Farm Bureau Gives Harvest Festival

SANDY, Sept. 19-The harvest festival given by the Damascus farm bureau last Friday proves that "local" can do things worth while. The exhibits were wonderfully attractive and well arranged. There were grains, fruits, vegetables, canned products, 11 feet high, and even "turk-hens" on display. These queer looking birds are a cross between turkeys and chickens. They were shown by the Edgewood farm, who also had some musk melons and watermelons on display. To help out with the expenses of the day there was a "fish-pond" and a refreshment stand. N. NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 20. -Six letters, alleged to have been written by Mrs. Ellinore Mills to the Rev. Edward W. Hall were found by police in the rector's study today and furnished clues which may lead to speedy clearing up of the double murder mystery. Names of persons who may have had a hand in killing the clergyman Miss Gertie Hill has returned from and the wife of his sexton were discovered in the letters, it was hinted.

A detective was on hand in the abandoned farm house near the place where the bodies were found under a crabapple tree. Authorities believe the murders may have been committed in the old mansion. It has many of the aspects of a haunted house, dilapidated and falling to pieces outside, shrouded with trees and shrubbery, but inside handsomely furnished with a strange atmosphere of having been "lived in." The new theory is that, owing to its oneliness and the fact that it was shunned, the clergyman conceived the idea of fixing up the house as a trysting place which to meet Mrs. Mills after nightfall. The bodies of the victims of the double tragedy were found under an apple tree not far from the house. The ancient farm house is under guard of state police today and no one is allowed to enter except upon permission by County Prosecutor Beek-
