George Edward Pusey, Jr., only child of Mr. and Mrs. George Pusey, Sr., of this city, died Saturday morning at 7:30 o'clock at the Portland Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat hospital, where he underwent three major operations for mastoid. While a student of the Oregon Agricultural College the young man was stricken with influenza in February, terminating in mastoid, and was immediately brought here for medical treatment, and later moved to the Portland institution, where the best of specialists were secured and were in constant attendance. He partially recovered from the first operation and able to return to Oregon City, but three weeks ago suffered from an infection and returning to the institution, it was found necessary to perform other operations, which were among the most critical ever performed at that hospital.

Hope Entertained Friday. Hopes were entertained a few days ago and even on Friday evening of his recovery, and his condition had changed for the better. At an early hour Saturday another relapse took place, although he was able to converse with his mother, shortly before his death. The father and mother have been in constant attendance at their son's bedside since stricken, and they are prostrated with grief. No young man was held in higher esteem in Oregon City than was George Pusey, Jr. When word was received in Oregon City, announcing his death, there was much regret expressed by the many friends of the young man and the family. Kirk, superintendent of the Oregon City high school, and former instructor of the young man, expressed regret in hearing of his former student's death, saying that no more gentlemanly young man ever attended his school in his years of experience as a teacher, than Pusey, and that he was always dependable and capable and had a bright future. L. A. King, athletic instructor, says he was one of the finest boys he had ever met, and perfectly built for an athlete, although Pusey took little interest in athletics during his schooling.

The services are to be held at Chautauqua park in Gladstone. The joint service for all of the schools was held last year and proved so successful that it is planned to make it a regular permanent. An effort is being made this year to standardize the dress worn by the students with the view to placing as little burden as possible on the parents. White middie dresses are suggested for the girls and ordinary apparel for the boys. In connection with the ceremony, Mr. Vedder points out that any students who do not fail in more than two subjects in the May examination should attend. If they pass the subsequent June examination in these subjects, diplomas will be awarded later. Work of correcting the May papers is under way.

The city council is scheduled to meet during the coming week at which further consideration will be given the South End road problem. As the matter now stands, the portion from the undergrade crossing at Fifth street to the city limits is financed through the contribution of four corporations interested in the location of the road. Final action on the part of the commission is being held until the city makes arrangements to guarantee the improvement of the necessary streets so that a paved connection between the Willamette River Bridge and the new road is assured.
