ROAD CONSTRUCTION IN OREGON IS COMMENDED

(From the Portland Telegram.)
California is committed to concrete highways as against bitumints. But as is generally known that state has been laying a four-inch paving, the thinnest paving in the country. This having been found too weak, the standard state paving has been thickened to five-inch and a light steel reinforcement added.

In this test thirteen types of concrete paving were laid on an oblong track and subjected to the wear of thirty-five army trucks loaded with pig iron to the weight of ordinary truck loads. These traveled a total of 61,639 miles on this track carrying over the same section the same load—3,668,100 ton in the total.

Innovation in Paving Used.
Of these thirteen sections only three are of the type generally used in the west. Two sections were of the new California standard type, differing only in that beneath the one a crushed rock bed was laid one foot in thickness in the middle and four inches thick at the edges. No other sections had any rock in the subgrade. Both California types failed utterly.

These evidences and studies show that steel reinforcement adds strength to the concrete road slab; but that the same cost put into extra thickness of concrete is more effective. It shows that even at the present low price of steel it is more economical to place the same investment in thick concrete than in thin heavily reinforced slabs. Sixty-nine tons of steel to the mile does not give the added strength to a five-inch slab of concrete that one added inch of concrete does.

Deterioration Explained.
Two sections of eight-inch concrete and one section of seven-inch concrete, both unreinforced, showed the most no deterioration under the traffic. In concrete unreinforced under ordinary highway conditions. It is interesting also to know that the Oregon standard type, of seven-inch unreinforced paving, stood the test and therefore seems fit to be classed as permanent paving.

Deduct 25 per cent from these figures to reduce them to gold rates, and it is cheaper than ever before, and less than half what it was a few years ago.

QUICK SALES Independent of Foreign Markets ARE HELPING Home Products To Aid Progress IN RECOVERY

By Robert E. Smith
President, Lumbermen Trust Company Bank, Portland, Ore.
Business is improving. Furthermore, the improvement is due to the movement of our own products and not to the artificial stimuli of outside conditions. In short, we are again standing on our own legs, and by our own efforts are going forward. It is most promising. The situation is most satisfactory. The situation is most promising. It indicates that we have hit the bottom. From now on, we can build solidly for an enduring period of increasingly better times. Recovery, however, will not be rapid, neither can we look for anything that resembles boom times, but we can count on a general improvement that will favorably affect labor, merchants, jobbers and our major industries, lumber, livestock and wheat particularly.

Oregon's Position Shown.
A brief glance backward shows clearly why Oregon has cause for optimism. During the war there was a great industrial inflation. The huge shipyards, small boat-building plants, the airplane spruce operations, the railroad construction and allied lines of endeavor brought millions on millions of outside gold into the cities of our state. An immense army of workers likewise was imported. Our farmers, stockmen, lumbermen, cannery men and all producers of food stuffs were paid high prices for their goods. Everybody had money, and as the flood of gold went higher, prices likewise bounded upward.

And Oregon came to lean on this stout, though temporary prop. Then as suddenly almost, as it had come, it was withdrawn, and the economic edifice began to crumble.
With very few exceptions the wreckage has been cleared away through readjustments. It has been painful. There are a number of lines that are due for more pains yet, because they have not gotten in line with the rigid rules that govern men and business alike, and override ultimately whatever artificial barriers are erected to stave off their enforcement.

Repts received by the Lumbermen Trust Company Bank from various sources are as follows:
Lumbering and Logging
Loggers are supplying logs in sufficient quantity to meet the demands of the mills. The prices are remunerative. Mills that have capital in hand are enjoying all the business they care to take on at the present time. The domestic orders are good. Railroads are coming into the market again. The inquires alike from the Atlantic seaboard and the middle west are increasing. Though the country there is watered and revival of building operations, and every indication is for improved business.

