Sled Hits Wood Pile; Youth Will Recover

Alfus Locke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Locke, of this city, is suffering from a broken rib, punctured lung, lacerated lip and bruises about the body, as a result of an accident while coasting down Twelfth street near the Barclay school house Monday evening. Locke, who is a student of the Oregon City high school, was guiding a bob-sled, at his rear being a number of teachers on the big sled, and in order not to strike another coaster, Locke turned his sled to the left striking with terrific force a wood pile near the James Brady home. The injured lad was carried into the Brady home by several of his companions, and Dr. Guy Mount summoned, who found the lad was suffering from a broken rib and painful bruises and cuts, and later taken to his home. Locke was the only one on the sled injured. Dr. Mount reported today the boy would recover.

Locke has charge of the mailing department of the Morning Enterprise and it will be several weeks before he will be able to resume his duties. It was first feared that he suffered from internal injuries.

There were several narrow escapes on Twelfth and Washington streets, two blocks from where the accident occurred, the same evening, when automobiles coming down the steep grade on Washington almost collided with several bob-sleds coming down Twelfth street.

There is something wrong with the fellow whose heart doesn't beat a little faster about this time of the year.

Society

A social time followed the regular prayer meeting services in the Congregational church parlors Thursday evening, the event was to observe the 81st birthday anniversary of Deacon James Wilkinson, who has served as deacon of that church for over 51 years, whose birthday occurred on Friday, December 16. In honor of this occasion a huge birthday cake was brought forth and adorned with candles arranged to form the figures "81." This was served with fruit juice and thoroughly enjoyed.

Mr. Wilkinson gave a brief history of his early life in Oregon City, and his early work in the church, which he has constantly attended since taking up his home in Oregon City. This is in part as follows:
"James Wilkinson was born in Antrim, northeast corner county of Ireland, in the province of Ulster, on a farm near the little village of Portlone, on Dec. 16, 1840.

At 14 years of age James Wilkinson left school to weave fine linen at home, where his father, one of the skilled hand loom weavers of his day and generation, kept three looms going in the big loom room at the rear of the kitchen.

December 16. Subscriber of Oregon City Enterprise over 50 years.

On August 30th, the marriage of James Wilkinson and Jane Kilgough took place at Abingdon, a small town close by their homes. They remained on the farm of Mr. Wilkinson's parents, occupying one of the houses James worked as a weaver until coming to America in 1863.

After working in the warehouses of the Boston & Albany Railroad Company for the year, they moved to Pittsfield, Mass., where Mr. Wilkinson engaged in his trade of weaving. Remain- ing there for three years, glowing letters about Oregon began appearing in the New York Herald, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson decided to come West and set sail from New York for the Western Coast, coming by way of the Isthmus of Panama. After arriving in San Francisco they were informed there was a big demand for weavers at Oregon City and they decided to take up their home in this state, arriving here on April 14th, 1867. Mr. Wilkinson was immediately employed at the Oregon City Woolen Mills where for years he engaged in making handsome blankets.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson took up their residence in what is now Green point, occupying a residence owned by the Deament estate, where he made his home for a number of years later purchasing property on what is now Fourteenth street, having resided continuously there for many years, and still his home. For over fifty years he has been a subscriber of the Oregon City Enterprise, never failing to renew his subscription each year. Mr. Wilkinson is one of the oldest subscribers of this paper, if not the oldest. For many years he served as superintendent of the Congregational Sunday school, and for years taught the Bible class. The impressive Elk's Lodge service was used, and Mrs. Water Westworth, of Canemah, well known vocalist, sang in a beautiful manner "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," "Abide With Me" and "Some Day We'll Understand." Mrs. Harold Webb, of Canemah, was the accompanist. The Elks Lodge and Commercial Club were largely represented at the service.

Rev. John Alexander Cleland, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, of this city, who officiated at a private service for the relatives at the Babcock home, previous to the service at the Elk's temple, conducted the burial service.
