Freak Duck Killed By Lodge Hunter

JENNINGS LODGE, Dec. 6—W. F. Hartnell and R. M. Smith have returned from a very successful hunting trip to Summer Lake in Lake county, bringing home 100 ducks and 12 geese.

Mr. Hartnell shot a freak duck and when turned over to the state game commission on Friday last was said to be the oddest freak of the season. It was a white duck, very rarely seen, and killed once in every few years in Oregon, it being almost pure white with a few mottled brown spots and is the kind known as the green winged teal, but this one had no trace of green on it.

It was shot out of a flock of about 40 all white. But scientists claim albino duck varieties never fly together but this would entirely subvert their claim.
