IN SMASH IN COLUMBIA ONE STEAMER IS SUNK

ASTORIA, Ore., Nov. 12.—The steam schooner Halco is resting on the bottom of the river alongside the Hammond Lumber company's wharf and the motorship Challaamba is tied up at the port terminals with some of its chain plates cracked and some collaring split as the result of a collision about 9 a. m. yesterday. The crash occurred just below Altona, Wash. when the Challaamba and the steam schooner Solano started to pass the Halco, a vessel on each side. The suction caused the Halco to swerve and strike bow on against the Challaamba's starboard side.

The Halco's stem was smashed below the water line. Both vessels proceeded to Astoria under their own power.

The Astoria fire department's pumper was used in an effort to keep the water out of the Halco, but was unable to make headway against the inflow.

The vessels will be surveyed at Astoria today by Captain W. C. McNaught, surveyor to the San Francisco board of underwriters.

The Halco will likely be discharged. The Challaamba will likely be able to proceed to sea with slight delay.

The Halco had lumber aboard for California ports. The Challaamba was en route from Portland to South American west coast ports with a full cargo of lumber loaded at Portland.

The tug Crickett sank in the Columbia river near Warrior rock when it was rammed by the steam schooner Wapama about 5 p. m. yesterday. The Wapama was en route to Portland, while the tug was moving down stream to Kelso.

Two men operating the Crickett were thrown into the river, but were picked up by the Wapama. The Crickett, a 65-foot Diesel engine craft, was valued at about $20,000, according to Daniel Kern, president of the Columbia Contract company, owner. Captain Calosinger was in charge of the tug.

MY AUTO, 'TIS OF THEE My auto, 'tis of thee, Short road to poverty, Of thee I chant.

I blew a pile of dough. On thee three years ago; Now you refuse to go, or want, or can't.

Through town and countryside, You were my joy and pride, A happy day.

I loved the gaudy hue, The nice white tires new, But you're down and out for true, In every way.

To thee, old rattle-box, Came many bumps and knocks, For thee I grump.

Badly the top is torn, Frayed are the seats and worn; The whooping-cough affects thy horn, I do believe.

Thy perfume swells the breeze, While good folks choke and wheeze, As we pass by.

I paid for thee a price, 'Twould buy a mansion twice, Now everybody's yelling "ice" I wonder why.

Thy motor has the gripper, Thy spark plug has the pip, And woe is thine.

I, too, have suffered chills, Fatigue and kindred ills, Endeavoring to pay my bills, Since thou wert mine.

Gone is my bank roll now: No more 'twould choke the cow, As once before.

Yet if I had the moon, So help me, John—amen, I'd buy a car again, And spend some more.

—The American.
