Bride of Month Asks Divorce As Spouse Is Jailed

Henry Dillon, in jail awaiting trial on a serious statutory charge, Friday was sued for a divorce by the woman he married a month and a half ago. The complaint, alleging infidelity, cruelty, and making statutory accusations, was filed by Bessie Dillon asking severance of bonds contracted at Vancouver on election day, May 19, 1922.

Dillon, in default of $2,500 bail, is awaiting the action of the grand jury on a complaint charging the criminal assault of Sady Kelly, 23, of Milwaukie, who was in his employ for a few days. Dillon was arrested Monday night last at Portland by Constable F. E. Lowe after a day's search for the Ardenwald rancher. It is charged in the complaint that Dillon hired the Kelly girl as a domestic and three days later approached her. The girl stayed over night with the neighbors, and returning the next day for her trunk, was attacked. The complaint was filed by her father.

Dillon had been married before. His wife died about two years ago and he moved from Fern Ridge to Ardenwald. On election day the courthouse was closed here and Bernice Hartness and Dillon went to Vancouver to be married.

Immediately after, Dillon began to abuse her, the complaint states, and maltreated her four year old son without cause. On June 2, she left him. During that time he had contributed nothing to her support, she claims, although she gave him $500 to keep for her. Dillon, she alleges, is worth $5,000 and able to pay her $25 a month permanent alimony in addition to $200 attorneys fees and costs. She also asks the return of her former name of Bernice Hartness.

Suits for divorce filed Friday were: W. E. against G. Palmer, married in Denver August 25, 1914; Dorothy against Charles Borders, married in Seattle February 20, 1914; and Ola against Clyde Anderson, married in Vancouver, March 17, 1917.

Other divorces filed were: Winnifred M. against Charles R. Brown, married in Marion county November 21, 1921, and Florence against Norman Iveson, married in Portland January 31, 1914.

An order in the divorce suit of Fred O. against Zola Barker was entered, altering the previous decree of separation and requiring the payment of $40 a month to the defendant, who was awarded the custody of two minor children. Attorneys' fees of $250 were allowed.

COMMISSION INSPECTS ROOSEVELT ROAD ROUTE

MARSHFIELD, July 8.—Inspection of the Roosevelt highway route was under way today by the Oregon state highway commission with minds open but with a distinct understanding that the presence of the body is not to be taken as any sort of promise for the carrying out of the project as Coos county people in particular and the other coast counties in general may want it carried out.

This understanding was arrived at last night at a banquet tendered Governor Ben Olcott and the commission by the Marshfield Chamber of Commerce at the Chandler hotel. It was reached in the course of a series of informal but frank talks by the visitors and J. C. Kendall, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who presided.

THROUGH THE AUDIENCE Sidelights on the Campers and Visitors at the Twentieth Annual Session of the Gladstone Chautauqua

As Friday was G. A. R. and W. R. C. Day, many old veterans of the Civil War were on the grounds exchanging reminiscences of war time of the '60's. It was while exchanging these reminiscences H. S. Clyde, who was adjutant of the day in the G. A. R. headquarters, told of his experience when enlisting in the volunteer army when a lad of 16 years of age. Owing to his age he was rejected, and determined to fight for his country, next applied to the regular army and he was taken in and considered one of the best soldiers of the company. He served with Company H, 13th U. S. Infantry, and was under the command of William Sherman. Mr. Clyde, although 77 years of age, still reads without glasses and when asked if he never wore glasses said, "Why no! I bought a pair for long distance a few days ago and they're no good. Can see better without them." He is past commander of Meade Post No. 2, G. A. R.

T. B. McDevitt, of Portland, was on the grounds on July 8th, and is one of the most prominent of the G. A. R. men. He is past commander of the department of Oregon, and assisted in the organization of Lincoln and Garfield posts of Portland. He well remembers when there were but two posts in the state. He has resided in Oregon for the past 56 years. He was wounded in battle at Boton, Mass., during the Civil War. Although 79 years of age Mr. McDevitt appears to be many years younger.

John Barton, prominent resident of Portland, and one of the staunchest republicans of the West, was enjoying himself with the other soldier boys of the Civil War on Friday, Mr. Barton, who is 81 years of age, enjoys his trip to the park. He was with Company K, 14th Illinois Infantry, and met many of his old time friends while in the park.

R. C. Mackie, who was a member of Company A, 34th Illinois Infantry, was among the soldier boys of the Civil War visiting the grounds on Friday. His home is at 618 Prescott street, Portland.

