Canemah Man Raises 18 Inch Cucumber

How long is a cucumber? The question, which is the subject of warm discussion among amateur gardeners, meets a terse reply from T. B. Long, of Canemah. "Eighteen inches," says Long, and presents a specimen of the vegetable under discussion to prove it. The cucumber, like Mr. Finney's turnip, grew in the back lot at Long's home. It is 12 inches in circumference and as solid as they get to be. Long, doubtless, will inform the embryo Burbanks who herald the arrival of a 14-inch cucumber with glee, that they "ain't seen nuthin' yet!"

DEVOTED TO BLIND PONTIFF

Living Buddha, Made Sightless by Dispersion, Commands Veneration of Millions of Followers.

The living Buddha has a double personality. He is clever, penetrating, energetic, but at the same time he indulges in the drunkenness that has brought on blindness. When he became blind, the lamas were thrown into a state of desperation. Some of them maintained that Bogdo Kahn must be poisoned and another incarnate Buddha set as his place; while the others pointed out the great merits of the pontiff in the eyes of Mongolians and the followers of the Yellow Faith. They finally decided to propitiate the gods by building a great temple with a gigantic statue of Buddha, according to "Black Magic of Mongolia," by Ferdinand Ossendowski, rendered into English by Lewis Stanton Palen in Asia Magazine. He never ceases to ponder upon the problems and well-being of the church and of Mongolia, and at the same time he indulges himself with useless trifles.

A retired Russian officer presented him with two old guns, for which the donor received the title "Tumbair Hun"—"Prince Dear-to-My-Heart." On holidays these cannon were fired, to the great amusement of the blind man. Motor cars, gramophones, telephones, crystals, porcelains, pictures, perfumes, musical instruments, rare animals and birds, elephants, Himalayan bears, monkeys, Indian snakes and parrots—all these were collected in the palace of "the god," but all were soon cast aside and forgotten. The blind pontiff is regarded with the deepest reverence. Before him all fall on their faces. Khair and hutuktu approach him on their knees. A drunk blind man, listening to the banal aria of the gramophone or frightening his servants with an electric current from his dynamo, a ferocious old fellow poisoning his political enemies, a lama keeping his people in darkness and deceiving them with his prophecies and fortune telling—he is, however, not an entirely ordinary person.

TO REVIVE DOMESTIC WEAVING

Movement in England to in a Measure Restore System Which Preceded Modern Factory.

A short time ago an Indian came into Lancashire from a training school in Paris and promised a huge order to anyone who could invent a simple spinning spindle with an automatic feeder of raw cotton. This was to be used to help crush the factory system of India by a revival and extension of hand spinning, and with it, domestic weaving.

The idea should not be impossible, but the difficulty of providing the mechanism is to make it light enough in weight to be easily moved about, also to make it cheap enough for any poor householder to purchase. India has about 2,000,000 hand looms employing 6,000,000 or 8,000,000 men, women and children, consuming more than 250,000,000 pounds of yarn.

In England the art of domestic weaving has been practically lost. It was superseded nearly 100 years ago by the rapid advance of the automatic loom and the factory system. But there has been a suggestion recently that some attempt should be made to reintroduce domestic weaving on a more modern plan than that which has been pushed out. Domestic hand-loom weaving may still be found in isolated places and it has also been taken up by disabled soldiers.

"Bird of Passage."

The earliest use of the term "bird of passage" is found in eighteenth book of the Natural History of Pliny the Elder (23-79 A. D.), where he says: "The bird of passage known to us as the cuckoo," and the term has since been applied to birds which migrate with a season from a colder to a warmer, or from a warmer to a colder climate, divided into summer birds of passage and winter birds of passage. Such birds always breed in the country to which they resort in summer, that is, in the colder of their homes. The term is said to have been first applied to sailors by Bacon, who declared that the uncertainty, the instability and fluctuating stage of human life was most aptly represented by those sailing the ocean.—Exchange.

Ford Will Fight Coal Profiteers To Reduce Prices

DETROIT, Aug. 28.—Henry Ford, in announcing Saturday that his plants would be closed September 16 because of conditions in the coal industry, began a fight for what he believes is a great principle. The Associated Press was informed today in sources close to the manufacturer.

Mr. Ford, it was said, has started what he declares is a fight against all profiteering in coal and he believes he is in a better position perhaps to do so than any one else. He feels, it was said, that by taking up the fight, he is doing every other manufacturer as well as working men throughout the country, a real service.

Mr. Ford denies there is a coal shortage. The investigations of his representatives have convinced him, it was said, that coal brokers of the country have an enormous supply of coal on hand. The Ford Motor company could obtain enough coal to cover a tract 10 acres square if it would submit to being victimized by profiteers, it was declared.

For several weeks, it was asserted, the Ford offices at Dearborn have been flooded with offers of coal with delivery guaranteed. It was declared that the prices asked ranged from 100 to 300 per cent above the normal cost.

The Detroit manufacturer believes that if he yields to what he terms "the holdup" of the coal brokers every other manufacturer will follow suit and that coal prices will reach an unprecedented figure. One source close to Mr. Ford said the manufacturer had "at the back of his mind" a picture of working men being unable to buy enough coal to keep their families warm because of the prices that eventually would be asked "unless this profiteering was nipped in its inception."

CAPTAIN AMUNDSEN IS NOW AT WAINWRIGHT

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 28.—Captain Roald Amundsen, who last month transferred to the schooner Holmes from the Maud on his Arctic expedition, is now at Wainwright, 100 miles southwest of Point Barrow, according to a message from Captain C. S. Cochran of the coast guard cutter Bear, sent through the coast guard station at Point Barrow to Captain Thomas A. Ross here.

Captain Cochran said that Lieutenant Oskar Omdal, aviator and a moving picture photographer, were with Amundsen, and that the Amundsen party intended to land at Wainwright.

It is thought here that Captain Amundsen and his party have transferred to the Bear from the Holmes, due to heavy ice, and that they may be planning to start at Wainwright the airplane flight which the explorer planned to make over the Arctic circle.

Woman Is Attacked By Peninsula Beast In Hallway of Home

PORTLAND, Aug. 26.—The Peninsula beast—or, presumably he—meeting Mrs. George Cooper, No. 52 1/2 Union avenue north, in the hallway of the apartment house in which she lives, at 9:45 this morning, leered evilly and lunged for the startled woman.

He clutched her throat with his hands, trying to stem the screams with which she attempted to arouse her neighbors. She fought desperately, and tore herself free enough to continue her cries. Startled by the sound of opening doors and running footsteps in the hallway, the beast dropped the woman and leaped down the back stairway to the street.

Men in the apartment house who had been aroused gave pursuit, but the beast had vanished.

Mrs. Cooper was scratched about the arms, but not seriously injured. She described her assailant to police as weighing about 180 pounds, 5 feet 11, medium complexion, blue overalls, smooth shaven and some kind of a cap.

She said that she met this same man in Fremont park Tuesday when she was walking there with her little boy. He followed her and passed her, she said, and she immediately recognized him in the hallway when she went out this morning to get a pail of water from the faucet.
