the O. A. C. and secretary of the Oregon association, the work of the local division during the last three years has shown greater progress, cooperation and activity than any other branch throughout the state.

Other officers selected were: N. W. Bowland, Oregon City, vice chairman; Lewis Reese, Milwaukie, secretary; Minnie Altman, Jennings Lodge, treasurer; W. L. Arant, J. L. Gary, West Linn, J. W. Abraham, Molalla, executive committee.

State Nominations Made Nominations for officers of the state association were also made as follows: President, C. A. Howard, Marshfield, vice president, Brenton Vedder, Gladstone.

Speaking to the morning session, J. A. Churchill, superintendent of public instruction characterized the objectives in education over the state of Oregon at the present time. More attention, he stated should be given to the fundamentals in the educational curriculum.

Present Movement Discussed One of the present movements, Mr. Churchill said, is the tendency for favoring the County Unit plan of taxation and administration. Under this plan all of the districts in the county, excepting those which are first class, would be grouped under one board of directors.

Standardization is Aim The study board, through a program of investigation, plans to arrive at a method which can be standardized, so that the cost of clearing can be reduced to a minimum, and so that it can be accurately figured.

Ben F. Irvine, publisher of the Oregon Journal spoke at the afternoon session. He emphasized the possibility for real service to society that lies at the hands of the teacher.

Realtors Plan Research Upon Land Problems

Legged off land, if it is made productive, is one of the greatest assets in the state, according to members of the local Realty board, who at their meeting last Monday night started plans for an exhaustive research upon this subject, especially as it affects Clackamas county.

At the state convention of the Realtors in Eugene, O. E. Freytag, president of the local board, was appointed chairman of the legged off land committee. The Realtors in their program of constructive work are investigating ways and means of clearing this land, which embraces some of the most fertile soil in the state.

OPEN DOORS IN BUSINESS

To the woman who would lead an out-door life and be her own boss, market gardening will make an appeal. If she applies her best brains to it, she understands the habits and needs of the various vegetables, fruits and flowers she would raise to sell, is near a good market with means of disposing of her wares conveniently and at a proper profit, and has the health and energy to look after the work, doing a large share of it herself and able to get some help when necessary, and results will be pleasing.

True, the conditions upon which success depends are numerous, but they may be met by one prepared and wise, and unless one is that, going into any business for one's self is a venture very likely to end in failure.

Market gardening is a seasonal occupation. It rushes one from early spring until fall and leaves more leisure during the winter, but the market gardener with a hot house may keep herself employed all winter.

From six to twenty acres is the average for market gardening. If the woman market gardener has more than she can herself care for, she is liable to find it difficult to employ the needed help. Before one purchases the land for the market garden, she should study her markets and transportation facilities.

Women are creatures of sympathy. Wherever need is we desire to relieve it—but the causes are many and resources not always adequate. It would help the situation if welfare interests were pooled into one Community Chest.