Christopher Hoberg, who was many years ago city superintendent of Oregon City, now making his home in Portland, was among the members of the G. A. R. attending the patriotic exercises on Friday. Mr. Hoberg is familiarly known by his many friends as "Chris".

William McClellan, of Oregon City, who was flier in Company G, 142 Ohio Infantry during the Civil War, played some of the old war time tunes on the same fife at the patriotic exercises on Friday. He is 78 years of age.

J. A. Conter, who was drummer boy in the Civil War, took part in the exercises on Friday. He is a member of the Oregon City Fife and Drum Corps, but was taken suddenly ill during the program, necessitating to "give up" for the afternoon, but his many friends are pleased to hear of his recovery.

Austin Stephens, 83 years of age, and H. S. Clyde were boys together, residing in the same neighborhood at Gladstone. They went through battle together, and are now neighbors at Gladstone. Stephens bears marks of the battle at Vicksburg, when he was shot in the leg, but says he wasn't running from the enemy, only "making for the rascal," when he received the bullet. The bullet is still in his leg to remind him just what happened on that day. Clyde says that although Stephens is a few years his senior, he well remembers the time when he was employed by the former when driving six yoke of oxen and being paid the big sum of "four bits" per day. This was considered fair wages for a boy of 14 years. Both attended the Friday assembly.

The Oregon City Meade Post Drum Corps rendering music on Friday was composed of J. A. Conter, 79; E. B. Grant, 76; J. T. Butler, 76; W. H. McClellan, 78; Henry Jones, 78; J. S. Vaughan, 79; W. H. Brooks, 76. The combined ages make 542 years.

R. J. Taylor was the only one from Company I, Reg. Frontier Cavalry registering at the headquarters on Friday. His home is in Portland. Eugene Besanacan was the only one from the 22nd N. Y. Mounted Rifles attending the patriotic exercises.

A. J. Hoble, commander of Meade Post, who is 77 years of age, still bears the appearance of a soldier. He was among the visitors Friday, and has taken an unusual interest in the Chautauqua proceedings.

R. J. Duffey is an Irish name, and he made good with Company D, 43rd Missouri Infantry during the Civil War, and although 74 years of age is still as full of patriotism as on the day he enlisted. He was "there" on Friday when the drum corps began its patriotic selections.

F. Warner was another one, who served under Sherman and visited the Chautauqua on Friday. His home is in Portland.

J. C. Sawyer, 84 years of age, assisted J. A. Roake in setting off the "fireworks" during the noon hours at the Chautauqua grounds on Friday. Many a fire works this man saw while serving his country with Company H, 16th Vermont Infantry, during the Civil War. He got as much fun out of this as did a boy with the firecrackers on the Fourth, and knew how to handle the cannon as well as did the owner, J. A. Roake.

James Griffith, whose little home is on Oregon City 2, whose age is 84 years, still full of "pep" and appears to be not over 60 years, was having a time of his life with the soldier boys on Friday. Griffith, who served with Company F, First Oregon Infantry, says he well remembers the time when he was called for duty. At the age of 15 he was stooped at the shoulders caused from hard labor in the fields, and when entering the army at 15 years, he was immediately given the "once over" by the recruiting officers at Brownsville, Oregon. Shoulder braces were placed on his shoulders and were anything but comfortable for the soldier boy recruit. Weeks went on and the shoulders began straightening until now he is as straight as any of Uncle Sam's soldiers of the present day, although he bears wounds received in battle. He was shot in the chest, had a rib "busted" by the shot, but the farmer is still hale and hearty, and says he is able to raise enough feed for his pig cow and horse at his little farm near Oregon City. Mr. Griffith is already planning to attend next year's reunion of the soldier boys.

S. P. Hayward, who is 81 years of age and who has been critically ill at his home for several months, displayed his true patriotic spirit when insisting on attending the exercises on Friday in company with his son, of Gladstone. Mr. Hayward was given a royal reception when making his appearance among his old time comrades, and he took an active interest in the afternoon's program. He was a member of Company B, Sixth Missouri Infantry.

Although George A. Harding has been ill for several years, being confined to his home, he has never failed to appear at the reunion of the old soldiers at Gladstone park. No reunion of soldiers would be complete without that hearty laugh of Mr. Harding, and his many friends gave him the usual cordial greeting. He served his country in the First Oregon Infantry. Mr. Harding gave his age as 78 years of age, but even his friends won't believe this, for but a few wrinkles mark the countenance of this past commander of Meade Post No. 2.

