LACK OF JOBS IN EAST
PRACTICALLY VANISHED

NEW YORK, June 2.—The most deserted places in New York are the waiting rooms of the unemployment agencies. Where five months ago there were long lines of discouraged men waiting in line to apply for work, one now finds the offices empty and the clerks reading the newspapers.

STORY OF AIRPLANE WRECK IS TOLD
Lieutenant Ayres, pilot of Plane Dropped at Barlow Cites Future Possibilities of Aircraft Development.

A graphic account of the airplane mishap which resulted in the forced landing of Lieutenant V. U. Ayres at Barlow on Tuesday night is related by the aviator.

"On Decoration Day I took Miss Eilfreda, noted lady aerial acrobat, accompanied by naval air expert G. F. Green, to decorate the graves of her five brothers, who were killed in the late war, buried at Dallas," he said.

"We spent the day in Dallas till 8:45 p. m. when we 'hopped off' in the dark for the return journey. All went fine till we were almost back over Oregon City when a small quarter inch water pipe cracked after it had been badly bent by one of the curious spectators at Dallas. An immediate landing was necessary to keep from overheating the motor so I made a quick turn toward Barlow and the 6000 foot descent in the dark was begun, which as usual terminated successfully just over a hop yard and into the backyard of Mrs. A. Tremayne. She said supper was just over but when callers unexpectedly 'drop in' from cloudland she could and did certainly prepare one glorious dinner."

"After repairing the plane I took Miss Celena Tremayne up to enjoy the wonders of the aerial visions." Questioned as to the development of aviation the Lieutenant said: "It is amazing how small a realization the American people have of the value and benefits to be derived from aviation. The possibilities of the airplane in the reduction of national expenditures are practically unknown. The tremendous and accurate knowledge of details that can be obtained

Do You Remember?

Stories of the Old Pioneers and Yarns from Old Newspapers.

Do you remember when the Indians used to come here to catch salmon at the falls? Likewise do you remember when they used to build their salmon traps on the Clackamas? Do you remember that they were built or designed with quite a bit of skill.

The trap proper would be built at the foot of some rapid place where conditions were just right, and wings were built out far back from the trap, up stream out as boulders.

When all was ready a number of canoes would proceed up stream some distance, take on a load of rock aboard the canoes. These they would throw in the river, and make all the noise and disturbance possible, and drive the salmon into the traps—perhaps a ton or more at a clip.

If you've witnessed one of these drives you've seen something worth while. If you never have the probabilities are you never will, for salmon are almost extinct as compared with those days.

Do you remember when the wife of Indian Henry hung herself at Dickey Prairie? Do you remember that he took his best horse out to her grave and shot it so that she would have something to ride "over yonder."

Do you remember Suisap, the Indian, who used to play ball with the Oregon City boys? Remember how he used to talk about the boys of later days playing with "pillows" on their hands.

They used to play bare-handed in those days and you may remember, some of you, how his fingers and hands were crippled and bent, for he never went to a doctor if a finger got out of a joint. E. A. H.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Taken from the Oregon City Enterprise June 3, 1892.

George F. Horton is a good man to elect county clerk to continue the present efficient administration of that office. He is a skilled accountant, has had a varied experience in public and private business and will handle the affairs of the office in a prompt and satisfactory manner.

Improvement of Fifteen Street—Considerable work is being done on Fifteen street so as to give the residents of "Kansas City" a more convenient outlet. Most of the improvement consists of grading down the hill between Madison and Jefferson streets, and filling in the depression between Monroe and Madison. The improvement will cost about $200 and will be paid by private subscription, or property owners of the neighborhood. Street Superintendent Hilberg is applying a portion of the street tax improvement.

FIFTY-FOUR YEARS AGO.

Taken from the Oregon City Enterprise June 6, 1868.

Oregon shipped, through Portland, last month 31,826 sacks of wheat, 9,245 casks of wheat, 4,524 sacks of oats, 3,791 boxes of apples, and a large variety of produce, including manufactured goods.

We learn that another paper is soon to be started in Washington territory.

The Athletics of Portland came to this city on Saturday last to play a match game with the Tumwater, but owing to the inclemency of the weather the game was postponed until a more favorable opportunity.