Japan, which has been out of the market on account of over speculative buying, now is coming back. Little lumber is being sold in Australia, but the orders from the Atlantic coast for water shipments are promising. Operating costs have been lowered, and conditions now are healthy.
Jobbing and Wholesale
Prospects are much brighter and with clearing weather and the breaking of the extreme cold in the interior, business is increasing. In the hardware line, the volume of business is greater than at this time last year. Farmers will enter the market very soon and will materially increase consumption. Collections have slowed down, due largely to the fact that this month was taxpaying time. There is a tendency for lower quotations on shoes, but indications are for a slight advance on woollens and possibly cottons. Retailers are buying carefully and in small quantities. The people are slowly accustoming themselves to small incomes and the dollar's increasing purchase power.

Retail Business
The cash income from retail line is slightly under that of last year but the volume is over the same period of a year ago. This difference is due to more buying on one hand and reduced prices on the other. The prospects are for a fairly good season. Collections are good. Merchants generally report that where prices have been reduced customers show no inclination to buy, but that people are much keener at shopping than have been for a number of years.
Manufacturing
Generally the manufacturing lines have not hit their stride. Many of them are in need of greater operating capital. Much of their trouble in fact is due to under financing. Those able to finance themselves report satisfactory business. The power companies report many new electric power customers, most of them small industrial.

Labor
There has been a marked decrease in unemployment, as compared to last month. Opening of spring work, the multiplicity of new odd jobs, ranging from gardening and repairing to outside work in mills, camps, etc., has taken up the slack. At the present time there are many men unemployed from choice; they will not leave the city.
Tourist Prospects
A good season is anticipated by hotels and railroads. Plans are now being made to entertain a large influx of tourists from the middle west and north.

Wash the nickel on your stove frequently with hot soapy water and dry with a soft cloth or paper and this will keep it in good condition. When it is necessary to scour it use a fine whiting or some good scour. If the nickel becomes dull it is usually an indication that the plating is worn off.
Washable Wall Paper.
So-called washable wall papers should not be washed with much water or it will be loosened from the wall. It may be wiped with a damp cloth and then wiped off. To varnish it with very thin varnish will help to make it resist dirt and be more easily cleaned. To rinse a heavy rag rug or carpets which you have washed, hang on

The Woman's Column. By Florence Riddick-Boys

TOASTING FATHER
(By Harriet G. Fulmer.)
Sometimes in the morning
We think it a bother
To get up so early
And make toast for Father.
But, Mothers, remember—
That's part of our work.
The one duty none of us
Ever should shrink.

For what would we do
If he got indigestion
And went on a strike?
Now answer that question.
And the first of the month,
When he's showered with bills,
Would flatter refuse
To pay for our frills.

Just stop for a moment
And think how we'd look
If we hadn't behind us
Dear Father's check-book!
Then let us most cheerfully
Toast Father—Bless him!—
Nor ever neglect
To feed and caress him.

STYLE SHOW
Many women know how to dress tastefully and economically and many do not. There is much to be learned by women how appropriate and artistic is clothing. Why not have a Style Show, thereby helping to educate the public in the gentle art of dressing? There are many features which could make it interesting. Use living models to show the appropriate dress for the high school girl, the child at play, the business woman, the farmerette, the outing girl, the house wife in her kitchen and many others. In contrast to these show their opposites: humorous, ridiculous, and extreme get-up for all these occasions. Young girls love to act as the models, and the stores generally are glad to loan ready-made garments. It would prove of never-fading interest to the eyes of woman-kind and men, too, never tire of seeing women, like the seasons, come and go in their varied dresses.

Have M. O. G. (Made-Over Garment) exhibit. Also have home made hats, with prizes or blue ribbons awarded for best entries. This would be an appropriate time to have a Home Demonstrator visit the community and give a lecture or a Dress Form demonstration. Inquire of your University or of the Agricultural department of the government if you may borrow a film or a lecture for the occasion. A witty poem or paper prepared by some person will be interesting.