Robert Stroup, 78 years, is assistant host at the G. A. R. headquarters. He is assisting H. S. Clyde in keeping "open house" for the visiting soldiers. He was also assistant chef at the dinner on Friday, when he presided over the coffee urn. Both are members of Meade Post.

George Webster, of Gladstone, 79 years of age, is coily housed in his prettily decorated tent on the grounds. This place he has occupied for many years, and enjoying camp here are his wife and daughter, Miss Nora.

Visitors from all over the world were registered at the Chautauqua grounds on Friday. Among these were Rev. Grossman, Berlin, Germany. He was accompanied by Rev. J. Kraut, both of whom thoroughly enjoyed the patriotic exercises held by the old soldier boys.

Mrs. Ada Holaday, of Scappoose, Oregon, was among the Chautauqua visitors on Friday.

Miss Lucile Kincaid has been a visitor at the Chautauqua grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. George Boylan are enjoying their annual outing at the Chautauqua grounds. Mrs. W. C. Green, their daughter, is also camped for the season, and assisting the Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church at their cafeteria.

The cafeteria is one of the popular places on the grounds, and Mrs. Burt Hall, of this city, is in charge, but operated by the Aid Society of the Presbyterian church. Each day a new committee takes up its duties.

Woodland, Wash., was represented on Friday by Miss Laville Stone, who spent the day on the grounds.

Among the most attractive camps on the grounds in the Gladstone park are those occupied by C. A. Menke and family and William Moehneke and family, the location they have pitched their tents in for a number of years. A dining room has been arranged between the two large tents, and screened by a hedge of firs. A large American flag adorns the camp. Occupying the tents are Mr. and Mrs. William Moehneke and children, Catherine and Marguerite, of Oregon City, Miss Irmae Moehneke, of Beaver Creek; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Menke, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Menke and daughter, Virginia.

Among the campers on the grounds are T. C. Barker, of Oregon City; H. Hicks, Scotts Mills; E. A. Niblin, Portland; Henry M. Parks, Portland; P. M. Baldwin, J. Barzee, A. A. Hale, J. C. Cooper, Portland; E. Grubbie, Canby; Rev. H. G. Edgar, Oregon City; J. W. Armstrong, Redmond; W. H. Yoder, Ma; C. M. Zimmerman, Gresham; Jane Moore, Ma; A. S. Wiles, Milwaukie; W. M. Monroe, Portland; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Dye, Oregon City; G. W. Blanchard, Portland; G. W. Kidder, Eugene; Mr. Eastman, Gresham; William Lawrence, Clackamas; H. F. Elliott, Ketchikan, Alaska; Mr. McCurry, Gresham; L. D. Yoder, Hubbard; J. W. Wilson, Molalla; Frank Hattan, Carver; E. M. Heacock, Portland; H. A. Rands, Oregon City; W. H. Wade, Estacada; Kate Carter, Stockton, Cal.; Karl Starker, Jennings, Lodge. Most of these are accompanied by families.

Mrs. E. B. Andrews is sparing no pains in entertaining guests at the Clackamas county W. C. T. U. headquarters, which has been beautified with flowers and ferns. This, too, is also a popular place on the grounds, where every comfort is found for the visitor.

Mrs. Donaldson is in charge of the state W. C. T. U. building, which is erected between the Multnomah and Clackamas county buildings.

Mrs. Eva Emery Dye, in her charming manner, has made many friends for the Chautauqua while they visit at the symposium, of which she has charge. Each afternoon at 5 o'clock delightful programs are given under her direction, when some of the best talent of the state has been heard.

Mrs. J. L. Hoffman, prominent member of the grange, is in charge of the grange building. Mrs. Hoffman, who is a charming woman, has entertained many guests at this building, always looking after the wants of those desiring any information. Mrs. Hoffman, who resided in New Era before taking up her residence in Portland, has recently returned from her European trip, having visited England, France, Scotland, Wales and other interesting countries.

Among the most attractive buildings on the grounds this season is the headquarters of the Multnomah county W. C. T. U. This is in charge of Mrs. Marion Gilbert, of Portland. Mrs. Gilbert has prettily decorated the lattice work of the veranda with flowers, and vines have been entwined, adding to the attractiveness and causing much favorable comment. There are two rooms besides the veranda fronting the building and one at the rear, which is used as an open-air dining room. Many visitors have registered at this building.

Among the veterans attending the G. A. R. exercises were J. J. Miller of Portland, who is in his 89th year, serving in Company G, Third Iowa Cavalry; J. F.