The Sabbath school of this city will have an exhibition on Thursday and Friday of next week. The exercises from the air could in itself be made a potent factor in the reduction of our national costs. Intimate topographical knowledge could alone effect a saving of billions of dollars.

The value of information that can be prepared by aerial photography is inestimable. To know where pasture land is best; what sort of soil predominates in various sections; which timber lands should be reforested to the best advantage; where to intelligently log off desirable tracts and locate logging roads with the minimum of future efficiency in results.

"Transportation by airplane in so far as America is concerned is yet in its infancy. The safety and speed of this new method are not fully realized and a general impression is that the air is dangerous. Statistics compiled by the United States government show that while the automobile kills one person for every 246,000 miles of travel but one life is lost in every 702,000 miles of aerial travel.

"Unfortunately the average pilot has only become proficient in flying and is not blessed with sufficient funds to carry on a philanthropic campaign. The cost of flying is reduced as far as possible and the present charge of $30 per 100 miles is barely above the actual expense entailed in operating the plane."

Lieut. Vern U. Ayres is president of the Ayres Aviation Service with headquarters and aerodrome on the municipal aviation field at Sellwood. He served with the British Royal Flying Corps for two years and when the United States entered the war he joined the U. S. Army. He flew to Portland from New York two years ago coming via Los Angeles. In connection with his enterprise in Portland he has four aeroplanes and one hydroplane in operation. He is attempting to introduce the aeroplane as a serious and valuable asset in the commercial expansion of the state and believes that if the public take the time to study this question they will rapidly realize that the aeroplane will solve the problems of the future.

will consist of declamations, dialogues, tableaux and singing. The proceeds of the affair will go towards the Sunday school library.

Last Wednesday the news reached this city that James Buchanan was dead. The occasion was seized by the democracy to display a flag at half mast; and it is a little singular that this is the first instance since Fort Sumpter fell, that they have displayed a national banner. The flag is owned by the Union people of this city, and was borrowed by the democracy on the occasion, and it is not probable that they will display another banner until Jeff Davis is hung, when it will be displayed again at half-mast, provided the Union people will lend it to them for such purpose.

The Oregonian of Wednesday says: "A considerable delegation of Democrats from Oregon City came down on one of the steamers last evening to join in the democratic circus, of the postponement of which they have not heard. They renewed their allegiance, looking through the bottom of a tumbler, and returned to Oregon City without having carried any torch.

Mr. Diller is selling ice of home manufacture, and was put up at the basin of the P. T. Company, of this city, last night. It is the finest ice we have seen on the coast—varies but little less than ten inches in thickness, and nearly as transparent as glass.

RACE DRIVER IS FINED;
TRAFFIC OFFICER BUSY

D. Voss, who was to have piloted one of the race cars at the Salem speedway, mistook the River road between Oregon City and Parkplace for the track, and ran afoul of State Traffic Officer Griffith. The officer stated in court that Voss was doing 45 miles an hour, and the judge decided that the acts were exactly $25 and costs against the driver. Charges of operating the machine without state license plates and failing to have a driver's license were also brought.

ESTACADA TEAM BOLTS;
MAN'S RIBS FRACTURED

ESTACADA, June 1.—While Louis Mayea was coming down the Springwater hill to Estacada Tuesday afternoon, on a lumber wagon, one of the horses became frightened and the team ran away, throwing Mayea to the ground and rendering him temporarily unconscious. Dr. Rhodes examined Mayea's injuries and besides severe bruises he found two ribs fractured.

The Woman's Column.

By Florence Riddick-Boys

FATE
Fate did not give me what I asked,
—She gave me more.
I knew not life. I saw it masked
And chose my store.

Glory, and wealth, and ease I craved,
As youth will do.
I sought false treasures, but was
And given true.

For common life, I had not wit
To make request;
But Fate was kind and dealt me in—
Dealt me her best!

CLUB CONVENTION

Among the marvelous things women are doing today is convening—in immense, world-including assemblies—and talking over their affairs and the things they aim to do to help make the world a better home for all of us to live in. It is the eternal housewifely and motherly multiplied by X, and stretched to embrace the ends of the earth.

