"Ribbon Farms" of Early French Settlers May Be Traced in Names of Various Streets.

Traces of the French "ribbon farms" in Detroit remain in the names of streets crossed in going along East Jefferson avenue. Of roads there, was little need, though an Indian trail, later called the River road, led along is learning to drive, drove there and swamp to the country of "les Bastonnias." The river was the broad highway down which the Campaus, and Ray A. Campynol of Oregon City Chenes, Rivards and their neighbors went to Fort Ponchartrain du Detroit on market days, says the Burton Historical Collection Leaflet published by the Detroit Public Library.

But there were 13 progressives who approved the removal. The water front at that time was a high bluff, and the river came up to Woodbridge street .-

FRUIT HAS DIVERS FLAVORS

Durion, Growing Only in Burma, Highly Esteemed by Some and Disliked by Others.

In Burma is found a curious and delicious fruit, called the durion. This fruit grows on a tree of about sixty feet in height. It is oval-shaped, from ten to twelve inches in length and from six to eight feet in diameter. It is of a light green color and the outside is covered with thorns half an inch long. These thorns are very tough and strong. The interior is divided into five sections, in which lie rows of seeds about an inch long, surrounded with the delicious pulp, which is considered a great delicacy by those who flavor is described as follows: "Take the sweetest bananas, the richest plneapples, the most julcy of oranges, some peaches and cream, flavor the mixture with some rare spice, and you might have something that would resemble a durion." It has a pungent, spicy fragrance which is greatly admired by many, and not liked by oth ers. The king of Burma used to send every year special steamers to Moulmein, Burma, to procure royal specimens of this most royal fruit.

Power of Sight in Animals.

The two familiar expressions, "An eagle's eye" and "Blind as a bat," just about sum up the average person's knowledge of the sense of sight in animals. The popular impression is in fact, many are decidedly weak in

The elephant has poor eyes, and relies on his other senses, mostly on smell, to compensate for this, writes L. E. Eubanks in Our Dumb Animals. Also the rhinoceros sees but a short distance, and depends on his sense of mell, even in charging an enemy. The buffalo has good eyes, but those of the bear are so poor that when a little confused he will run directly over the hunter he is trying to avoid. Bears' eyes are dramatically described as "red rimmed and savage," but bears, ordinarily, are not quarrelsome, and prefer to use their eyes in retreat.

Harriman Interest

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 13 .-That the Harriman banking interests of New York City and the Indiana National bank Indianapolis helped finance the miners in the recent coal strike was revealed here by William Green, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America.

Green, who also is a vice president of the American Federation of Labor, arrived to attend the annual session of the American Federation of Labor, executive council, after having nego tiated with New York banks yesterday the sale of bonds, which, he said, will bring the total cost of the strike to the United Mine Workers of America, well above $1,000.000 exclusive of large sums expended by local unions.
