Letter From Marine In China Received

SANDY, July 26—Will H. Pelps, 39th Co. U. S. M. C. American Legion, Pekin, China recently wrote an interesting letter to Mrs. S. Maybee, extracts from which will be of special interest to Mr. Phelps' many friends here, his home neighborhood. "You will no doubt be surprised to hear from me here, but a Marine's duties take him into all parts of the world. I am on my back in the hospital here. Had a slight accident to my left leg, getting it bruised and cut and later infection set in, but I am getting on O. K. now. White people have to be very careful in the tropics with all cuts or bruises, or had ulcers will result. I thought my blood was so good I did not have to take the precautions given by the doctors, so am now paying.

"We have fine quarters and fine food here. The sergeants have their own dining room. We 'chip in' a couple of dollars apiece and have linen for the tables and Chinese servants do everything, keep our rooms, polish our shoes, press our uniforms, etc. The privates have things pretty good too, much better than in the states.

"Everything is walled in here, each location has everything complete in itself, such as restaurant, shoe shop, tailor shop, etc., and a big wall around the whole. The city itself is enclosed with high walls 60 or 70 feet high, running in all directions. There is not a street car in the city. There are a few rail roads in China that are paying well and some more are being built.

"We may have some real war, as several Chinese generals with a following are waiting to fly at each other's throats. Some troops are massed not far from Pekin."

Phelps sent his best wishes to all his old friends. His letter was written April 22, and was received about two weeks ago.

OSWEGO ITEMS

Mrs. Cora Bullock

Annexation to Be Voted on August 4

OSWEGO, July 26—On August 4, residents of Old Town and South Town of Oswego, will vote on the annexation of the section of the town lying east and south of Oswego Lake and as far west as the McLean camps. There is a general sentiment in favor of combining all these districts into one city, the principal one being to cut the taxes and also to enable the retention of a large sum of road tax money which now annually goes into the Clackamas county treasury. Gas and city water are other luxuries with which the residents of the territory now lying outside the city would be provided.

The understanding is that home rule would govern to a large extent in each precinct, and that the joining hands by the city of Oswego with the larger area would not give the newly made part of the city the power to dominate the affairs of the whole town. The polling place in the annexed district will be the Odd Fellows hall which is the center of the place.

Redmen Planning On Contest Dinner

OSWEGO, July 26—Kasseeak Tribe Improved Order of Redmen of Oswego is planning a dinner in the near future. The affair is being arranged by the losing team in the recent two months' membership drive. GRADING PROGRESSES

ROAD WORK AGAIN HELD UP BY STATE

Definite Promise on Finance from Multnomah County to Be Required Before Added Construction Can be Begun

USE OF LICENSE FEES MAY FORM SOLUTION

Legal Opinion on Application of Motor Vehicle Funds Is Divided; Resolutions Wait

PORTLAND, July 25.—Until satisfactory assurances are received from Multnomah county that it will reimburse the state for work on the Mount Hood loop, no contract for surfacing the grade, already made, will be let. This is the attitude of the highway commission, voiced by R. A. Booth, chairman, at a conference today with the Multnomah county commission.

The continuation of work on the Mount Hood Loop road in Clackamas county, which is depending upon the financing of the share to be borne by Multnomah county, is now hanging upon a legal technicality, the decision as to whether the license fee funds come under the jurisdiction of the tax supervision committee.

The state highway commission declares that it will do no more work on the scenic roadway until the Multnomah county commission comes through with the appropriations it has promised.

The county commission refused to make any money available until it found whether it could turn over $170,000 to be raised next year. Multnomah county's share of the cost is $170,000. Last year it was agreed that this should be paid in two installments of $85,000 each. Last winter the tax supervision and construction commission struck the item out of the budget on the ground of illegality as it exceeded funds for grading and is now ready to put the gravel surface on.

Legal Authority Questioned

Legal authority seemed to hinge on the point whether the motor vehicle money is to be listed as tax money or as a special fund. If it is a special fund, the county commission can appropriate it without placing it in the budget, members of both county and state highway commissions declared.

If it is a tax, then it must go in the budget, where the tax commission, which wiped out the proposed appropriation this year, would get another crack at it.

Legal opinion on the point was divided. Assistant Attorney General Devers, advisor of the highway commission, said the money should be defined as a special fund and need not be placed in the budget.

Deputy District Attorney Pierce, advisor to the county commission, said the money should be defined as a tax and placed in the budget. Because of Pierce's construction of the law, County Commissioner Rudeen announced at the outset of a joint meeting of the two commissions this morning that he would vote against the appropriation.

That prevented passage of the resolution. Aid is Offered

The county commissioners offered to pass another resolution pledging it to do everything in its power to furnish the money, but Commissioner Booth, of the highway body, said such a resolution would be no more valuable than no resolution at all.

The highway commission, he declared, intends to do nothing further about the loop road until it gets a definite promise in writing from the county commission, which originally started agitation for the road, that it will pay its part. Clackamas county has paid its share, he pointed out.

The county commissioners insisted that they were eager to pay the money if they could find legal means of doing it.

To that end Devers and Pierce were asked to go over the law together and see if they couldn't agree on a construction that would allow the commissioners to promise definitely that the money would be furnished.

WOMAN SHOTS SISTER WHO STOLE HUSBAND

NEW YORK, July 25.—"I told him he could have any other woman but my own flesh and blood," shouted Mrs. John Reiser, wife of "John the Barber," internationally known sportsman, as she was arraigned today in Brooklyn on a charge of murdering Miss Bertha Katz, the "other woman," and her sister.

Mrs. Reiser, who charged that her dead sister broke up her home, exclaimed she "had waited a long time to get her."

Miss Katz was shot to death in her boudoir early today. Four relatives of the sportsman were arrested on homicide charges. The scorned Mrs. Reiser rushed to the hospital where her sister lay dying and, shaking her fist, yelled, "It was I who shot you and you know it." The dying woman had previously identified Mrs. Reiser's son, Morris, as her assailant.

Morris "confessed" shooting his aunt, but police believe he did so to protect his mother, Morris, his brother George and the mother were all in court in connection with the death of their relative.

LIQUOR BARON CHARGED WITH DEATH OF WOMEN

CINCINNATI, O., July 25.—Charged that a moonshine "liquor baron," enthroned high in the mountain fastness of Kentucky, is responsible for the mysterious disappearance of six women during the last half year, were made by Carl Schuett, prominent musician, here today.

Schuett declared his wife, Anna Mae, 27, was a victim of the alleged moonshine chief, who, after mistreating her, forced her to poison herself, under threat of a torturous death.

Schuett claimed that, with the assistance of friends, he had solved the mystery of the mountain chief, following the disappearance of Anna Mae, several weeks ago.