Following closely upon the heels of the great Pan-American Conference, the biggest thing of its kind so far, comes the Biennial of the General Federation of Women's Clubs to be held at Chautauqua, N. Y., June 21-30. There will be delegates and visitors from many countries and international features will be emphasized.

"Women as a Working Power," will be the key-phrase of this convention, which aims, rather to please nor to instruct, though it will do both, but to unite the world's organized women into a great working power. It will so perfect its wonderful organization and machinery that it will be well-nigh certain to sweep on to victory in the accomplishment of those things which the women of the world determine they want to do.

There will be attractions by masters in the lines of international relations, women's responsibilities, conservation, citizenship, outlawry of war, child welfare, public health, the movies, art, literature, and music. Numerous entertaining features on an elaborate scale are planned, among these a magnificent Biblical Pageant.

As Chautauqua is a camp, and elastic, it can accommodate comfortably the 15,000 delegates and visitors. Railroads are making reduced rates and room and board may be had at from $20 to $30 a week.

Club women are rarely social butterflies, but the most sensible and altruistic women to be found anywhere. (Social butterflies will please pardon the implication!) This convention will be marked by unusual simplicity. There will be no luncheons nor dinners, but one big reception, sport clothes, appropriate for a summer resort, will be worn generally. One evening dress will be sufficient.

WOMAN-TORIALS
The "Milk-Line."

The bread-line is old, like the poor whom we have always with us; but the "milk-line" is something new under the sun. In many schools it transforms undernourished children into fat and rollicking youngsters, through the pint-of-milk-daily method. The teacher removes the cap from the milk bottle, inserts a straw, and the child does the rest. The milk makes 'em grow—that's the "milky way."

Women—the Spenders.
Those who have anything to sell should play to women; they are the spenders. A recent survey reports that they buy as follows: Of dry goods—96% of all that is sold; of foods—87%; of hardware—49%; of automobiles—41%; of drugs—51%; of phonographs—60%.

The Flapper.
No, dear reader, the term "Flapper" did not come from the flap flap of the galeosh, although the flap of the galeosh did come from the flapper. Originally the flapper was a young duck (See the connection?) not yet able to fly. Our flapper is a "sub-deb," a girl too young to make her debut into society.

We would never recognize her by the flippant term flapper, but she is Longfellow's, "Maiden with the meek brown eyes, In whose orb a shadow lies; Standing with reluctant feet Where the brook and river meet." Recently the character of extremist has been imputed to her. Whenever anywhere one of her number does anything outlandish, some avid reporter, with exaggerated pen and parlance, will haste to herald it to the world, which then charges that freakishness against all our girls. It is, unfair. There are eccentric individuals in the early teens, as all along the line, but, as a class, our young women are as wholesome and sound as ever. It is no more a sin to be fourteen than it is to be forty-one.

TEACHING OUR CHILDREN HABITS
We mothers get so tired harping along certain lines of family discipline as our families get tired of hearing us harp (to use a euphonious name for an unpleasant sound). However there are matters of conduct so important to the welfare of our children that we dare not relax our agitation of them.

For instance, there is the cleaning of the children's teeth. It should be done twice daily, and probably would not be done at all were it not for our continuous prodding. But we need not scold and rant about it. There are sweeter and better ways; gentle mother-tricks, insidious suggestions and devices.

"Tooth-some" conversations, explaining the nature, use and beauty of teeth; advertising pictures concerning teeth posted up in the bathroom; a regular time for cleaning the teeth; pleasant tasting tooth paste, and a tube of it the possession of each child; and, above all, a splendid example of tooth care—all this will help to keep them at it.

The same principles may be applied to other lines of child training.

WOOLEN MILLS TO PLAY AT WEST LINN SUNDAY

The Crown Willamette baseball team will play the Portland Woolen Mill team at West Linn on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Much interest is being taken among the paper mill employees at West Linn and the Oregon City Manufacturing company in this city. A large delegation from Portland will be here to watch the Portland Woolen Mills, while Camas and Lebanon will also be represented when they are to root for the Crown Willamettes.

TRADE COMMISSIONERS HIT AT STEEL COMBINE

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The federal trade commission today struck at the big Bethlehem-Lackawanna steel merger. Charging that the merger, when consummated, would violate anti-trust laws and "contain a dangerous tendency to hinder competition," the commission issued a formal complaint against the two companies.
