PRINCESS'S FALSE TOOTH

The swallowing of false teeth has been a subject for unseemly jests since the first set of "store" grinders was devised, but most of us have supposed that it couldn't be done.

Ceremony Held
By Ku Klux Klan
Under a flaming red cross that loomed as a solitary beacon in the moonlit field, as white robed figures moved swiftly across the path of a beam from a roman candle's light, the Invisible Empire Knights of the Ku Klux Klan last night at Gladstone initiated 110 new members.

The initiation was a public ceremony. Two thousand people, kept behind the lines by a series of hooded guards, craned their necks and listened intently to catch the faint words of the Klansman's oath and hear the exhortation to American principles delivered by Dr. J. C. Sawyer, of Portland, lecturer of the Klan.

While more than 150 local Klansmen gathered in a hollow square, the initiates were marched up to the altar in the baseball field at Chaunauqua park. They were accompanied by a special decorated team from Portland. There, questioned as to their qualifications touching upon American citizenship, birth and religion, they were given the oath of allegiance to the invisible empire, swearing to preserve klansmanship among klansmen.

He called upon them to use their political influence against "those organizations intrinsically opposed to the principles on which the Klan is founded." He decried the insidious encroachment upon the control of the government being made by un-American organizations and urged Klansmen, as thinking men, to fight the condition, and enlist the aid of the women of the nation, through the organization of the Ladies of the Invisible Empire.

The ceremonies were preparatory to the formal initiation to be held at Willamette Hall Thursday night. No secret work was given the candidates on the grounds. Following the services, refreshments were served to members of the Klan.

FORMER LOCAL PEOPLE VISIT MINERAL SPRINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Becker, former residents of Oregon City, now making their home at Gervais, Oregon, were in Oregon City on Monday. They were on the way to their home from St. Martin's Mineral Springs, where they had been for the benefit of Mrs. Becker's health.

During their stay at the resort, they found many patients to be from all over the United States, some of whom were from as far east as Ohio, while others were from Indiana, Minnesota, Montana, California, Utah and other states.

Another remarkable case is a girl of 18 who is being restored to health. When arriving at the institution she was unable to walk, and it was necessary to carry the patient. She is now able to walk with the aid of a cane, although she has been at the springs but a short time.

Most of the baths are taken in the morning by the patients, although there are many who take during the day. From 125 to 150 patients are treated to baths each day. The boiling water from the mineral springs has a peculiar flavor, although the patients become accustomed to its taste and many, instead of taking the baths, partake of the same. The springs, from which emits the boiling water, is located about 125 feet below the hotel, and during the day people are seen wading their way to partake of the water, containing its wonderful healing qualities.

Two routes may be taken in going to St. Martin's Spring, both of which are desirable and where the roads are good for touring.

Farmers of that section call each day for orders, and one of the features that is favorably looked upon by the campers, that is the prices of the farmers' products are so exorbitant.

This was the first visit Mr. and Mrs. Becker have made to this resort, although they had heard of the same while residing in the East two years ago, when they started for the West.

England Is Willing To Cancel All Debts Including America

LONDON, Aug. 1.—In a note to France, Belgium and Italy, handed to the ambassadors this afternoon, Great Britain formally offered to abandon her claim to reparations from Germany and to cancel all allied debts, provided this became part of an international agreement, including the United States.

The note was to have been forwarded to the United States as well, but at the eleventh hour it was withdrawn.

"It cannot be right that one partner in a common enterprise should recover all she has lent," the note said, "while another, recovering nothing, should be required to pay all she has borrowed."

Innocence Is Claimed
He asserted that he could see no reason why the charge was brought against him, except possibly for the fact that he refused to lend Gus Winesett $2.50 the morning following his visit.

Winesett said he met Helene three or four months ago and has made occasional visits to his shop to get a shave or haircut. Helene became friendly, he said.

Tom Winesett, who is blind, declares that Helene persuaded him to take a drink after the other two men had fallen asleep. He too, went into unconsciousness until the following morning, he declared.

Winesett said that after Helene had placed the three men on a bed, he came to her and told her he was a chiropractor and that he wanted to treat her. He insisted that she take a drink, but she refused, she said.

The house occupied by the Winesetts is situated just back of the "haunted" house, where the mysterious "ghost" cut so many capers last winter.

The British government has rejected the unofficial proposals of the United States requesting the right to search British vessels outside of the three mile limit suspected of being engaged in smuggling.

Criminal Assault
on Aged Bedridden
Woman Is Charged
Charged with criminally assaulting Mrs. Lydia Winesett, a 70-year-old bedridden invalid, at her home near Sixty-sixth street and McCoy avenue, Brentwood, on the night of July 11, Harvey Helene, 52, a barber, who lives in the rear of his shop at 5632 Woodstock avenue, was arrested in Portland Thursday and thrown in the county jail under $500 bail.

Son Makes Complaint
The warrant was issued by Chief Deputy District Attorney Hammersley on complaint of Gus Winesett, son of the woman.

Helene was alleged to have attacked Mrs. Winesett after injecting a hypodermic in her arm. Dr. C. H. Law, who investigated the case, said the woman undoubtedly had been attacked and that a strong poison had been shot into her arm, which was badly swollen.

Before the alleged attack on Mrs. Winesett, Helene put her two sons, Gus and Tom, and a man named Van Ault to sleep by giving them drinks of doped moonshine, according to the story told by the sons.

Helene denied that he attacked the woman. He admitted that he visited the house on the night of July 11, but said he went there to take Gus Winesett and Van Ault home after meeting them on the street in an intoxicated condition.

Winesett said he met Helene three or four months ago and has made occasional visits to his shop to get a shave or haircut. Helene became friendly, he said.

Tom Winesett, who is blind, declares that Helene persuaded him to take a drink after the other two men had fallen asleep. He too, went into unconsciousness until the following morning, he declared.

Winesett said that after Helene had placed the three men on a bed, he came to her and told her he was a chiropractor and that he wanted to treat her. He insisted that she take a drink, but she refused, she said.

The house occupied by the Winesetts is situated just back of the "haunted" house, where the mysterious "ghost" cut so many capers last winter.