HISTORICAL TREASURES
Ransacking the attic is a pleasure denied city flat-dwellers; but many a rural house contain historical treasures of whose worth the owners are entirely unaware. More and more we burn our bridges behind us, that we may be free to "act, act in the living present." In housecleaning, valuable relics are in danger of being swept over to the junk man.
It would be a splendid thing, if in each community, the clubs would collect and preserve such things in a historical museum in some public building. Carefully labeled and safeguarded here, they would be a satisfaction and education—not only to the original household from whence they came, but to the whole community and future generations.

When cleaning the attic, look for old letters, old papers, an ancient chair, trunk, worn, map, picture top utensils, weapon or whatnot. If you cannot care for these yourself, phone your Women's club president about them. Such articles are often saleable at a good price and is better to dispose of them to one who will prize them than let them be destroyed.

WOMAN-TORIALS
Toronto, has the first Canadian League of Women Voters. It is affiliated with the U. S. National League. Three Canadian Women's Clubs—two in Montreal and one in Ottawa—have joined the General Federation of Women's Clubs. This is "International Friendliness" becoming a fact.
New Hampshire Women's Clubs have adopted the slogan, "A Club for every woman, every woman for a club."

Mothers, are your boy and girl taking manual training and Domestic Science at school, and do you give them a chance to practice it at home, mending the steps, building a screen porch, installing electric lights, papering rooms, staining floors, making dyings, trimming hats, mending, duffing and remaking dresses and otherwise making this knowledge practical?
Thirty-two women's organizations in England have adopted resolutions asking the Government to do all in their power "to achieve a general limitation of armament" and "to promote a policy of international co-operation whereby the security of state may be assured without resource to force."

THIRTY YEARS AGO.

The teachers' association will meet on Friday night in the Pope's hall and continue its session through Saturday. An attractive program has been prepared for the occasion.
A new company has been formed called the Sunset Land Company, with John J. Cooke as president. The company has platted the tract just above paper mills on the west side into lots, the same to be called Sunset City.
The city election will occur next Monday.

Eastern Oregon Wool—Councilman J. G. Porter returned on Sunday from a trip to Eastern Oregon, having gone there on business for the Oregon City Woolen Mills. He went as far as Hepper and then returned making but few purchases. Sheep shearing is late this year. The weather has been unfavorable that very little shearing has been done so far. Most of the sheepmen expect to get 14 to 16 cents a pound for the wool which will range only from eight to 14 cents for the Eastern Oregon clip. Mr. Porter will make a similar trip to Eastern Oregon where the flocks shall have been shorn.
Republican Campaign Committee—In accordance with the instructions of the Republican county central committee last week Chairman Brownell appointed the following members to fever, will not return to Oregon City, tea for the campaign: Thomas F. Ryan, Oregon City; John Kruse, of Wilsonville; Frank Jaggar, Highland; James Roots, Clackamas.

Wind Storm—The worst wind storm that has visited our city for years prevailed last Sunday. A few frail signs were wrecked and some of the shingles were blown from the houses. On Fifth and Main street two cottonwood trees were prostrated, the tip of the one at the corner of Logus & Albright's meat market touching a nearby saloon, and the one of the opposite side of the street just grazing the blacksmith shop of Winestet & Scripture. Apple and other fruit trees lost their blossoms, but not enough to make the crop short.

Mrs. C. T. Hickman, of this city, left last Monday for Maysville, Mo., where she will visit her parents. She will then make a visit to relatives in New York state. Her young son accompanied her.
R. M. Rosenbarn, who went to California for the benefit of his health, having recently suffered from typhoid fever, will not return to Oregon City, and his place as superintendent of the Crown Paper Company mill has been filled by W. P. Hawley, who comes from the Remington mills at Watertown, N. Y. Mr. Hawley's family will occupy a cottage on Washington street between 11th and 12th, that is being erected by J. M. Taylor.

Attorney J. E. Hedges, of Portland, visited his parents in Canemah last Sunday.
W. W. Marrs left last Thursday for Hepper, where he will erect a wool press.

Grandma Telford, of Canemah, is quite ill at the home of her son of that place.
There will be a meeting of Meade Post G. A. R. and Women's Relief Corps next Tuesday evening for the purpose of arranging the Memorial Day program.
