AN IMPORTANT BRANCH

OF OUR BANK SERVICE

One of the most important branches of our bank service is the accommodation of our customers in the matter of credit extensions.

Occasions arise during the course of many business operations demanding greater capital than the proprietors can, of themselves, supply. The financing of increased business—the tiding over of a slack period—the planting and harvesting of crops—and other special conditions in various business undertakings, present unusual demands for ready cash.

In such contingencies our bank performs a service most vital to the financial prosperity of the vicinity by the loaning of funds on hand for limited periods of time.

Our customers will find that we are most courteous in the making of loans, that our terms are very reasonable, and that all transactions are held by us in the strictest confidence.

Uncle Sam wants every week to be "protection week" and sends out the following for this section: "He who fires and runs away, will live to pay a fine next day." Leave a clean camp and a dead fire. Help make a smokeless summer. The livestock needs grass and water. Fires destroy both of these. The national forests are the source of the streams; a forest of fire that takes 200 years to grow may be destroyed in as many minutes by fire. No forest, no wealth, no forest, no health.

There is a fine of $500, or 12 month imprisonment or both for setting a fire in the national forest and letting it get beyond control, or for leaving it without completely extinguishing.

EX-SERVICE MAN WRITES OF CALIFORNIAN TOUR

Dan J. Finucane, world war veteran, and son of P. S. Finucane, of this city, who is suffering from effects of gas received while over-seas, and who has been in a government hospital in Portland receiving medical treatment, recently transferred to Camp Kearney, Cal. He writes to his father in this city of the excellent treatment he is receiving in the south.

In the letter Dan says: "I am well pleased with this camp. The people are so kind here to the ex-service men, treating them with great honor. It was very cold coming over the mountains, and the following morning I found that we had reached a beautiful valley in California. About mid-day we arrived at a settlement where the people were founting under the shade trees. It was a great surprise to me for it was raining to beat the band when I left home. The next morning we reached that wonderful city—Los Angeles. At the depot the Red Cross representatives met us, and escorted us around the city and then out to the beach, and we certainly had a fine time. The following morning I went up to the veterans' headquarters for transportation to San Diego. I was informed that I could remain there for another day if I desired, so the boys and I took advantage of this offer, and remained for the extra day, which we did not regret, for we were given a royal reception, allowed to attend shows and everything else free.

"I arrived at Camp Kearney on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

"One of the features of this trip which I could not help but notice were the homes of the American Legion boys at the little towns along the way and Oregon City is mighty slow in not having one for its Legion. One would think that a city of its size could afford to erect a building if smaller cities can do so. It seems that the boys serving in the world war are appreciated down here.

"To show that the climate here agrees with me, I have already gained three pounds, a pound a day, for I have been here three days.

"All disabled men are allowed to walk around the grounds instead of being confined to our rooms, and the rest hours are from 10 to 11 a. m. and from 1 to 3 p. m.

"My address is U. S. Veterans' Hospital No. 64, Camp Kearney, Cal, and would like to hear from all my friends as this will keep me from getting lonesome."

Special blanks have arrived at the headquarters of the American Legion, and the secretary, Julius Spagle, is desirous of members holding any claims against the United States government for services during the world war to notify him so that all claims may be adjusted.

MAN IS RESCUED FROM DROWNING IN WILLAMETTE

Adam Kessler is saved from Watery Grave; Finucane Boys Give Aid at Risk of Own Lives; 2 Endangered.

BOAT IS LOST IN GRIP OF FALLS WHIRLPOOL

Victim Is Resuscitated After Half Hour's Work; Death Is Said Narrowly Averted.

After having been nearly drowned in the rushing waters below the Willamette Falls, Adam Kessler, a local fisherman today owes his life to "Dub" and Sam Finucane.

At noon Wednesday, Kessler was fishing near the Willamette Falls when the boat, containing him and his companion, drifted near to the swirl at the base of the fall. The craft entered one of the small whirl pools and shipped water over the side. It was whirled around, and filled so rapidly with a side under that the men were thrown into the stream.

Kessler's companion was rescued from the disabled craft, but Kessler himself was washed heavily by the current.

The Finucane boys who were fishing nearby, cut their anchor upon seeing the predicament of the craft. The number of fishing boats near the falls and the swift and uncertain current of the river made any attempts at rescue exceedingly precarious.

Any attempt to give aid to the drowning man was nearly at the expense of the rescuers lives.

Kessler was picked up in almost fatal condition. The Finucane boys gave him first aid for more than a half hour before he was revived and it is believed that a very few moments marked the difference between life and death.

The water logged craft was picked up down the river where it drifted by some of the other fishermen.

During the day the report, emanating from the accident, was circulated around the city that someone had been drowned. Employees in the mills saw the empty craft floating by.

It was believed last night that Kessler would fully recover from the effects of the accident. His companion, whose name had not been learned, was not seriously endangered.
